Broad Po… Given Lab… Government By Commons

Churchill Attacks Attlee, Shinwell For 'Totalitarian Threat' to Britons

London, Aug. 8 (AP).—The Labor government's emergency bill broadening its already extensive powers over labor and management was approved in Commons on its decisive second reading today despite Winston Churchill's impassioned protest that it was a "blank check for totalitarian government."

By 251 votes to 148, the Labor majority threw out Churchill's motion to reject the bill which the wartime Prime Minister assailed as a "gross invasion of our fundamental liberties" and a "complete abrogation" of the powers of Parliament.

One Labor member, Capt. Raymond Blackburn, voted against the government, charging that the bill was a 'suostitute for leadership" and "completely contrary to the faith of the Labor Party and everything for which the Labor Party has ever stood.'

Remains in Session

Home Secretary Chuter Ede, asserting that any orders issued under the new powers would be subject to parliamentary review, said the bill was necessary because "we should have power to deal drastically and swiftly with awkward situations that may arise."

To which Churchill snapped, "Hitler said that!"

Parliament, which was to have adjourned for the summer today, remained in session, expecting to complete action on the bill by next Wednesday.

Reinforcing government powers contained in war-time defense regulations, which have been extended to 1950, the government measure implements a program calling for government direction of labor into essential channels, intervention in "inefficient" industries, longer work hours, a retrenchment in the armed forces, a drastic cut in imports for shortage-ridden Britons, and a determined boost of exports to bolster the Nation's financial position and get it off the borrowers list as soon as possible.

Blames Melting Loan

Prime Minister Attlee himself has described his program as involving "some sacrifice" of personal liberty in a "second battle of Britain." He has attributed Britain's crisis to the rapid disappearance of the $3,750,000,000 United States loan.

Churchill directed his main fire on the key clause of the bill giving blanket power to act "generally for insuring that the whole resources of the community are available for use, and are used, in a manner best calculated to serve the interests of the community."

He declared.

"These powers are a negation of British freedom and the British way of living in time of peace . . .

"This power to choose or change occupations (of labor) hitherto was considered the mark of the difference between free democracy and serfdom in one form or another . . .

"Except for the bloodshed, all the evils of war, and worse, are going on in our country today . . . life under the Socialist government

Freight Train Kills Infant as Brother Sprints to Rescue

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—Eighteen-month-old Jimmie Roger Stone was run over and killed by a freight train near his home today as his brother, David Lee Stone, 12, raced toward him in a futile effort to save the baby's life.

State Police Corpl. R. G. Coen said the baby toddled from his home and sat down on a tie with his back to the rail. A neighbor noticed the child and called for David Lee, who ran from the house as the train rounded a curve.

Members of the train crew said they saw the child "just as we rounded" the curve but "we could not stop."

…r 'Double Tax'

…m Export to Britain Halted by Hollywood Studios

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—America's motion picture industry, hitting back at a severe tax imposed by Britain on United States films, today placed a flat ban on shipment of all feature pictures and short subjects to Britain.

Eric A. Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America (MPA), announced the decision after a closed three-hour session attended by 50 film executives. The vote on the ban was not announced.

The tax, announced yesterday as a measure to combat Britain's dollar shortage, was attacked by Johnston who declared in a statement that it "in effect strangles American film shipments to England."

The British described the levy officially as a 300 per cent ad valorem payment but Johnston said it "confiscates 75 per cent of the earnings on future imports of the American film industry to Britain.

"If the British do not want American pictures, that's one thing," the MPA head commented. "If they do, they shouldn't expect to get a dollar's worth of films for a quarter."

The ban, if continued for a long period, is expected to have important effects in both the United States and Britain.

In recent years United States films have earned about 400 million dollars annually in the British market and have constituted about 80 per cent of the films shown in Britain, it was said here.

Of the 400 million dollars, about 332 million dollars has remained in Britain as taxes, promotional expense and other operation costs. The remaining net earnings of 68 million dollars have been converted into dollars and transferred to the United States. The MPA estimates that under the new tax only about 25 per cent of these net earnings would be realized.

Johnston said the new tax "was imposed at a time when the American industry, conscious of Britain's dollar crisis, had voluntarily suggested measures of a practical nature to help at once the drain on British exchange.

"Our members desired to meet the British halfway by offering to block during the crisis a substantial share of the earnings of the Amer-

8000 to Lose VA Jobs, 700 Of Them Here

Administrative Staff Cutback May Close 500 of 877 Offices

The Veterans' Administration yesterday ordered the discharge of 8000 administrative employes "as soon as possible" for economy reasons.

The agency estimated that as many as 500 of its 877 offices throughout the Nation may be closed as a result.

A press announcement sail that 700 employes will be discharged from Washington, and about 7300 elsewhere. A Veterans' Administration official said it may take several weeks for regional offices to compute work-loads upon which the discharges will be based.

[Jerry Kluttz, in the Federal Diary column in last Monday's Washington Post, reported that discharge of up to 8000 administrative VA workers was "in the works."—Editor's note.]

Largest reductions—2000 employes—will be in the vocational rehabilitation and educational program. About 1700 persons, or more than 25 per cent of those engaged in contact work, will be discharged with the probable result that 60 per cent of the contact offices will be closed. The cities affected will be served by itinerant contact officers, VA said.

Appropriations for the 1948 fiscal year slashed 10,000 administrative workers from the Veterans' Administration budget. Two thousand were discharged before the July 1 start of the fiscal year. The agency said the additional reductions will leave its employment rolls 16,000 below peak strength of last February 28, when 213,236 persons were employed.

U. S. Asks Refunds Of $44,000,000 in GI Overpayments

By The Associated Press

The Government is trying to collect more than 44 million dollars from some 665,000 former GIs who were overpaid in one kind or another of veterans' benefits.

Announcing this yesterday, the Veterans' Administration said that while repayments in June alone totaled nearly seven million dollars, the amount due the Treasury has continued to rise.

A June 30 VA report shows that on that date overpayments of subsistence allowances to veterans in schools or on job-training rose to a new peak of $42,518,836—a sum involving 440,234 persons.

Overpayments of pensions and disability compensation to 15,569 veterans total $1,641,778.

In addition, the agency said, there have been thousands of overpayments by various State employment offices of unemployment allowances. The Veterans' Administration said it has no figures on these but that they may run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Man Is Killed By Lightning During Storm

Property Damaged In D. C., Alexandria Section Blacked Out

A man was killed by a bolt of lightning in Northeast Washington last night during a severe electrical storm.

Lightning also caused considerable property damage in the District and a temporary blackout of lights in the Potomac section of Alexandria, South Arlington and Clarendon.

The storm victim here was Other Christmas, 46, 30 P st. ne. Christmas was running through the downpour at about 7 p. m. trying to reach his home. He was struck by the bolt of lightning about 10 yards from his home.

3 Poles Struck

A neighbor, Mrs. Eva Robinson of 23 P st. ne., told police he saw Christmas running, then she saw a blinding flash. She next saw him sink to the pavement. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital.

Arlington police said three power holes, all supporting high-tension wires, were struck by lightning, knocking out all electric service in South Arlington.

The poles were at Columbia pike and S. Glebe rd., Glebe rd. opposite the Pentagon and Columbia pike and Courthouse rd.

South Arlington was without electric power from about 8:15 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.

The blackout in the Potomac section of Alexandria lasted from about 8:15 to 9:30 p. m. There was no immediate explanation of what caused the interruption in service.

Clarendon was without electricity from 8:15 to 9:15 p. m.

Bolt Hits Steeple

Several houses were reported struck by lightning in Arlington also.

Here in the District, a bolt of lightning struck the steeple of the Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., and brought a temporary halt to a wedding rehearsal. Several hundred bricks were knocked loose from the church steeple.

The Weather Bureau said the storm would be followed today by "mostly sunny" weather with "some cloudiness" and a probable high temperature of about 84. Tomorrow will be sunny and less humid.

Young London Lawyer Arrested as 'Peeper'

London, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Stanley Williams, a 28-year-old lawyer, was brought into court today under a 600-year-old law against peeping.

He was accused of using binoculars to watch two chorus girls undress in the Stoll Theater. The court ordered him to put up $100 as bond for his future good behavior.

'Greatest Tragedy of Our Lives'

Prosecutor Asks for Aide to Try Wife in Death of His Father

Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—The pretty blond wife of Arkansas' young racket-busting prosecutor, Sidney S. McMath, shot and killed her father-in-law last night and today her husband announced that he would ask for the appointment of a special prosecutor to handle her case.

McMath aligned himself on her side in "the greatest tragedy of our lives" and asserted the slaying must have been accidental.

[Press dispatches describe Mrs. McMath as a "gracious and beautiful," 25-year-old hostess in Hot Springs. McMath's first wife died while he was overseas.—Editor's note.]

Hal McMath, 57, former barber and farmer, was slain by the service revolver which his lawyer son carried in the Pacific fighting in which he was a Marine Corps hero. The son said his wife had killed him while "hysterical with fear," but hadn't intended shooting at all. It resulted from his father's having abused a show horse at McMath's ranch-home.

The elder McMath had been in the habit of going to the ranch daily to take care of the livestock. His son said he had been drinking heavily for several years and only last week had agreed to enter an institution for treatment.

On last Monday, the son con-

Russia Hits U. S. Labor Act, Purge

Krasilnikov Calls Dennis Trial, Firing Of Reds 'Violations Of Human Rights'

Lake Success, Aug. 8 (AP).—Russia assailed the United States today for its treatment of American Communists, declaring that this treatment and recently enacted "antilabor" legislation were serious violations of human rights.

The attack occurred in the membership committee meeting of the United Nations Security Council after United States Representative Hayden Raynor had opposed the admission of Bulgaria to the U. N. and criticized the Communist-dominated Bulgarian regime.

Soviet Representative Alexi N. Krasilnikov criticized particularly President Truman's program to purge the Government of disloyal employes and "the recent trial of a leader of one of the political parties in the U. S. A."

Krasilnikov told a reporter later that he referred to the trial of Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the Communist Party, who was sentenced July 8 to one year in prison and fined $5000, the maximum penalty for contempt of Congress.

Denounces Brazil Action

The Soviet representative also criticized Brazil for "outlawing one of the major political parties in Brazil" and inferred that the Brazilian government was being influenced by United States policies.

He challenged the right of the United States to criticize Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary for violation of human rights "when the United States might be open to even more serious charges in this respect."

Krasilnikov denied that any of the three governments had been put into power by a Communist coup or that they were suppressing any groups except those who were conspiring against the good of their countries.

He said the groups which had the backing of the United States and Britain wanted to set up "reactionary and terroristic" regimes "such as that now in control in Greece."

Referring to repeated American and British protests to the three former enemy states, he said:

Brazilian Defends U. S.

Krasilnikov said that if the U. S. action against American Communists was "the domestic concern of the U. S. A., I would like to know how the U. S. thinks it can inter-

Heart Disease Sufferer Dead After Auto Crash

A motorist who may have been a victim of a heart attack, crashed into a wooden light pole at 5:40 yesterday afternoon in the 3100 block of Rhode Island ave. ne. and was pronounced dead 20 minutes later by a Casualty Hospital doctor.

The victim, Henry Troy Clarke, 53, of 4212 Russell ave., Mt. Rainier, Md., was driving at about 15 miles per hour at the time, according to three witnesses quoted by police. One witnes said the motorist's body appeared to be stiff over the steering wheel before the crash, which occurred at the driveway of a filling station.

His wife, Mrs. Minnie Clark, told police her husband had had a heart attack recently.

U. S. Atomic Plan Can Never Be Accepted, Russia Declares

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Russia said tonight it never could accept basic principles of the United States Atomic energy control plan because they embody the "erroneous" assumption that "national sovereignty and independence . . . have been reduced to naught by the atomic age."

The Russian statement made it virtually certain that there would be no agreement this year on international atomic control. Russia and the western powers are too far apart on the question to reach agreement by the time the United Nations General Assembly meets September 16.

In a major reemphasis of Russia's almost solitary stand in the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko rejected majority plans for giving the proposed world atomic control authority power to own, manage and license the world's important atomic fuel plants and stockpiles.

The British delegation announced immediately after Gromyko's speech that it would ask him to forward to Moscow 10 questions formulated by the British government in London aimed at determining how far Russia might be prepared to go in adopting the majority's views on world atomic controls.

Gromyko charged that Deputy American Delegate Frederick H. Osborn had used an unfair basis for rejecting all of Russia's proposals on international atomic inspection and on international control of research and development of atomic energy.

Osborn turned down the Soviet proposals, Gromyko said, because they did not jibe with the principles demanded by the United States—and not because they failed to provide a basis for atomic control discussions.

Gromyko disclosed for the first time that the Russian atomic control plan submitted June 11, and rejected four days ago, was not intended as a complete working program for world atomic control. He said the Soviet proposals were offered only as a basis for discussion.

In rejecting the basic principles of the United States proposals, the Soviet delegate said they would infringe upon the sovereignty of small states.

"There has been an indication that such things as sovereignty and independence are outmoded in the atomic age and that, therefore, these questions do not exist," Gromyko said. "This is very erroneous and does not stand up under criticism."

Because of this, Gromyko said, Russia never would be able to

Refuels at Cairo On Global Flight For Solo Record

BULLETIN

London, Aug. 8 (INS).—A Karachi dispatch to Reuters said today that Capt. William Odom ended the fourth lap of his globe-girdling race and brought his silver plane, the Bombshell, into the Karachi Airport at 8:10 p. m. (EDT).

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 8 (AP).—William P. Odom, 22 hours and 46 minutes out of Chicago and a third of the way around the world in his try for a new solo record, rode his "Bombshell" toward Karachi, India, on a tail wind tonight.

In a 55-minute stop here he took on 500 gallons of gasoline for his plane and a single glass of orange juice for himself.

His converted U. S. Army bomber, the "Bombshell," checked out of Farouk airfield at 6:39 p. m. (11:30 a. m. EST) just as the sun was setting across the Nile Valley.

He gave the control tower a crisp "thank you" over his radio and headed down the 2200-mile leg to Karachi.

Odom, still fresh despite lack of sleep, was confident that he would be back in Chicago on Sunday. The former British ferry command airman, now living in Roslyn, N. Y., wants to cut to 90 hours or less the 186-hour solo record set by Wiley Post in 1933 for around the world flight.

He said he would stop at Karachi and Tokyo and probably also at Calcutta and Shanghai. He arrived from Paris at 5:44 p. m.

He had covered about 6500 miles of the 19,600-mile route he had mapped.

Flight Planned in Cubs

New York, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—A projected round-the-world flight will begin tomorrow at 10 a. m. (EDT) from Teterboro, N. J., when two 100-horsepower Piper Cub light planes take off for Goosebay, Labrador.

Pilots George Truman, Saskatchewan, Canada, and Clifford V. Evans, jr., Washington, D. C., said they will fly their planes close to each other during the entire flight. A round-the-world flight has never been attempted in a plane of less than 572 horsepower.

The pilots expect to complete their flights in about 30 to 40 days.

Black Buicks Redden Faces Here to Brazil

By Charles J. Yarbrough
Post Reporter

The United States' newest automobile export was on its way to Brazil yesterday—a black Buick trimmed with red faces.

Brightest hue must be on the face of Mrs. Othella Pompier of the Brazilian Aeronautical Commission, who sent John P. Costianes' Buick to Brazil by mistake. She thought it belonged to her employer, Lieut. Col. Jose Vincente de Faria Lima.

Next in shade must be the Metropolitan Police, the Baltimore police and New York port authorities, in about that order.

Parked Nearby

Costianes of 6501 6th st. nw., owner of the Trio Restaurant at 1537 17th st. nw., parked his 1946 Buick roadmaster with red leather upholstering on Church st. between 17th and 18th sts. nw., at 6:10 p. m. of July 25.

About the same time, Mrs. Pompier was receiving from a dealer, the 1947 Buick Roadmaster, with red leather upholstering, just purchased by Colonel Lima. She drove it to a parking place two cars removed from Costianes' 1946 Buick Roadmaster with red leather upholstering. Then she went to Commission offices around the corner at 1501 18th st. nw. and made final preparations to take it to New York for shipment to Brazil the following day.

At 8:30 p. m., she went back to get the car, found the keys wouldn't fit. She called the Commission, where she was told to call the American Automobile Association. The AAA sent her a locksmith who, for $4.50, made a key to fit.

Reports Car Stolen

She drove the car away, left it at her home overnight and started for New York the next morning, preceded by her brother in another car. In Baltimore traffic, she became lost from her brother, went to police headquarters, gave them the license number of her brother's car and of the one she was driving.

Meantime, Costianes came out of his restaurant at 10 p. m., found his car gone and so reported to police. By usual methods, the stolen car notice went out on police radio and by teletype to nearby Maryland and Virginia.

The next day, a daily summary of stolen cars, complete with license numbers goes out from North Carolina to Maine and as far West as Columbus, Ohio.

There Till Yesterday

Meanwhile, Lieutenant Colonel Lima's 1947 black Roadmaster Buick with red leather upholstering and only a few miles' use, remained in its parking place.

It remained there until yesterday.

Leton K. Evans, 1301 Saratoga ave. ne., brother-in-law of the automobile-less Costianes, said he had noted the new car sitting

President Asks All For Voluntary Control, Rebukes Congress

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday signed legislation signaling an end to controls over installment buying November 1 but rapped Congress for not keeping a rein on credit and urged all hands to avoid an "easy payment" inflation orgy.

"Self-restraint on the part of those who use credit as well as upon the part of those who extend it," he said in a statement, "will reduce the danger of an over-expansion of installment credit which would inevitably be followed by severe contraction, thereby contributing to unemployment and to reduced production."

Mr. Truman's urgings were in line with those of many bankers who are worried over possible abuse of credit facilities. Carl N. Flora, chairman of the consumer credit committee of the American Bankers Association, said: "The days of a dollar down and a dollar a week should not return. Excessive debt should not be made attractive and merchandised in easy payments."

Used to Fight Inflation

To the retailers, finance companies and the consumers, Mr. Truman's action today means an end within a little less than three months of Federal credit curbs which have required:

A down payment of at least one-third, with the balance to be paid off in 15 months or less, on automobiles, stoves, mechanical dish washers, ironers, refrigerators, washing machines, radios and some other items.

A down payment of at least one-fifth, with the balance to be paid within 15 months, on furniture and rugs.

The controls were instituted during the war as an anti-inflation measure. Mr. Truman asked Congress this year for a definite ruling on their continuance, saying he did not want to take it on himself to extend them during peacetime by executive order.

Uses 3-Month Allowance

Congress responded by a resolution saying they should be ended by November 1. Mr. Truman interpreted the resolution thus:

"Continuation for the next three months of present controls . . . has, however, been permitted and implied by the Congress and this is preferable to immediate abandonment of these restraints. For that reason I have signed the bill."

The President expressed regret that Congress did not go along with recommendations of the Federal Reserve Board and the President's Council of Economic Advisers, "in which I fully concurred."

These recommendations, he said, were for legislation "to provide for continuing as long as

Other Complaints Revealed

Negro Veteran Identifies Two As Detectives Who Beat Him

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Two detectives were picked from a lineup late yesterday by a Negro war veteran as the men who beat him at Police Headquarters after his innocence was established.

Julius Willie Clegg, 26, 1106 21st st. ne., selected the two from among 10 detectives in the presence of Chief of Detective Floyd A. Truscott and Clegg's attorney, Roger Robb.

Truscott declined to reveal their identity until completion of the investigation "about the middle of next week." He said the men would not be suspended until the full investigation bears out the charges filed by Attorney Robb.

Robb accused police of the First Precinct with holding Clegg for 34 hours without preferring charges or allowing him to telephone his home or employer. He asked Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett to file trial board and criminal charges against two detectives of the Sex Squad who beat Clegg after a police lineup last Saturday night. No one could identify the war veteran as a Negro who molested white women.

Truscott declared both detectives denied assaulting Clegg.

A reporter of The Washington Post who walked into the Sex Squad office while Clegg was being interrogated was told by detectives the complaint was minor and that they planned to release Clegg. The reporter left soon afterwards.

Upon completion of the investigation, the report will be sent to

Hisses and Cheers Mark Movie-Like Inquiry; Marshals Pursue Publicist

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

"Johnny" Meyer, party-giving press agent for Howard Hughes, was being pursued last night by United States marshals with a Senate subpena.

At one of the stormiest sessions of its entire strife-ridden existence, the Senate War Investigating Committee learned yesterday that the party-throwing "public relations director" had vanished.

Hughes, who has frequently boasted he would never appear on the same witness stand with the man he paid to entertain Government big shots, openly laughed at committee failure to find his press agent.

Ferguson Sputters

"No, I will not bring him back," Hughes shouted. "You want to put him on the stand with me and make a publicity show out of this thing."

The special Hollywood version of the horse-laugh, the needle and the hot-foot had Subcommittee Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) redly sputtering with rage and banging an ash tray.

The committee had the balding, pudgy self-styled "cupid" in the romance between Elliott Roosevelt and Faye Emerson under subpena until Thursday night. He was told to remain yesterday as well but the subpena ran out and so, apparently, did he.

Sought in New York

So a new subpena was issued by a fuming Ferguson with furious orders to U. S. marshals to bring back the missing man.

The possibility that Meyer might have taken off for the skyscrapers of New York is being investigated despite the fact that Meyer is reported to be determined to keep out of that city indefinitely. A warrant is out there for him in connection with a paternity suit brought by a former nightclub cigarette girl.

As yesterday's episodes in the Hughes real-life scenario developed, the crowd hissed Ferguson and applauded Hughes.

A small but determined group clapped whenever Hughes appeared, laughed at his wisecracks and muttered at his setbacks.

Ferguson several times threatened to clear the room and Capitol policemen took their stand among the audience with orders to throw out the first one to start another demonstration.

The subpena for Meyer was quickly followed by another subpena—this time for Hughes' personal bank accounts and records.

Hughes protested it would take a truck to bring the documents—300 pounds or so.

"Do you want a truck driven right in here?" queried Hughes.

As the morning hearing recessed for lunch, Hughes was handed a subpena commanding the appearance of the records.

The storm subsided when Hughes and the committee agreed that it would be sufficient to have William Rogers, committee counsel, and Noah Deitrich, executive vice president of the Hughes Tool Co., go over the papers together.

The papers were produced and the two started working on them in the committee office yesterday afternoon, away from the klieg lights and movie cameras in the Senate caucus room.

Other developments yesterday were:

1. Hughes finally got around to telling the committee he has already spent $7,200,000 of his own money, and expects to spend $2,500,000 more on "Hercules," the giant cargo boat he does not guarantee to fly.

2. He acknowledged that he has charged up his personal investment in the plane against his business costs, thus cutting down his tax so that the investment would actually be about $3,400,000.

3. Attorney General Tom Clark yesterday notified Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) that, when the committee completes its investigation, he will turn hi sattention to a study of charges made by Hughes against Brewster, chairman of the full Senate War Investigating Committee.

4. The Maine Republican indicated to reporters that he might request the Justice Department to charge Hughes with criminal libel based on published statements that Brewster tried to "blackmail" Hughes into a merger of TWA with Pan American. He did not express any conviction that the Justice Department would take such an action.

5. Brewster apologized for but did not withdraw a published statement that an airline hostess was afraid to ride alone with Howard Hughes. "I am most regretful if I embarrassed the young lady in her occupation," Brewster told the press.

6. Deitrich testified that Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, assistant chief of staff for air, had told him he would never give a contract to Howard Hughes, because "he didn't like him."

7. Hughes contended the Government will get full value in research information for 23 million dollars or so put into his flying boat, "The Hercules."

8. The plane producer testified that he had never guaranteed the plane would fly, nor made any commitment on delivery date.

9. If the plane is a failure, he said, he takes full responsibility for it. He told the committee he wanted to absolve Henry Kaiser, who was in on the project at first and later withdrew, from any responsibility.

Early Refuses

The committee tried to get Hughes' testimony on the relation to the press agent to the sale of the photo reconnaissance plane, the F-11.

Previously the committee had learned that in 1942 Russell Birdwell had sent a letter to the late Marvin McIntyre, assistant to President Roosevelt, informing him that Hughes would "soon send into the sky" the world's fastest plane of this type, and asking for a White House announcement.

Stephen T. Early, President Roosevelt's press secretary, had refused to take the matter up with the President because he knew "this fellow Birdwell and he's just a high-powered Hollywood press agent."

Jones' Wording Similar

At about the same time, Jesse Jones, then head of RFC, sent a memorandum to President Roosevelt containing language strikingly similar to that used by Birdwell, including the phrase will "soon send into the sky."

Hughes denied that Birdwell was on his payroll for the purpose of selling the plane—then termed a D-3 or a D-5—to high Government officials.

Later under repeated questions Hughes admitted that "we may have told" Birdwell to publicize the plane, which later became the F-11 recommended by Elliott Roosevelt.

Jones had testified under oath that he did not believe he had met Birdwell, although he met "so many people."

Deitrich, who spent most of the morning at the side of Hughes, told the Senators that he had questioned a $2040.65 expense account submitted by Birdwell which included an item for entertaining Jones.

Questioned Jones

Deitrich said the expense account turned in by Birdwell listing Jones' name was called to his attention by one of the company's auditors.

Jones, he told the committee, was a personal friend, and so he called him up and asked him about the entertainment.

"He denied that he had been entertained by Birdwell," Deitrich said.

"I doubted all the time that he would have accepted entertainment from Birdwell or any other man," Deitrich added.

"Did Jones tell you that he had spoken to the President (President Roosevelt) about this (the possible cancellation of the cargo boat contract)?" asked Ferguson.

"He said nothing about it," Deitrich reported.

Jones Intervenes

According to previous testimony, the War Production Board had decided to cancel the cargo boat contract when Jones intervened by seeing President Roosevelt after a cabinet meeting.

The President, according to Jones, said the contract should be continued, and Jones so notified the War Production Board.

Deitrich testified that he had an affidavit from Birdwell stating that he had not entertained Jones even though the item was on his expense account.

"Then there is no question that Jones was not entertained?" Ferguson queried.

Birdwell Begs Off

Pressed about details, Hughes said he "thought" Lloyd Wright, a company attorney, had obtained the affidavit from Birdwell.

"Why did he just take it on this one item of entertainment," asked Ferguson.

Resorting to one of his standby suggestions, Hughes said:

"You'll have to ask the man who took the affidavit."

Deitrich later explained that Birdwell had informed Wright it would be "inconvenient" for him to come to Washington to testify at the inquiry.

The committee sent Birdwell a telegram several days ago requesting his presence at the inquiry.

Birdwell replied that he was ill and under a doctor's care.

"Sweated in Washington"

Later in the afternoon the committee swung back into discussion of the reasons why the canceled contract had been suddenly reinstated.

Ferguson said that additional witnesses from the Defense Plant Corporation, which was under Jesse Jones' RFC, would be called to tell of the "pressure" put on them by the Hughes Tool Co.

Hughes said he had "sweated in Washington" for five weeks to keep the contract from being canceled.

"Yes, we're going into the way you sweated," replied Ferguson tersely.

Do You Mean Johnny?

Ferguson asked Hughes why WPB Chairman Donald Nelson had notified the then Senator Harry S. Truman in 1944 that the contract was to be canceled, and outlined delivery dates which had been expected.

"Senator," flipped Hughes," I shan't attempt to explain what Mr. Nelson wrote to Senator Truman. That's his problem. I suggest you call him."

It was during the discussion of the Birdwell activities that the question of the whereabouts of John Meyer was raised.

"Do you know where Johnny Meyers is?" queried Ferguson.

"Do you mean Johnny Meyer?"

"Meyer or Meyers, where is he?" manded Ferguson beginning to flush.

"I don't know," shrugged Hughes.

"Well, he was supposed to be here this morning, but now I'm informed that he cannot be located."

The spectators burst into laughter, much of it coming from the "regulars" who have been steadily applauding Hughes.

"This is nothing to laugh about," snapped the angry Ferguson.

"Senator, that's someone back there laughing," replied Hughes in butter - wouldn't - melt - in - your-mouth tones.

"You laughed, too," said the Senator.

Spectators Titter

Ferguson asked what Meyer's specific job was for Hughes.

"I guess you'd call him director of public relations; at least that's one of his jobs," said Hughes. Once again, the spectators tittered. Meyer used to handle "public relations" for Errol Flynn when the press-agent was employed by Warner Brothers.

"Why don't you know where Meyer is?" pressed Ferguson angrily, "He's in your employ, isn't he?"

"So are about 28,000 other people," Hughes quipped. "Am I supposed to know where all of them are every day?"

"Will you see to it that Meyer comes in for the 2 o'clock session," the chairman asked.

"I will not," shot back Hughes defiantly. "He works for me and you've had him available long enough. What he's doing now is more important than being here.

D. C. Man Drowns Near Riva, Md., Trying to Aid Wife

James Bruce Aldrich, of 3358 Blaine st. ne., drowned in the South River near Riva, Md., about 5 p. m. yesterday when he went to the aid of his wife.

A non-swimmer, Aldrich left the inner tube on which he was floating to help his wife after the inner tube she was using burst, Eastport police said. Rescuers reached her, but he went down.

His body was recovered from 10 feet of water in about eight minutes by Louis J. Weingart, of Riva.

Capt. W. T. Akins Of Texas Killed As P-80 Crashes

Williamsburg, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—Capt. William T. Akins of Hillsborough, Tex., attached to the 161st Reconnaissance Squadron at Langley Field, Va., was killed today when his P-80 jet went into a spin and crashed near this city.

Akins was married and was married and was residing with his wife near Langley Field.

An eyewitness said the plane was flying at about 5000 feet altitude when it suddenly "winged over" and then shot toward the earth. It exploded and burned when it struck.

Another Hughes Publicity Agent

RUSSELL BIRDWELL, who works for Howard Hughes' motion picture branch, was said by a Hughes aircraft official to have "padded" an expense account and incorrectly listed former Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones as one of the officials he entertained on a visit here, according to testimony yesterday before the Senate War Investigating Subcommittee

Vatican Denies 'Political' Meaning In Award to Peron

Vatican City, Aug. 8.—The protocol section of the Vatican denied today that there was any "political significance" in the recent award of a papal decoration to President John D. Peron of Argentina. It made the statement in reply to the controversy provoked by a recent editorial in The Washington Post commenting on the award.

"The award was given because of the relief work which President Peron has done since the war," said a Vatican official who declined to permit use of his name.

President Peron received the highest degree of the Vatican's third most important decoration. He was made a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of Pius IX.

Vatican officials said that Argentina, under Peron's administration, has been one of the largest contributors to the Vatican's huge war relief organiaztion.

Rep. Gore Hits Probe of Hughes As 'Nauseating'

Representative Gore (D., Tenn.) said last night that the Senate subcommittee investigating Howard Hughes' warplane contracts is "nauseating" and is "piteously succeeding in lowering the prestige of Congress."

Gore said in an address prepared for radio that Republicans "excuse their failure to live up to an irresponsible pledge . . . of promised (budget) reductions of six billion dollars . . . upon the fact that a Democrat is in the White House."

"Well there are some things that cannot be blamed upon the President," he added. "He didn't recommeend the wasting of the people's money to carry on a lot of junk and useless publicity-seeking investigations such as the nauseating Brewster committee."

Gore claimed total budget reductions amouned to "only $1,267,000,000 and most of that, and maybe more, will be restored by efficiency appropriations next year."

Taft-Hartley Law Invoked in Strike Boycott Suit

Cincinnati, Aug. 8 (AP).—The International Truck Drivers, Chauffeurs and Helpers Union (AFL), Local 500, and three union officials were sued for $100,000 today on charges of violating the boycott section of the new Taft-Hartley labor law.

Moskowitz Brothers, scrap dealers, filed the suit in United States District Court, alleging they suffered $100,000 damages through a strike called July 28 while a petition for a bargaining agent for its workers still was pending with the National Labor Relations Board.

They accused the union and its agents of having "induced and encouraged certain firms, corporations and persons to cease using, selling, handling, transporting or otherwise dealing in the products of the plaintiff."

Street Loudspeakers Given Until Sept. 15 to Pipe Down

Are your nerves shattered by music and commercials sounding off on the public streets? Do you shun the vicinity of radio stores and other emporia which operate on the theory that the more noise they make, the more they will sell?

If your mental health is tottering and your head aches from hearing headache remedies dinned into your ears as you pass by blaring loudspeakers in the shopping sections, you have achampion who is going to do something about it.

He is Clark F. King, assistant corporation counsel in the Criminal Division of Municipal Court, who announced yesterday that shop owners with noisy devices have until September 15 to turn off the dang things.

After that, he will prosecute owners of offending devices, he said, and stiff penalties under the application of the code, which provides a maximum of $2300 fine or 90 days in jail, or both.

King estimated he had received about 100 complaints recently about loudspeakers sounding off outside of stores, from people who told him the mechanical yap-yapping kept them from (1) sleeping, (2) hearing their own radios, (3) carrying on conversations or (4) walking along sidewalks blocked by impromptu radio-television audiences.

Prosecutoins will follow justified police or citizen complaints after September 15, King said, who added that the District has been lenient up to now because there were few complaints until recently, when the racket apparently became deafening. The District has been enforcing anti-blast statutes only in cases where the noise was out of this world.

Canada Seeks No U. S. Loan, Official Says

Ottawa, Aug. 8 (AP).—Canada's record adverse trade balance with the United States is approaching a "critical stage," a government official said today, but he denied rumors that Canada might seek a loan at Washington to help bridge the gap.

The Canadian press reported speculation in unofficial circles that such a loan might be sought, but the government spokesman indicated that Canada had not considered such a step, and he added that no thought had been given to placing restrictions against United States imports.

$603,000,000 Last Year

Canada's adverse trade balance with the United States last year amounted to 603 million dollars, and present estimates are that the 1947 figure will top 900 million dollars. The adverse balance in the first four months of this year reached a record total of $296,300,000.

The official said he felt that the country could ride out the storm, caused to a large extent by Canadians buying large quantities of American goods which have come to the market in good supply since the war.

Could Revalue Dollar

The Canadian press said unofficial observers believed that if the situation became desperate a United States loan of possibly 500 million dollars might be considered by the government.

Increased exports to the United States would relieve the situation or American purchases in Canada of relief supplies would help, the government spokesman said. Another measure might be to revalue the Canadian dollar, now pegged at par, but Finance Minister Douglas Abbott has said that Canada has no intention of doing this.

ican film companies in Britain.

"This proposal was submitted to responsible British cabinet ministers prior to the announcement of the government's action. It would have benefited all and injured none."

Double Taxing Charges

The MPA head asserted that "for three and a half years after the war began we supplied an undiminished, uninterrupted flow of entertainment to British civilians and the British services and cheerfully agreed to the blocking of millions of dollars," but added that the new tax has reversed "the successful wartime experience of mutual cooperation."

Johnston said the American industry believes the levy violates the double taxation treaty, the British-American reciprocal trade agreement of 1938 and the British loan agreement, and also "deals a severe blow to those who have held such high hopes of an early settlement of the world's economic problems through international agreements and cooperation."

American film producers now are reported to derive between 15 and 20 per cent of their gross film rentals from England.

It's Blow to British

London, Aug. 8 (AP).—The icy wind of the economic crisis blew smack down the neck of the British little man—and his little wife—today with the news that no more Hollywood movies would be crossing the Atlantic.

"This is the last straw!" declared the wife of an electrical engineer. "Going to the films is the only recreation I have—and if they take away American films . . . well, I'm patriotic and all that, but there's nobody like Clark Gable in British pictures."

Motion picture theater managers echoed the harried housewife's complaint and warned that hundreds of cinema palaces are likely to close because of the shortage of British pictures. Britain produces about 45 films a year to take up 20 per cent of the screen playing time while foreign films—principally from Hollywood—provide the rest.

Britain's big movie producers, worried for fear a retaliatory tax might be placed on British films in the United States, were not talking, a spokesman for J. Arthur Rank, Britain's biggest producer, said "no comment" on news of the embargo on Hollywood films.

When the present six months' stock of Hollywood pictures is exhausted, the double feature probably will go out the window and from Sunday through Saturday the local moviehouse will show the same old picture, probably a British one or an American revival, again and again.

The Hollywood film famine brought joy to several sections of the British population, including the higher brow critics and the parent-teacher members.

"On the rare occasions when I allow my children to visit the cinema," a London vicar's wife said, "I want them to see a wholesome picture—none of that Hollywood slapstick or sloppy sentimentality, and certainly not that frightful nasal accent."

Blow to Hollywood, Too

Hollywood, Aug 8 (AP).—The biggest problem in years faced American motion picture producers today in meeting inevitable economic readjustments entailed in the loss of the British cinema market through imposition of a 75 per cent English tax on imported films.

The consensus here was that retrenchment is inescapable, but time and many conferences will be required to determine a specific program. Speculation, meanwhile, embraced such possible effects as cheaper pictures, lowered actors' salaries and higher boxoffice prices.

Commons Grants Powers Despite Churchill

is worse, far worse, for the country than it ever was in the full blast and severity of the war. Do you deny it?"

"Yes," came a shout from the Labor benches.

Churchill also turned a sharp personal attack on Attlee and several members of the government, declaring he was "filled with suspicion" of their purposes.

Attlee, he said, was "increasingly an amused passenger in the pleasure boat" and the bill would give Emmanuel Shinwell, Minister of Fuel and Power, "the power to carry into effect his doctrine that only organized labor matters and that the rest of us are not worth a tinker's cuss."

Food Minister John Strachey announced that he already had stopped buying food from the U. S. and other "hard currency" countries except where long-term contracts interfered.

Strachey said the housewife would feel the first impact of the new food cuts when the consumer's monthly food-point allowance is reduced from 32 to 28 on August 17. Points are needed to buy a variety of foods such as canned goods, macaroni, dates and jam. A single can of American peaches now requires 20 points.

Part of Text of Speech By Winston Churchill

London, Aug. 8 (AP).—Part of the text of Winston Churchill's speech:

I object to being asked to give reinforcement to those powers which, in the two years they had been operating since the end of the war, had done more to frustrate than to help forward Britain's recovery.

The government used their majority in 1945 to brush aside our request for a two years period and insisted on these powers ruling for five years which, also, was the normal life of the Parliament.

These powers are a negation of British freedom and the British way of living in time of peace. . .

We think on the whole they have been injurious, even in the first two years after the war. We also consider that, after every allowance has been made for the difficulties of the aftermath (of war) and of our national fatigue, the main cause of at least half of our troubles has arisen from the partisan policies and administrative incompetence of the government.

Distrusts Fair Play

We have no confidence in their ability and, apart from wartime memories amongst some of us, we find it difficult to trust their sense of fair play. . .

Under the 1945 act and the regulations made upon it, the government can now direct labor. . . . This power to choose or change occupations hitherto was considered the mark of the difference between free democracy and serfdom in one form or another.

It is already in their power. They have not dared to use it, not because they have not got the legal power to use it but because they are in fear of arousing the spirit of the British nation which in time of peace has always stood up for these fundamental liberties. . . .

We all know their overriding powers in matters of finance. The whole country wilts under the burden of their devastating or confiscatory taxation.

Only Bloodshed Missing

We are entitled to ask . . . what more do you want? And what do you want it for? And we shall endeavor to extract far more precise and straightforward answers to that question than any that has been volunteered by the Lord President (Herbert Morrison) this morning. . . .

Does anyone pretend the transition from war to peace is over?

How can that be contended? Of course we all know that socialism involves the privation and squalor of war prolonged indefinitely in times of peace: The more painful to endure because they have to be borne without the excitement, stimulus and glory of having to defend the home and freedom from the foreign foe. . . .

Except for bloodshed, all the evils of war, and worse, are going on in our country today. Life under the Socialist government is worse, far worse, for the country than it ever was in the full blast and severity of the war.

I cannot believe that any court could so affront human reason and so depart from the character of British justice as to rule that the transition from war to peace is already over.

Morrison Breaks In

When a brief that is obviously false is put forward about the doubt of the courts about the transition between peace and war being over—about the miners being so embarrassed in their deft and assured handling of affairs that they fear stretching ever so little the exact boundaries of legality, I am filled with suspicion.

At any rate, if the only wish of the government is to make sure the 1945 act, with all its vast powers in full activity, is not hampered by a new construction by the courts, why did they not bring in a simple bill stressing that such was the case and giving a reasonable assurance?

(Herbert Morrison interjected: "That is what we have done.")

That has not been done at all and I will read out to the House extracts which will show how far the muttered interjection of the Lord President is lies.

(Churchill then read to the House: this abstract: "Generally for insuring that the whole resources of the community are available for use and are used in a manner best calculated to serve the interests of the community.)

Fears Totalitarianism

. . . Applied in its full force, that would be a complete abrogation of Parliament, a complete abrogation of our long cherished liberties anad rights.

It is not only governments which have rights. The ordinary Britsh people have them, too.

The only guarantee we should have that Sub Section C (from which he had quoted) is not to be abused is in the character of the ministers and the confidence we place in them.

We are asked to give a blank check for totalitarian government—for that is what it is.

We are told these powers are no greater than those granted the government of which I was head in 1940. That was a moment when invasion, death and physical destruction of our whole race and state seemed to be at hand.

Moreover, there is a great difference in entrusting powers to a government representative of all the parties of the nation, joined together in a common cause, and entrusting them to men who barely held a majority in the country even in 1945, and in the past few years have again and again shown themselves to put party always before the country.

Gives Shinwell Power

Who is going to wield these powers? Not only the Prime Minister, who seems increasingly an amused passenger in the pleasure boat. The clause I read out would give the Minister of Fuel and Power (Emanuel Shinwell) the power to carry into effect his doctrine that only organized labor matters and that the rest of us are not worth a tinker's cuss.

What would have been said at the time of Dunkerque if those in the little boats had said they were only going to take off the members of the trade unions and they did not care a tinker's cuss for the rest?

The minister who used those expressions still remained a member of the government in spite of his failure and he is retained in that position by the play of outside forces, but a more dangerous and certainly a more capable figure lies behind. It is the President of the Board of Trade (Sir Stafford Cripps). No one has ever doubted the sincere fanaticism of the President of the Board of Trade.

Sir Stafford Cripps has said, "The devising of the detailed administrative methods for working out the necessary plans are not matters over which the House of Commons need concern itself." There was an echo of that now in Mr. Morrison's speech. . . .

Voices Mystification

Are these powers in Section C of Clause 1, in the vague all-embracing terms, the kind of powers which should be entrusted to a man who had these views about this House and about the state in relation to ordinary men and women?

I am still mystified about the intentions and motives of the government. The Prime Minister's speech of Wednesday was universally judged to be inadequate to the crisis and vague in its character. Were the government trying to make up lack of deeds by boastful words?

Why should they come forward with all these demands for totalitarian powers when nothing that has been said by the Prime Minister or any of the ministers who spoke yesterday furnishes any substantial reason for their need?

Is it because they wish to get Parliament separated and away on holiday and then use these powers with irrevocable effect, or that, having no plan or design, they wish to cover up their vacuity with the assumption of sweeping powers?

What has been said by the Lord President of the Council and the attitude of the party opposite, especially that part of it which drives the rest, makes it clear that there is more behind this measure than we have been told.

While that impression lasts I cannot possibly avoid expressing the strongest opposition to the bill. For my own part I do not think there are any circumstances in time of peace when the words of Subsection C could be voted on by anyone who cares about the decent government of this country and the free life of its people.

Three Drowned In Plane Crash Off Le Guardia Field

New York, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—An American Airlines experimental radar DC-3 with five crewmen aboard plunged into the waters of Bowery Bay off La Guardia field tonight and police reported three of the men were trapped and presumed drowned.

The two-engined plane crashed when it overshot the runway in an emergency landing attempt after one engine failed.

The pilot, copilot and a mechanic were believed drowned when the plane settled into the water, police said. Two other mechanics, one of them injured, were rescued by a harbor police launch.

Navy Steps Up Plane Hunt

Kodiak, Alaska, Aug. 8 (AP).—Despite dwindling hopes for their safety, search for a missing PBY-5-A with 20 men aboard was stepped up by the Navy today and eight planes patroled over its last reported position and in the Dutch Harbor area.

U. S. Conciliator Acts in Strike At Murray Plant

Detroit, Aug. 8 (AP).—The Federal Conciliation Service intervened today in the 18-day-old Murray Corp. of America strike which is blamed for the idleness of 72,000 auto workers.

The Federal agency set up a three-member hearing panel to make recommendations to end the dispute. At issue was the CIO United Auto Workers' demand for contract provisions to exempt the union from financial liability under the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Intervention by the conciliation service followed union rejection of a company proposal described as a "modification" of the formula under which the coal industry and John L. Lewis settled their dispute of similar nature.

Emil Mazey, UAW-CIO regional director, said the Murray offer was rejected because it had "other strings attached." These were reported to include a union guarantee that all other differences during the effective period of a contract would be settled by arbitration.

Chinese Forces Pin Communists Against River

Nanking, Aug. 8 (AP).—The Communist army of Gen. Liu Po-cheng was reported today to be pinned against the Yellow River in southwestern Shantung Province, fighting a costly rearguard action while trying to escape across the flooded stream under government air attack.

The account, carried by the independent chain paper Hsin Min Pao, placed the center of action at Tungkow and said government planes already had sunk several ferries filled with Communists attempting to reach the comparative safety of the left bank.

There were no details, but pro-government dispatches Thursday had described such an operation as imminent and said the river was 5 miles wide in that sector.

2 Detectives Are Accused

the District Corporation Counsel before any trial board proceedings are made, Truscott declared.

Since June 21, five cases of alleged police "brutality" have been reported to the District branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, its executive secretary, William Allyn Hill, announced yesterday.

"The branch protests these instances of brutality and intends to see that the perpetrators of these deeds are singled out and punished," he declared.

"Throughout the year many complaints have reached this office. However, until June 1947, there was never any semblance of regularity. It is the impact of the fact that these cases occur now almost weekly that the branch feels that something must be done immediately to remove from the police force those officers who use their position to indulge in sadistic orgies."

Five Complaints Listed

He listed these complaints against beatings:

Ernest P. Norris, on June 21, reported "concerning brutality at the hands of policemen" from the First Precinct.

Emment Lewis Jones, on June 26, reported he had been treated with brutality by police at Seventh Precinct.

George McIllwain, on June 29, reported he was arrested by the First Precinct, turned over to Arlington County Jail "where he was brutally beaten" and returned to his home without any charges being made against him after being in custody 11 days.

James Henry Hatton, a disabled veteran, was "severely beaten" by police on July 18 from the Fourth Precinct "and was hospitalized as a result of this beating."

Mrs. Estella Brandon reported she was "illegally arrested" in front of her home "and subjected to abuse from police" of the Second Precinct.

Barrett Asked to Act

"It is highly probable that there are many more such cases which never reach an agency such as ours as a result of intimidation or fear of retribution of some kind," said Hill.

"We feel that Superintendent Barrett should take cognizance of this increase in violence and use his office to institute corrective measures at once."

Woolsey W. Hall, president of the Federation of Civic Associations, declared, "The majesty of the law is all that is required to ferret out crime, not brutality on the part of the law enforcement officers."

Finds $60 Is Due Him

Clegg, who was injured during the landing at Normandy while serving aboard an attack transport with the Coast Guard, found yesterday, through the police, that he had $60 due him.

Truscott looked up Clegg's police record and found that the only brush Clegg ever had was the result of a "retaliation warrant" for assault which had been nolle prossed.

The warrant was issued at the request of a cousin last May after Clegg took a pistol from her and turned it over to the police. The cousin was sentenced to serve six months. The sentence was suspended and she was placed on probation. But Clegg said he never went back for the $60 collateral he had deposited.

Police records showed he was never in custody before last Saturday.

Nicaragua to Grant Bases' Use for Defense

Managua, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—The United States or any other American Nation is granted the right to use military, air or naval bases in Nicaragua whenever needed for continental defense, under the proposed provisions of a new Nicaragua constitution, it was disclosed today.

The proposed draft also includes a provision empowering Congress to adopt laws designed to eradicate every Communist movement or influence in the country.

Radioactive Ships Arrive on Coast

By The Associated Press

The Navy announced yesterday that target ships which survived the Bikini atom tests 14 months ago have arrived at West Coast and Hawaiian ports and although still "unsafe" there is no danger to inhabitants.

The Navy said clean-up crews, working only a few hours a day are slowly and carefully removing the dangerous radioactivity contamination which "infected" the ships after the explosions. They are spraying the ships' paint with secret acids and washing down the vessels with special fluids.

The program is one of the Navy's most important projects in preparing against atomic warfare.

Truman Approves Sugar Quotas Bill

War Power Ended

Bill to Extend Mine Subsidy Is Vetoed

President Truman, vetoing a 70-million-dollar two-year subsidy for the mining industries, declared yesterday he sees "no adequate reason" to continue subsidies on copper, lead and zinc.

"Even less reason exists for adding to the list of subsidized commodities," Mr. Truman's memorandum of disapproval said. The bill would have brought manganese production under Federal support.

Mr. Truman declared that continuation of the wartime subsidies would clash with the country's peacetime objective of conserving domestic mineral resources.

Considered Best Time

"I am not unmindful of the dislocations in the mining industry which are caused by the expiration of the premium price plan," his statement continued.

"We must all agree, however, that we cannot regard this plan as a permanent part of our economy.

"It is clear that the changes in employment and other adjustments which are necessary at the time of the plan's termination, whenever it occurs, can be made more readily and with less hardship in a period of high employment and business activity, such as the present, than at any other time.

"Consequently this seems to be the best time for making this inevitable postwar adjustment."

The bill, authored by Representative Allen (R., Ill.), would have extended Federal premium payments on production from high cost mines for two years, ending June 30, 1949, with a limit of 35 million dollars on expenditures in the present fiscal year.

Little Production Aid

Mr. Truman noted that two years ago, when he signed the law authorizing these and other wartime subsidies, he urged that the programs be discontinued "as rapidly as feasible."

With the end of hostilities and price control almost all other wartime subsidies have been dropped, he said.

Continuance of the metal subsidy, he went on, would "contribute very little if at all," to the production of the metals which are now scarcest. Prices of copper and lead, the shortest items, have been so high for the last six months that only a negligible part of the output has been eligible for subsidy, Mr. Truman said.

"If the plan were restored, the great bulk of the subsidy payments, in fact, would continue to go for high cost production of zinc, the supply of which is becoming relatively ample. Similiarly, the industrial demand for manganese does not justify subsidy payments to make available a relatively minor increase in low-grade domestic ore."

'Bugsy's' Girl Friend Disembarks at Boston

Boston, Aug. 8 (AP).—Black-haired Virginia Hill, girl friend of slain gambler Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel, landed at Boston Airport aboard a trans-Atlantic plane today from Paris, and was rushed through a routine public health examination.

Siegel, 42-year-old night club operator, was shot to death in Miss Hill's spacious home in Beverly Hills, Calif., last June 20 while she was vacationing in Paris. Investigators said they had received threats on her life, but only the routine four-man State police detail was on guard at the Boston Airport.

Marshall Allays Fears by Cuba Of 'Unfriendly Act'

By The Associated Press

Legislation to fix quotas for foreign countries supplying sugar to the United States in times of surplus was signed by President Truman today with a State Department interpretation apparently satisfying Cuban protests.

Mr. Truman issued the interpretation, by Secretary of State Marshall. It said the law should not be viewed as "an economic threat to sugar-supplying nations of this hemisphere" nor as an "unfriendly act."

Meanwhile, a recapitulation showed the President signed 175 and pocket vetoed 19 other bills since the adjournment of Congress. He completed consideration of the last of the measures yesterday.

With regard to the sugar bill, Marshall took note of fears that one section carries a threat to other countries. This section says that if any foreign country is found to be denying fair and equitable treatment to United States nationals, the Secretary of State shall have authority to reduce its quotas.

Protests Clause

This section had been viewed as aimed at Cuba, which reportedly owes United States citizens about eight million dollars. The Cuban government protested the clause while it was pending in Congress.

Cuba then announced an intention to stay away from the forthcoming Inter-American Conference at Rio de Janeiro. It protested that the United States had violated Inter-American agreements against single-handed action by any Western Hemisphere nation in differences between it and another.

However, Marshall explained yesterday that no such lone-handed, or unilateral, action is intended. He said provisions of the questioned section "do not refer to basic quotas, but rather give discretion to withhold an increase in the quotas under certain conditions.

"It is quite incorrect to interpret this section as involving an unfriendly act. It is not intended to substitute or replace the orderly processes of settling differences, including international arbitration," he wrote.

Cuba Will Go.

Cuban Ambassador Guillermo Belt then told a reporter President Grau San Martin had accepted Marshall's explanation and "we will go to Rio."

Legislation continuing the special $1500 income tax exemption of members of the armed services until January 5, 1949, also was signed yesterday.

It also removes, effective January 1, 1949, the serviceman's exemption from payment of admission and transportation taxes; continues indefinitely the percentage depreciation allowances for mining of coal, graphite, fluorspar and other minerals, and extends the existing suspension of tariff duties on imports of scrap metal and coconuts.

A bill to permit mining for gold and other precious metals in navigable streams in Alaska also was signed yesterday by President Truman.

Likewise, he approved legislation revising the method of taxing transfers of capital stock and securities. Under the new law, a corporation recapitalizing will have to pay a stamp tax only on new capital instead of on all stock—both old and new.

accept the American plan for international ownership, management and licensing of global atomic fuel plants and stocks.

The Russian plan, he said, always envisaged merely international control—without provisions for ownership, or other rights.

"If the Soviet proposals are 'unacceptable' because they are not in conformance with the American plan," Gromyko said, "it is because we think the American plan is contrary to the Charter of the United Nations."

In referring to the majority proposal for international atomic control authority without the veto power, Gromyko said:

"No other organ can take away the rights of the Security Council. These rights are in the Charter."

Toilet Paper Shortage Blamed on Mill Policy

By The Associated Press

Continued shortages of toilet tissue and paper towels in some cities were attributed by some officials yesterday to the diversion of paper mill machinery to other paper products.

Facial tissues, now plentiful in drug stores after a 1946 scarcity, account for much of the toilet paper shortage.

Government paper experts reluctant to be quoted by name or agency for fear their remarks might seem critical of the industry, declared it "natural" that manufacturers would concentrate on the better-paying items.

Ross 'Hears' Reports Of Hannegan Quitting

By The Associated Press

White House Press Secretary Charles Ross said yesterday he had heard reports that Postmaster General Robert E. Hannigan would resign as Democratic national chairman but he had "no confirmation."

In Los Angeles, Hannegan said he would have a complete physical checkup September 1, and:

"After those checks have been made, my physician will make a recommendation as to the extent of my activities in the future."

fere in the domestic affairs of these countries which it is flooding with protests."

Raynor said he did not feel that this was the time or the place to answer the Soviet charges, but added that he felt the United States had ample justification for protesting against the suppression of freedom by the three former enemy states.

Brazilian Representative Henrique Souza-Gomez, in an angry reply, denied that the United States had ever attempted to "impose its views on other countries."

"If some countries have the habit of giving orders to neighboring countries," he asserted, "that is not the habit of the American countries."

Meanwhile, the Security Council's subcommittee which is attempting to find a compromise solution for the Balkans trouble met for the second time without result. France was reported to have suggested a group of conciliators while Colombia appealed to the United States and Russia to avert a "general crisis" in the U. N. by dropping all condemnation of Greece, Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria. If the suggestions can be used as a basis for discussion, the subcommittee will meet again.

there and expressed to police the possibility of a mix-up.

With a sigh of relief, Mrs. Pompier and her brother put the car through port authorities in New York. Then disturbing thoughts came upon her. It seemed there were sun glasses, a raincoat, a blanket and a charcoal burner in the car she shipped. There had been none in the 1947 black Buick Roadmaster the colonel had purchased.

Conference Today

Upon return here, she called police who still had Costianes' license number listed for his old Chevrolet.

Then she called the salesman. Truth began to dawn.

The colonel is rushing back from a California visit and there's going to be a conference of owners sometime today—owners of black Buick Roadmasters with red leather upholstering.

Automobile trading was suggested.

"I'll wait and see what kind of an offer I'll get," said Costianes.

British Willing To Resume Trade Talk With Soviets

London, Aug. 8—Britain has notified the Soviet government that it is willing to reopen the Anglo-Soviet trade talks, which broke down on July 25, Harold Wilson, secretary for overseas trade, announced tonight.

Denying that the British government, under pressure from the United States, had refused to resume the trade negotiations with Russia, Wilson said that at present Britain is awaiting a reply from Moscow to its most recent overture.

On January 29, Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, told the House of Commons that the prime reason for the breakdown of the trade negotiations had been the difficulty of reaching a settlement of the 1941 credit agreement debt owed by Russia to Britain of 55 million pounds.

Loyalists See Ramadier On Lifting Border Bars

Paris, Aug. 8.—Premier Paul Ramadier was reported today to be discussing with Spanish Republican leaders reopening France's Spanish border. The border has been closed since February 28, 1947.

Some Spanish Republicans are still in favor of keeping the barriers up, feeling that to lower them now would constitute a moral victory for Generalissimo Francisco Franco. Others say there is no reason why France single-handedly should suffer the economic inconveniences of cutting off her trade with Spain, if other nations refuse to join in the boycott.

necessary regulation of consumer credit as a means of helping to promote economic stability."

Self-Control Urged

Mr. Truman added that for an indefinite time beyond November 1 "it will be in the public interest for every merchant and financial agency extending installment credit to avoid undue relaxation of terms. It will be far better to reduce prices rather than to relax terms in seeking new customers."

The American Bankers Association this week recommended to its members the setting of minimum down payments after November 1 and maximum periods for settling the balance.

Likewise, the National Association of Manufacturers, while seeing some benefits from the flow of consumer credit, has argued:

"High-pressure sales by means of such credit are undesirable both from the point of view of the individual consumer and that of the consumer as a whole."

Little Effect Seen on Autos

The American Automobile Association recalled that before the war there was nothing beyond the seller's or financier's own standards to prevent car sales for as little as $10 down and $10 a month.

An AAA official told a reporter that he does not believe elimination of the credit controls will have "very much material effect for the time being." He reasoned that as long as the present "seller's market" exists with the automobile scarcity, the industry is not going back to a liberal credit market.

When he came again yesterday, the son said, he began abusing a horse and Anne remonstrated with him.

"He flew into a range, threatened to kill the horse and harm her," McMath said. "My wife said she ran into the house and picked up my old service revolver, which I kept in my desk, as a souvenir of what has happened out there in the Pacific.

"I know she would not have intentionally killed my father. She wouldn't have done it even to save her own life. She loved him just as much as I loved him."

No charge had been lodged against the wife pending an investigation by a grand jury next week.

The tragedy came while McMath who has been boomed for Governor or U. S. Senator, was in the midst of his biggest case—his prosecution of former Mayor Leo P. McLaughlin. It highlights his campaign to kill the gambling, vice and other rackets which flourished in the Hot Springs area under the McLaughlin regime before McMath was elected district attorney with the backing of returned GIs.

McMath won wartime fame when, among other exploits, he led an assault wave on Bougainville, carrying the revolver that killed his father last night.

McMath said the slaying "was clearly self-defense."

Illinois-Born Author Faces Treason Charge

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Edward Leo Delaney, Illinois-born author and radio announcer, was held in $10,000 bail today on a charge of treason alleging he broadcast political propaganda from Berlin during the war.

Delaney, born in Olney, Ill., had been in Europe since 1939 and was brought back under Army orders but at his own expense. He was indicted by a Washington grand jury for treason in July, 1943, but the case will be presented to a New York jury under a requirement that persons accused of treason be tried in the district in which they land from abroad.

Albanian Assembly Ouster of 9 Reported

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—The official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said in a dispatch from Tirana, Albania, today that the Albanian National Assembly had ousted nine members for "plotting" with Albanian war criminals abroad through "the Anglo-American mission."

The dispatch said the nine members "abused the people's confidence . . . formed a secret organization which collaborated with Albanian war criminals . . . with the "intention of overthrowing the people's authority."

Phony Rape

The skepticism with which many readers must have regarded the rape record reported in the United States seems to be justified by the comments of our local Women's Bureau chief, Capt. Rhoda J. Milliken. She says that most of the complainants admit under questioning that they are lying. Is this a case of exhibitionism? Not at all; it seems that many "assaultees" are married women seeking to establish an alibi for unfaithfulness, hoping in that way to divert the wrath of their menfolk. It is not a pretty picture that Captain Milliken discloses, and it leads to speculation about other types of sex crimes; the Black Dahlia type, for example. May it not be that the attackers in a good many of these cases are not sex fiends at all, but husbands or mates of women who have double-crossed them? These cases fortify Captain Milliken's explanation of the reason for the postwar rise in phony rape offenses.

Prevarication

Talking about prevarication in high places, there is a good deal of resentment in certain journalistic quarters over a practice that has apparently become standard among important Government officials who are about to resign from office. The practice is for the official, when questioned about rumors, to deny categorically that he has even contemplated such an action. These denials are followed in a few days, or sometimes in a few hours, by the formal announcement of the resignation. Two or three instances of this form of political duplicity have occurred within the last few months, and one especially notable instance has occurred within the last year.

The question raised here is one aspect of a most difficult ethical problem. We may assume for the sake of argument that the precise timing of the resignation is a matter of some importance to the official himself. In the case of officials of Cabinet rank it is customary for news of the resignation and of the nomination of a successor to be released simultaneously by the White House. A notable exception was the case of Secretary Ickes, who announced both his resignation and the reasons for it to a conference of reporters called by himself. In general, however, the custom is so well established that a departure from it has come to be construed as a breach of official good manners.

Thus it may be conceded that the official has the right, either for personal reasons or out of courtesy to the President, to conceal if he can the fact he intends to resign or that he has already done so. The question, then, is really whether he has the right to do so by a direct and deliberate lie. It may also be admitted that the reporter or correspondent, who has heard rumors of the resignation, has the right or even the duty of trying to find out whether they are false or true. Thus the matter is resolved into a game of wits between the official and the reporter. But where the possibility of lying is excluded, the advantage lies with the reporter, since any effort at evasion is pretty sure to be interpreted as an implicit admission.

Let us suppose for example that the official seeks refuge in some such formula as, "No comment," or "I have nothing to say on that subject at this time." The reporter will thereupon be satisfied that the rumor is correct, and merely by quoting the evasive answers of the official can persuade his readers to the same belief, knowing that his dispatch will be given some such heading as, "Whoosis Mum On Rumor He Will Quit." But if lying is admitted to be one of the prerogatives, as it is certainly one of the habits, of politicians, then all the advantage lies with the official. For if he replies, "Look here, Arthur; I don't know where you picked up that story, but for your private information there's absolutely nothing to it," the reporter is quite helpless. If he is inexperienced or naturally credulous he may go to the length of denying the rumor on his own responsibility, and thereby involve himself in the necessity of awkward explanations when the truth is revealed.

Long ago certain casuists, who examined this dilemma, produced a doctrine called Equivocation, namely, that it is permissible to use a formula of words which have one meaning for the speaker and another for the listener. It would be equivocation for the official to say he was not going to resign, and to mean that he had already resigned. Another effort to escape the dilemma was called Mental Reservation; the notion was that a person under examination could silently add something to his statement that would cancel the effect of what he said aloud. Thus the official could say to a reporter, "That story about my resignation is a dirty falsehood," adding under his breath, "if it also says that I am to be appointed governor general of Mars." There seems to be either mental reservation or equivocation at work in the Brewster-Hughes squabble.

Plane Survival

We hope that the separate congressional and presidential air policy boards that are probing America's ailing aviation industry will scrutinize the civil aspects of the industry as carefully as the military. Production of civilian transport planes plays a part in maintaining that healthy, well-rounded manufacturing potential which is essential to our national security. And it should be apparent that transport production has a dim future unless something is done to rescue the airlines from their desperate plight. They cannot order new planes unless they have the traffic to support them, and from the way things have been going, future transport orders soon will be just about nonexistent. It is on this point that we hope the policy boards will have some sharp words for Congress.

Civil aviation is particularly vulnerable to the whims of public confidence. The malady that has overtaken our airlines has been incubating a long time. It has its roots in the inability to maintain reliable schedules under adverse weather and in the unbelievable crazy quilts of congestion that have grown up at some of our major airports as well as in the psychological impact of the recent chain of disasters. The result is that airline finances are in abysmal shape. For the 12 months ended March 31, 16 domestic airlines had a net loss of $19,669,000 against a profit of $20,947,000 a year ago. The May and June crashes have further eaten into traffic when it should be at its peak. With one more winter like the last one, the airlines will be candidates for an economic poorhouse.

Congressional indifference has frustrated the one major remedy available for the distress. Adequate navigation and landing aids to lick both weather and traffic problems have definitely been proved practicable, despite the skepticism of some go-slow advocates who apparently are awaiting a panacea. The Civil Aeronautics Administration has made a start in this field. But the possibilities have been barely tapped. Radar, for instance, opens an almost unlimited vista of improvement. Radar beacons to guide aircraft on their courses, ground radar scopes to control bad weather landings and to simplify dispatching tangles, obstacle detectors to warn pilots against mountains and thunderheads—these already demonstrated applications would do wonders to make air travel safer and more certain.

Yet what was the congressional answer to CAA pleas for money to tackle the tremendous responsibilities it faces? Its research budget was cut to less than half what it asked, to a measly $1,600,000. Only two of the 23 ground control approach installations requested were approved. Approach light installations were reduced from 68 to 2. Instrument landing system additions were eliminated entirely. The alleged justification for this pound-foolish type of economy was summed up by Senator Ball when he asserted that more safety aids would merely bring more accidents by encouraging flying in bad weather. What, one may ask, does Senator Ball advocate for those who are already aloft when bad weather overtakes them?

Whatever the defections of the airlines in the present mess—and they were particularly short-sighted in the failure to look ahead in the heyday of the wartime boom when they talked lavishly of expansion—the responsibility for a solution is now governmental. It belongs to the Government first because the airways are federally operated, and second because the airlines simply are in no position to rescue themselves. If a strong aviation industry in all its components is essential to this country's safety and well-being, then Congress will have to step in promptly with funds. Even with the airlines contributing what they can in the way of taking up new devices as soon as they are approved, the remedy will be expensive. But it will be far less expensive now than if we allow the commercial transport segment of the aviation industry to decay. Thus it seems to us that in surveying the entire rounded picture of America's future in aviation, one of the first jobs of the policy boards should be a graphic program of air education for members of Congress.

Shiftless Dalton

Hugh Dalton, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, favors changes in the regulations governing operations of the World Monetary Fund that would enable the British to draw on its resources much more liberally. Britain's needs, he says, are not temporary in the sense meant by the present regulations. Consequently he wants the regulations modified to permit of long-term borrowing from the Fund. At this suggestion there must have been many raised eyebrows among the nations supporting the Monetary Fund, not to say the operators of it. For to accede to the Dalton idea would be to sign the death warrant of an exchange stabilization organization which was never intended to serve the purpose of a long-time lending agency.

The Monetary Fund was established for the purpose of advancing short-term credits to countries needing temporary assistance to cover deficits in their international balances of payments. The object was to enable them to maintain the exchange stability of their currencies while carrying out internal reforms essential to permanent maintenance of a sound currency system. Extensive precautions have been taken to prevent use of the Fund's resources as a long-run means of financing imports—by limiting the amount that could be borrowed by a member country in any single year and by denying access to the Fund to members who have abused their privileges by using Fund resources for long-term purposes. Changes in regulations that would permit the Fund's resources to be tied up for long periods of time would simply make it impotent to discharge its function as a stabilizing agency. Moreover, the Fund would also be usurping the functions of the World Bank, which was set up for the purpose of making long-term loans for internal rehabilitation and development purposes and promoting the international flow of long-term capital.

In short, acceptance of the Dalton proposals would wreck the international financial structure based on the Bretton Woods agreements, merely for the sake of providing Great Britain with additional supplies of dollars that, like preceding loans, would be swallowed up unless steps were promptly taken to put the country on a self-sustaining basis. Dr. Dalton's contribution to the British discussion on the economic crisis is marked by shiftlessness.

Labor Peacemaker

President Truman has assigned the important and difficult task of building a new Federal mediation service to a labor relations expert who happens to be a Republican and an industrialist—Cyrus S. Ching. One may be sure that it was not a case of giving a Republican a Government job or even of preserving a balance between industry and labor in making appointments under the Taft-Hartley Act. All of Mr. Ching's life may reasonably be said to have been spent in preparation for this assignment, and we surmise that he will have the confidence of both labor and industry in marked degree.

For a great many years Mr. Ching has been chief of industrial relations for the United States Rubber Co. He knows the employer's point of view. At the same time he has always had a keen appreciation of the employe's point of view, since he was a streetcar motorman in Boston. More important, he is interested in men and women as human beings. In the period of preparation for war in 1941 he was brought to Washington by Sidney Hillman. Later he became a member of the National Defense Mediation Board and of its successor, the National War Labor Board. In addition to this wide experience, Mr. Ching has the happy faculty of exuding good will and confidence. His rugged physique—he is 6 feet 7 inches tall—gives him a further advantage as the head of an agency that must often make its presence felt.

Congress notably strengthened the mediation function when it created the new independent Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. For the first time the Federal agents who attemp to settle labor disputes will have behind them a statute creating positive obligations on the part of employers and unions. Each is charged with the responsibility of bargaining collectively, of making every effort to settle its disputes and of cooperating with the Mediation Service. The party wishing to end a collective bargaining contract must notify the Mediation Service and give it an opportunity to use its good offices toward an amicable settlement before any strike or lockout can be indulged in with impunity.

We have previously referred to this section of the Taft-Hartley Act as probably its most positive aspect. The selection of Mr. Ching tends to emphasize that fact. We think the new Mediation Service, under his able direction, can be a powerful force in the cultivation of good industrial relations. It will be aided in this great undertaking by a 12-man National Labor-Management Panel with equal representation of employers and organized labor. If this agency functions as effectively on a national scale as similar boards reflecting the conscience of local communities have done, the occasions for invoking the more drastic provisions of the new labor law will be notably diminished.

Good Offices

Some idea of the difficulties of the Dutch in dealing with the Indonesian republic will be gained from Jogjakarta's reply to the American proffer of good offices. We have got the same kind of yes and no response that the Dutch have invariably received in their attempts to work out the self-rule agreement. The Indonesian republic is grateful for our offer, and asks that we go to the Security Council and second its plea for an international arbitration commission. However, we are asked to send a representative to Jogjakarta at once, in order that "the republic may more fully acquaint the United States with its official viewpoint." The interpretation of the note is that our demarche has been rejected.

It is likely that our consul general in Batavia is already on his way to Jogjakarta to hear the republic's official viewpoint. Perhaps, when there, he will be able to pave the way for a solution that would make the United States of Indonesia a reality. It would not be the first time that such an effort had been made. The real stumbling block to agreement is said to be over a jointly officered gendarmerie. The Republicans thought this an infringement of their sovereignty, the Dutch that it was necessary, in view of the prevailing lawlessness, for the protection of property. The point might have been ironed out, it is said, if the former Premier, Dr. Sjahrir, had stayed in office. But he was extruded by intransigents because he had invoked American good offices on a previous occasion in dissuading the Dutch from taking military action. Now that the eyes of the world are upon Java, perhaps the Indonesians will show signs that they want an agreement, though their cryptic note to the United States is hardly a good omen.

"Elliott's Round"

Your gay and insouciant editorial of August 6 about Elliott Roosevelt's testimony before the senatorial committee moves me to protest such a shocking example of inappropriate and lenient editorializing.

I learned at my parents' knees that influences for weal or woe were potent forces in the lives of all of us; and since Mr. Elliott Roosevelt's unsavory exploits over a number of years are common knowledge, it is little short of astounding to see you take a tongue-in-cheek, "twinkling" attitude toward this discredited young man. The very caption of your editorial "Elliott's Round" implies a clement, if not actually commending attitude, and I am wondering what the recation will be on our impressionable youth, to see Elliott Roosevelt virtually applauded in your columns, and actually applauded in the committee room.

Whether or not Mr. Roosevelt was doing "exactly what hundreds of officers and civilians were doing," is beside the point, and in no wise justifies him; for if his own sense of ethics and good taste didn't restrain him, he must have known that as the President's son he was placed in a vulnerable position. Therefore his department, both personal and official, should have been above reproach.

I feel quite sure that your cavalier approach to Mr. Roosevelt's problems will not alienate one of the Roosevelt admirers, but equally as sure that my point of view will be shared by an unamused multitude.

RUTH BRABSON OVERTON.
Arlington.

. . . General Roosevelt, though a target for varied criticism, didn't receive any rewards for cowardice, gold-bricking or backtracking nor did his outfit seem to impair or retard operations for winning a war. That he and his commands did good jobs has never been questioned with any degree of success. I'm one veteran, and still a serviceman, who hasn't heard any of the gripes and bitterness about him—or his brothers for that matter—that one hears from GIs about other high ranking officers who have not been subjected to investigation, criticism or distrust. I have heard him lauded and respected by combat men. R. S. K.

Social Ills

For quite some time I have intended to write you concerning your forward views with regard to social legislation and social improvement. The tenor of your whole paper seems to be flavored with a humaneness which is greatly enhanced by the periodic presentation of the views of people like Mrs. Agnes Meyer and Miss Malvina Lindsay. They both seem to possess an uncanny insight with respect to the problems of the moment.

In view of the chaotic condition of local and world affairs, it has been my hope for the past few months that your paper would devote more space to discussion, analysis and diagnosis of the ills of society which are manifestly destroying us day by day.

The people ought to know, indeed, they have a right to know the reasons for the upsurge in mental ailments, the causes of our high rate of divorces, the outstanding causes of alcoholism, juvenile crime and other social ills. They ought to be told what social legislation is needed to cure these ills and curb their consequences.

The Washington Post stands in a position to make such a contribution to the citizens of Washington; the citizens of Washington need the contribution which The Washington Post can make.

British Mandate

Our allies, the British, have suffered many losses and are now in a very sad economic plight indeed. Even Churchill is prepared to support the request for a second loan from the United States. Suggestions have been made for a closer political integration of the United States and Great Britain.

I believe that such political integration would be more beneficial to the British than repeated loans. As to form, I suggest that Great Britain be placed under our care as a mandate until she is better able to care for herself. Since there is rioting in the streets and destruction of property at present, an occupying United States police force would be necessary to keep the public peace. It goes without saying that dissident elements would not be tolerated and would be immediately suppressed by vigorous measures. It is supposed that since this method is similar to that currently in use by the British with respect to their mandates, it would not be objectionable to England.

In this way, England can once more hope for an economic recovery without the prospect of a heavy debt to mar its balance sheets in the future. Furthermore, she would thus provide us with that necessary bulwark against communism we so much require.

Un-American Activities

May I comment on the July 31 letter by Charles D. Potter entitled "'Red' Scare Smokescreen"? He questions the necessity "in defending our democratic system against agents of a police state to transform our Government into a Fascist oligarchy, with the FBI and the Thomas Committee on Un-American Activities acting as our 'thought police'."

We shudder at the thought of a situation such as a "police state"; we hoped that the U. N. might curb the unhealthy state of mind of totalitarianism such as is exhibited in the Soviet Union's "intolerant political philosophy." But according to some reports, Russia is planning on continued chaos in Europe, and such reports leave no doubt in mind that the Soviets are adamant in their preference for isolationism.

Mr. Potter is evidently not in accord with the accomplishments of the Un-American Activities Committee, albeit they have been noted with complete satisfaction, and in one columnist's words, "If ever a congressional investigation has proved its worth to the taxpayers, that one has." Mr. Potter is also skeptical as to the reactions to communism drifting into a Fascist state.

Proper reactions to the exposed attempts to undermine our system of democratic government can hardly be termed "fascism." To exhibit no reactions at all would be mockery to the traditions of a pioneered America, whose practices and customs have been handed down by those who believed that their cooperation and strength, mingled with intellect and a pious loyalty, would reap privileges and benefits for all mankind.

Free World Market

While the food production of the world is by no means sufficient, it is not nearly as deficient as some politicians and nutrition experts try to make us believe.

As for wheat, the world crop in 1946 was larger than the average for the five years immediately preceding the war. There is every indication that in 1947 it will be still larger. It should be made clear that this statement applies not to single countries, but to the world as a whole.

While some scarcity of meat and fats undoubtedly prevails in the world, the reiterated assertion that there is a world scarcity of wheat is nothing but a rank falsehood, put forward to conceal the truth that the available quantities are inefficiently distributed. The problem of distribution—of wheat as well as of every other agricultural and industrial product—will not be resolved until the free world market and its corollary, the free-price system, are reestablished.

The free-price system exerts a profound and perpetual influence on the volume of production and consumption. It is not merely accidental that in the United States—where this system prevails and where the entire wheat price, minus handling and transport costs, goes to the farmer—the present wheat crop is twice as large as those of the years 1935-39.

The free-price system fulfills a momentous task: that of inducing both farmers and manufacturers to produce more in times of scarcity—consequent upon the increase in price—and that of inducing the public to consume more in times of plenty—consequent upon the decrease in price.

Three main obstacles hinder the reestablishment of the world market: (1) The war-torn condition of many European, including some British, industries; (2) the scarcity of foreign currency, particularly the dollar; and (3) the fear that intense competition may result in low wages.

How can these obstacles be overcome?

1. The opening of the world market should be effected by stages and concurrently with the replenishment of war-worn industrial plant and equipment. This could be achieved with the aid either of private loans or of funds supplied under the Marshall Plan.

2. It is a poor excuse for any country that lack of dollars prevents its people from buying American goods. All that the people of such countries have to do is to sell goods to the United States on reasonable terms. But these terms will never be reasonable unless work is done under the inescapable pressure of free domestic and foreign competition. And this competition cannot prevail unless, throughout a large part of the world, trade is substantially freed from customs tariffs and other impediments.

No other system affords better protection to the fundamental interests of both producers and consumers than private trade. For no one could be more vigilant and keen in competing for the smallest item of business than the private trader, driven by the powerful incentive of profit, and restrained by the effectual check of competition.

3. The hope of adequate and proportionate wages is far more conducive to the ultimate elimination of poverty than equalitarian distribution unrelated to achievement. Workers would be well advised to accept basic wages just sufficient to sustain life; but at the end of each year an appropriate share of the profits should be allotted to each worker according to his individual merit.

Such an economic policy would insure, at one and the same time, outstanding efficiency, low costs of production, large turnover, small margins of profit, high wages, and low prices: In other words, a remarkable degree of prosperity.

Third Battle Of Britain

By Malvina Lindsay

Women's Load

WHETHER BRITISH women can stand up to a third battle of Britain is a question much of the world is asking. For they will bear the brunt of the new austerity program, with its sharp cut in food imports. They may largely decide whether or not their nation's economy collapses, with worldwide repercussions of depressed markets and unemployment.

British women's mood in some areas is disturbing their government. Many housewives are resentful over the drab, hungry lives they and their families lead. Some are meeting to protest lowered living standards and are writing angry letters to newspapers.

The Housewives' League, organized with support of the Conservative party, is especially militant. Women Communists stir rebellion wherever they can. Even labor women's societies have protested the privations their families must endure. To make matters worse, a feud is on between the government and women workers over the two pay scales that prevail for men and women, in most fields, including government.

BRITISH women are tired in body and spirit from seven years of privation. They rose in magnificent heroism to withstand the Nazi blitz, and again at the end of the war they put aside their disappointment that a better life had not come and shouldered their load of sacrifice. Now has come a third challenge—they must add to the back-breaking burden they carry.

They must live in chillier, darker homes, produce meals with even less meat than their 20 cents worth a person per week and with half as much corned beef supplement. They will have less tea to warm their bodies, rally their low spirits. They must do with less dried eggs, condensed milk, canned and fresh fruits.

They must see part of their milk, fats, grain and sugar taken to make biscuits, beer, chocolate, jams to sell to America and earn dollars to buy bigger quantities of basic foods. They must keep on patching sheets and towels so cotton fabrics can be sent abroad. Meanwhile hanging over them is the uncertainty of what will be on their tables when the American loan gives out. Every day the predicted date for this comes nearer—first Christmas, now October. With American prices rising constantly, it may come even sooner.

They hear a dietician warn that their children are three inches shorter and 16 pounds lighter than before the war. They see their families getting thinner because of unappetizing meals or else getting the bloated starchy look.

BRITISH women's food and household crisis brings disturbing memories of how German women turned to Hitler under the daily grind of trying to feed their families when the inflation debacle hit. But there is no Hitler on the horizon—yet—in Britain, and British women are made of stern political stuff. However, many wonder if housewives' discontent could bring a political turn either to right or left.

Since loudest protest has come from the politically conservative Housewives' League, there is much wishful thinking in America that this might portend return of a Tory government. But there is also convincing argument that the trend of nations under economic pressure is usually toward greater state control, and that it might be easier for aggressive and persuasive Communists to sell distraught housewives some of their schemes than for Tories to put over merely a different brand of a "blood, sweat and tears" program.

Bigger question is whether the rank and file of British women can summon strength and courage to keep on performing kitchen miracles and upholding the never-say-die British spirit—which is largely in their keeping.

One help to rallying their support would be for their government to insist on equality of sacrifice. Ostentatious spending by those whose incomes permit it will not help morale of the average woman with several children whose husband gets $21 a week, and who if she goes outside her rations must pay $5 or more for a small chicken. Visiting Americans, by showing restraint in eating and dressing, and not flaunting their luxuries, also could help. American women at home could well at this time give assurance of their sympathy and understanding to those on the front line of an economic crisis destined to affect in some degree their own living standards.

British Tories

With all due respect to the eminence of Sir Ernest Benn, a letter published in The Washington Post of August 5 does not serve to promote good relations between our British cousins and ourselves.

We do not like Ernest Bevin, and his words about America are not only ungracious but lacking in diplomacy or good taste.

Equally, however, Sir Ernest reveals his own more sophisticated ungraciousness by referring to Bevin as "a man who spent his life teaching laborers to do less work for more money," and by referring to the "pampered miners" of England.

If America is going to pour out more money to keep the leaking British ship of state afloat, it is not to keep alive the class to which Sir Ernest belongs—the obsolete Tory conservatives—but the "pampered miners" and other working men who now suffer most from the mistakes of the long-lived pre-war Tory governments.

Attlee's Program

By Barnet Nover

The Labor Government At Bay

OUTWARDLY, the Labor Government won a handsome victory when the House of Commons approved Prime Minister Clement Attlee's new belt-tightening program for Britain by the comfortable margin of 318 to 170.

NOVER

This must not be taken to mean, however, that Mr. Attlee and his colleagues will have no serious political problems on their hands while they grapple with the dollar crisis during the next weeks and months.

The fact is that Britain's financial and economic difficulties have generated a political storm of great and dangerous dimensions. Because of that, it cannot be taken for granted that the Labor Government will succeed in serving out its full five-year term.

ON THE ONE HAND, the Conservative opposition under Winston Churchill, plus the handful of Liberals left in the House, are now more solidly united against the Labor regime than at any time since it took office in August, 1945.

On the other hand, the Labor Party itself is now more acutely divided on basic questions of policy than it has ever been.

Up to now, the Labor representatives in Parliament, for all their highly publicized rifts and divisions, have closed ranks whenever a major issue had to be decided by Parliament.

Indeed, there is no more disciplined group to be found anywhere in any democratic country. As an adroit party manager, Herbert Morrison could give pointers to Tammany Hall. But whether this unity will continue to characterize the Labor Party during the critical days ahead is not at all clear.

IN HIS PROGRAMMATIC speech in the House of Commons in which he laid bare the grim facts of Britain's financial debility, Prime Minister Attlee indicated that there would be a slowing up in the Labor government's nationalization program.

Common sense demands that this be done. For instance, take the nationalization of steel. That has been very high on the priority list of the Labor government's legislative program. The Labor leaders have been determined to carry it through because they regard it as essential to their over-all program of creating a Socialist Britain.

At this particular moment, however, a program of nationalizing the steel industry would involve such vast structural changes and inevitably create such confusion as in the words of Sir Clive Baillieu, to "slow down and prejudice" Britain's recovery at this critical juncture in Britain's affairs.

LABOR left-wingers are bitterly opposed to any such postponement. They insist that the program of nationalization be speeded up rather than slowed down. So formidable was their opposition to Attlee's suggestion of delay that Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, had to come forward and announce that the government did not contemplate any abandonment of its Socialist program.

This announcement is bound to have the effect of widening the breach between the Labor government and the opposition. It will increase divisions in Great Britain at a time when unity is the paramount need. Yet it is not at all clear that the Labor opposition will be mollified by the Cripps statement alone.

Even if the revised Attlee program now calls for the continuation of the socialization plan, they are not fully satisfied with it.

THEY HAVE long argued that one of the best ways in which Great Britain can save on dollar exchange is by cutting down its military establishment abroad.

Until now the Labor government has resisted that pressure out of fear that further reduction in overseas forces would imperil Britain's world position, already seriously undermined. Now Attlee has announced that there would be a reduction in those forces by 80,000 before March, 1948.

The left-wing Laborites insist that the armed forces abroad be reduced by a minimum of 250,000 men and as soon as possible. It is not likely that they will have their way. Yet to the extent that the Attlee government gives in to pressure on this issue, to that extent will Great Britain be forced to revise its foreign policy.

In some respects such a revision is absolutely imperative. That is particularly the case with respect to the Labor government's Palestine policy which from beginning to end has been a monumental mess. At the same time, it is well for Americans to keep in mind that any major shift in Britain's international policies may place new and heavy burdens on us.

For that reason's Britain's threatened political crisis, no less than its acute financial crisis, is being watched with grave concern in Washington.

Airlines' Missed Opportunity

Childs

The contrast with the Senators sitting on the other side of the table could hardly be sharper. For one thing, it's the contrast between youth and age. That is an important element of the drama which has hung the standing room only sign on the Senate's caucus room.

In the duel before the Senate Investigating Committee, Hughes stands for new ideas, for experiment, adventure. He has repeatedly risked his life in backing his own ideas.

The aviation industry is one place where new ideas should be welcome. In 25 years it has grown up from nothing. Yet there seems to be a strong desire to scale it down to the restricted, monopoly pattern.

Not long ago, another young man appeared before a Senate committee with a new and bold idea. That was Lieut. Comdr. Langdon P. Marvin, jr., who, out of his experience with the Naval Air Transport Service during the war and his researches since then, has become an authority on air cargo. Young Marvin talks about the "new sea" and its vast potentialities for freight.

APPEARING as a private citizen before an aviation subcommittee, he testified that his estimates showed three million pounds of air cargo could be carried on a profit-making basis across the Pacific each year. Marvin estimated that this would bring in $2,600,000 in revenue for the airline, or airlines, carrying the cargo. He based this on a careful commodity-by-commodity study.

His estimates are in contrast to those which Pan American Airways furnished the Civil Aeronautics Board. In arguing against granting a certificate of operation to another airline, Pan American estimated that only 152,000 pounds of air cargo a year could be transported on the same route.

"I believe," Marvin said, "that if the airlines which have been granted international certificates by the Government devoted as much study, time and effort to cargo as they have done during the past many years to passengers, they would discover for themselves that there is perhaps twice as much business to be had in the international field as they now anticipate."

AIRLINE thinking, it would seem, is in terms of the past rather than the future. It takes boldness and imagination to project fleets of cargo planes across the new sea. That happened, as Marvin pointed out, during the war. In fact, the war could not have been won without the fleets of Army and Navy cargo planes that brought rare materials from the four corners of the earth. This was particularly true of the vital radar and radio program. The Army Air Transport Command and the Naval Air Transport Service carried millions of pounds of mica, quartz crystals, tantalite, statite and other strategic raw materials from India and Brazil.

The customary answer is: Well, of course, that was done on a cost-plus basis at Government expense. But the figures that Marvin and others have compiled show that a similar air cargo operation is practicable in peacetime at a profit.

A realistic examination of air cargo rates, both within the country and on the international routes, would probably show that they are too high. They are fixed for scarcity instead of expansion.

We must understand that this counts for more than mere profit and loss. A healthy airplane manufacturing industry is essential to national security. As young Marvin pointed out in his testimony, a fleet of cargo planes for peacetime use could be converted almost overnight to carry wartime cargoes. The same cannot be said for passenger planes.

The young are often brash and foolish. They are given to taking risks that often trip them up, but by taking such risks this country has become great. Monopoly and restriction mean old age and senescence. That should not occur in an industry still in its swaddling clothes.

The Gallup Poll

Unions Gain Support in Drive To Revise Taft-Hartley Act

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 8.—There is a remarkable parallel between the voting public's attitude toward the omnibus Taft-Hartley Act to regulate labor unions and its attitude toward another omnibus law which for years regulated employers—the Wagner Labor Act.

The Wagner Act was never accepted by the public. Five Institute polls conducted between 1939 and 1947 never once found a majority of voters familiar with the act wanting to see it left unchanged. Always, the weight of opinion was in favor of either revision or repeal. Most voters with opinions felt that it was a one-sided law—unfair to employers.

Today an Institute survey finds the public taking the same kind of attitude toward the Taft-Hartley Act. Among those who have heard or read about the new law, the weight of opinion is in favor of repeal or revision, chiefly on the grounds that it is a one-sided act unfair to unions.

This is eloquent evidence of how effective was the campaign of labor union leaders to tag the act in the public mind as insidious and harmful although it is widely known thot the public favors many individual sections of the act such as the regulation of the closed shop, featherbedding, jurisdictional strikes and the requirement of financial accounting by unions.

The parallels in attitude toward the Wagner Act and the Taft-Hartley Act may be seen in the following Institute poll results.

All voters who have heard or read about the Taft-Hartley Act (6 in 10 have) were asked:

Revised	32%
Repealed	21	Tl. 53%
No opinion	25

In the years 1938-40 on five separate occasions those voters who had heard or read about the Wagner Labor Act (fewer than 6 in 10 had) were asked:

Do you think the Wagner Labor Act should be revised, repealed or left unchanged?

	Mar. 1939	Nov. 1939	Nov. 1940
Revised	29%	25%	24%
Repealed	11	12	6
No opinion	40	33	43

The most recent test of sentiment on the Wagner Act was in January, 1947, and again the weight of opinion favored revision or repeal. In short, during all the Wagner Act's history on the statute books, there was never widespread support for it as it stood.

TOMORROW: Will the Taft-Hartley Act bring about more strikes—or fewer strikes?

Argentina to Accept Majority Decision on Voting Procedure

Buenos Aires, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Foreign Minister Juan A. Dramuglia announced today that Argentina will abide by the decision of the majority on the question of voting procedure in the inter-AmericanConference on Hemispheric Defense opening in Rio de Janeiro August 15.

The announcement, made a few hours before Bramuglia's departure for the Brazilian capital at the head of the 47-man Argentine delegation, means that Argentina will not insist on its attitude in favor of unanimity but will agree to a two thirds majority vote.

Questioned about press reports that President Juan D. Peron would visit Rio de Janeiro during the conference and would meet President Truman there, Bramuglia said there had been "no negotiations on it, but he did not deny the reports.

All of the 20 American nations attending the Rio conference had repliel to a Pan American Union question on voting procedure. Argentina was the only one favoring the unanimity. Uruguay favored a simple majority and the remaining 18 nations favored a two thirds majority.

Senate Group Names Hadlick Counsel on Oil

Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) yesterday announced the appointment of Paul E. Hadlick, Minneapolis, as special counsel for the Senate Small Business Subcommitte on Oil.

Hadlick was counsel for the Senate Agriculture Committee during its investigation of the rubber situation in the early part of the war.

Wherry said the subcommittee will begin hearings August 21 and 22 in Chicago to investigate shortages of petroleum products in the Midwest.

Krug Calls Parley On Oil Shortages

U. S. Predicts A 38% Bigger Crop of Cotton

By John W. Ball

Post Reporter

Good news came from the Nation's cotton fields yesterday, when the first Government estimate for 1947 predicted a 38 per cent increase in cotton production this year.

Although acreage planted is neary 10 per cent below the Government's goal, good growing weather has raised crop prospects to 11,844,000 bales, or 3,204,000 more than last year's abnormally low harvest.

Government officials asserted that the indicated crop would be sufficient to cover domestic needs and export requirements for the year.

The news was received by the industry with a drop in prices for cotton for future delivery of $4.45 to $4.65 a bale. At one time dealings in New York and New Orleans were off as much as $5 a bale.

The good news about cotton, however, was qualified by the Agriculture Department's forecast on this year's wool crop.

Prospects are, the department reported, for 256 million pounds of shorn wool, or 24 million less than last year and 104 million less than the 1936-45 average.

The drop in wool production to the lowest point in 22 years was expected from last week's report that the Nation's sheep population had fallen to the lowest since 1925, and to the third lowest since records have been kept.

The increase in the Nation's supplies of fats and oils was demonstrated in two announcements yesterday.

Soap Price Cut

The first came from Cambridge, Mass., where Lever Brothers Co. cut prices of both Swan soap and Spry vegetable shortening, to match cuts made by Proctor & Gamble Thursday.

The action by Lever's brought cuts in the price of Swan soap in the last five months to a total of 22 per cent, and cuts in Spry to 25 per cent below last winter's highs.

The second was announcement by the Agriculture Department that a special allocation of 15 million pounds of lard for commercial export had been made. All but 2 million pounds for the Union of South Africa goes to Caribbean, Central and South American countries.

Canol Refinery Sold to Toronto Firm for Million

The Foreign Liquidation Commission last night announced the sale of the Canol Project's Whitehorse Refinery to the Imperial Oil Ltd., Toronto, Canada, for one million dollars.

The sale price, in U. S. currency, is subject to approval by the Attorney General.

The refinery, which originally cost six million dollars, is designed to process a minimum of 3000 barrels of crude oil daily. It processed 976,764 barrels of crude oil from April, 1944, to March, 1945.

Known as Canol 1, the property originally was offered for sale last February. All bids were rejected as too low. The highest received at that time was $151,133.

Army Draws Up Safety Rules for Nitrate Shipments

The Army yesterday announced safety regulations for transporting ammonium nitrate fertilizer which would "practically eliminate" the possibility of explosions like those at Texas City, Tex., and Brest, France.

The regulations, applying to shipments to occupied areas of Europe and Asia, require posting of a continuous fire watch during loading. They also prohibit shipment of explosives—or sulphur—on a vessel carrying the fertilizer.

The Army ships about 8000 tons of fertilizer a month.

In the future, it said, loadings will take place only at Earle, N. J., and Theodore, Ala., and then only under Army or Navy supervision.

Retired Servicemen May Act for Veterans

Retired officers and enlisted men of the armed forces may now represent veterans in claims against the Veterans Administration, the VA announced yesterday.

Formerly, retired members of the armed services were prohibited acting for veterans as accredited representatives of the 68 national and State organizations authorized to file such claims.

Eisler Defense Rests; Judge Protests Delay

The defense rested yesterday in the passport fraud trial of Gerhart Eisler.

The action was taken soon after Justice James W. Morris warned in a bench conference that if the rival attorneys kept on widening the scope of the case, it would be prolonged "to the point where it will have to be declared a mistrial."

The trial, now in its fifth week, will resume in District Court Monday with rebuttal.

Brother Testifies

Testifying yesterday for the defendant, said to be a Kremlin agent here, was his brother, Hanns Eisler, a Hollywood composer.

Hanns denied the truth of testimony of a Government witness that his brother had boasted in 1939 that "he was going to the United States to show those stupid Americans how to run their (Communist) party."

Earlier testimony was given by Ruth Fischer, sister of the Eislers that Gerhart made the boast to her and Hanns in Paris at that time. Hanns said he hadn't seen his brother and sister together since 1927 when their father died.

Davis on Stand

Also testifying yesterday was Benjamin J. Davis, New York City councilman and member of the National Committee of the Communist Party. Davis testified that Eisler never dictated either to the party or to its organ, the Dily Worker, as contended by the Government.

Other defense witnesses included Walter B. Garland, leader of the United Negro and Allied Veterans of America, and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, another member of the party's national committee.

Joseph Starabin, foreign editor of the Daily Worker, denied he had "the deepest contempt" for the way the case has been tried, but said he was "amazed at the theory of this case and the kind of effort that has been made to harm a man in a way he didn't deserve from us Americans."

Bureau of Mines Uses Sponge Iron To Replace Scrap

The Bureau of Mines said yesterday it has successfully employed old-fashioned sponge iron as a substitute for scrap iron as an aid in the production of high-quality steel.

In the event of an emergency, the bureau said—in a report prepared by metallurgists at its Pittsburgh, Pa., experiment station—sponge iron could be put to production almost immediately, using available equipment such as brick plants or cement kilns.

Before the advent of blast furnaces, sponge iron—a porous product resulting from the reduction of an iron oxide at a low temperature—was the Nation's chief source of iron and steel for tool and cutlery instruments.

In tests at 28 industrial plants, the bureau found high-grade sponge iron "unusually effective" in producing tool steels in basic electric furnaces.

The bureau said the cost of sponge iron production—$10.56 a ton—was slightly more than the wartime price of scrap.

Ruhr Coal Talks Slated to Begin Here Tuesday

The State Department said yesterday it expects talks with the British on increasing coal production from the Ruhr mines in Germany to begin here Tuesday.

Michael J. McDermott, press officer, told newsmen that he had no information on arrangements being made for Anglo-American discussions for relaxation of the American loan requirements on Britain. British sources have said this conference also would start next week and probably would be held in Washington.

At a noon meeting with reporters, McDermott said that he thought the United States Government would like to start the proposed 10- or 11-nation meeting to draft a Japanese peace conference in September rather than wait until year's end.

However, McDermott said the decision will be made jointly by patricipating countries. Whether theer will be 10 or 11 countries depends on Russia.

Jap Products For Foreign Sale Listed

The Commerce Department last night listed 205 different kinds of Japanese-made products, including 1,300,000 beer bottles and 77,520 harmonicas, which may be bought by foreign countries.

Other commodities listed included 300,000 square feet of bamboo blinds; 12,000 sanitary fixtures; 80,000 pounds of frozen frog legs; 61,000 pounds of dried mushrooms; 32,500 squirrel fur skins; 100,000 canvas shoes; 5 million needles; 95,000 Christmas decorations and 26 million yards of silk fabrics.

The Department said September 1 has been set as the tentative date when American businessmen can enter into actual purchase and sales contracts for these products. Those who wish to go to Japan may make arrangements for living accommodations at the rate of $10 a day for lodging and meals, it said.

6 Roads Balk At ICC Scale Of Fare Rises

By The Associated Press

Six railroads notified the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday they object to a formula for revising commutation fares in the East proposed by an ICC examiner in mid-July.

All Eastern lines providing commutation service joined early this year in a petition for increases. Generally they asked for an average 20 per cent boost in commutations to match upward revision in basic passenger fares since computations were last revised.

The examiner who heard the case, Burton Fuller, recommended that the commission approve a sliding scale of increases ranging from 15 to 25 per cent. Further, he suggested the roads sell two types of monthly books, one unrestricted and good for any day in the week, and another, cheaper book restricted to use during the usual five-day work week, but invalid on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

The Erie Railroad told the commission in a separate brief "the examiner's proposal would fall far short of giving the Erie a 20 per cent increase" and challenged the formula for the proposed sliding scale.

Five other railroads—the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western; Lehigh Valley, New York Central, the Pennsylvania, and the Reading Co. said in a joint brief that if the restricted ticket should be ordered "at least 90 per cent" of their commutation sales would be in this form of ticket "with consequent loss of the full measure of additional revenue sought.

On the other hand, the New Jersey Public Utility Commission said in a brief it felt the railroads had failed to produce sufficient evidence to support their plea for increases. However, the State commission said that if increases were granted by ICC, the examiner's findings as to "uniformity fares" and the need for a work-week ticket should form the basis for revisions.

Denmark Estimates Needs at 729 Millions

Copenhagen, Aug. 8 (A.P.).—Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen estimated today that Denmark would need 3,500,000,000 kroner ($729,000,000) in economic aid under the Marshall proposal for European reconstruction. This aid would permit the country to reach and exceed her prewar agricultural production, he said.

Ga. Democrats May Split in 2 Primaries

Atlanta, Aug. 8 (A.P.).—The South was witnessing today a political phenomenon within its solid ranks—the threat of two parties holding separate primaries in Georgia and both claiming the Democratic label.

The breach within the Democratic Party's ranks, which developed after the death of the late Gov.-elect Eugene Talmadge, was widened again yesterday with the issue, oddly enough, being "white supremacy" now against "white supremacy" later.

The supporters of Herman Talmadge want action now, while proponents of Gov. M. E. Thompson say it should come in due course at the next legislative session.

Special Session Asked

The issue stemmed from a letter to Thompson from House Speaker Fred Hand advocating a special session of the Legislature immediately to pass an educational qualification measure designed to bar Negroes from the polls.

Immediately after receipt of the letter, Thompson replied that he had advocated such a measure in the 1947 session of the Legislature; that the Hand-led forces who supported Herman Talmadge, turned it down.

Hence, said the Governor, he could see no reason for spending the taxpayers' money to reconvene the Legislature to act on a bill they already had rejected.

Immediately after the rejection of the special session call, Hand said he would attempt to have the Legislature convene itself, an act which requires approval of two-thirds of the membership of both houses.

Along Personal Lines

The argument then spread along strictly pro-Talmadge, pro-Thompson lines. Chairman James S. Peters of the Democratic executive committee aligned with Talmadge, said his forces would continue planning a separate primary unless Hand's proposal was accepted.

A pro-Thompson spokesman, however, State Senator R. G. Daniell of Metter, said he could see nothing to be gained by a special session and as for the second primary threat:

"As an official of the Democratic Party in Georgia I can say emphatically there will be but one Democratic primary in Georgia in 1948. I can tell Mr. Hand for his information that this was settled in Washington when the Democratic National Committee recognized Governor Thompson as the titular head of the party, and at Macon, when Democrats of Georgia met last spring."

Truman Returns To Shangri-La For Weekend

Thurmont, Md., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—President Truman returned to his Shangri-La retreat high in the Catoctin Mountains today for another weekend of rest and relaxation.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Truman, motored the 65 miles from Washington. They left the capital shortly after 2 p. m. (EDT) but his departure was not made public until his arrival here at 4:05 p. m.

Most of the President's aides were left behind in Washington. Newsmen were barred from the estate but took up posts outside.

It was the second successive weekend that Mr. Truman drove to the mountain retreat. Before returning to Washington Monday morning, he plans to rest, swim and hike through the miles of trails that crisscross the reservation. The weather was pleasantly cool, with a 75-degree temperature, when he arrived.

Portugal Wheat Crop Poor

Lisbon, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Minister of Economy Luiz Supico Pinto said today that Portugal's 1947 wheat crop was the poorest in 25 years. The yield is estimated at 150,000 tons, against a neetd of 475,000 tons. Overheavy rains in some areas, drought in others and a hard winter caused the decline.

Phony Rape

The skepticism with which many readers must have regarded the rape record reported in the United States seems to be justified by the comments of our local Women's Bureau chief, Capt. Rhoda J. Milliken. She says that most of the complainants admit under questioning that they are lying. Is this a case of exhibitionism? Not at all; it seems that many "assaultees" are married women seeking to establish an alibi for unfaithfulness, hoping in that way to divert the wrath of their menfolk. It is not a pretty picture that Captain Milliken discloses, and it leads to speculation about other types of sex crimes; the Black Dahlia type, for example. May it not be that the attackers in a good many of these cases are not sex fiends at all, but husbands or mates of women who have double-crossed them? These cases fortify Captain Milliken's explanation of the reason for the postwar rise in phony rape offenses.

Prevarication

Talking about prevarication in high places, there is a good deal of resentment in certain journalistic quarters over a practice that has apparently become standard among important Government officials who are about to resign from office. The practice is for the official, when questioned about rumors, to deny categorically that he has even contemplated such an action. These denials are followed in a few days, or sometimes in a few hours, by the formal announcement of the resignation. Two or three instances of this form of political duplicity have occurred within the last few months, and one especially notable instance has occurred within the last year.

The question raised here is one aspect of a most difficult ethical problem. We may assume for the sake of argument that the precise timing of the resignation is a matter of some importance to the official himself. In the case of officials of Cabinet rank it is customary for news of the resignation and of the nomination of a successor to be released simultaneously by the White House. A notable exception was the case of Secretary Ickes, who announced both his resignation and the reasons for it to a conference of reporters called by himself. In general, however, the custom is so well established that a departure from it has come to be construed as a breach of official good manners.

Thus it may be conceded that the official has the right, either for personal reasons or out of courtesy to the President, to conceal if he can the fact he intends to resign or that he has already done so. The question, then, is really whether he has the right to do so by a direct and deliberate lie. It may also be admitted that the reporter or correspondent, who has heard rumors of the resignation, has the right or even the duty of trying to find out whether they are false or true. Thus the matter is resolved into a game of wits between the official and the reporter. But where the possibility of lying is excluded, the advantage lies with the reporter, since any effort at evasion is pretty sure to be interpreted as an implicit admission.

Let us suppose for example that the official seeks refuge in some such formula as, "No comment," or "I have nothing to say on that subject at this time." The reporter will thereupon be satisfied that the rumor is correct, and merely by quoting the evasive answers of the official can persuade his readers to the same belief, knowing that his dispatch will be given some such heading as, "Whoosis Mum On Rumor He Will Quit." But if lying is admitted to be one of the prerogatives, as it is certainly one of the habits, of politicians, then all the advantage lies with the official. For if he replies, "Look here, Arthur; I don't know where you picked up that story, but for your private information there's absolutely nothing to it," the reporter is quite helpless. If he is inexperienced or naturally credulous he may go to the length of denying the rumor on his own responsibility, and thereby involve himself in the necessity of awkward explanations when the truth is revealed.

Long ago certain casuists, who examined this dilemma, produced a doctrine called Equivocation, namely, that it is permissible to use a formula of words which have one meaning for the speaker and another for the listener. It would be equivocation for the official to say he was not going to resign, and to mean that he had already resigned. Another effort to escape the dilemma was called Mental Reservation; the notion was that a person under examination could silently add something to his statement that would cancel the effect of what he said aloud. Thus the official could say to a reporter, "That story about my resignation is a dirty falsehood," adding under his breath, "if it also says that I am to be appointed governor general of Mars." There seems to be either mental reservation or equivocation at work in the Brewster-Hughes squabble.

Plane Survival

We hope that the separate congressional and presidential air policy boards that are probing America's ailing aviation industry will scrutinize the civil aspects of the industry as carefully as the military. Production of civilian transport planes plays a part in maintaining that healthy, well-rounded manufacturing potential which is essential to our national security. And it should be apparent that transport production has a dim future unless something is done to rescue the airlines from their desperate plight. They cannot order new planes unless they have the traffic to support them, and from the way things have been going, future transport orders soon will be just about nonexistent. It is on this point that we hope the policy boards will have some sharp words for Congress.

Civil aviation is particularly vulnerable to the whims of public confidence. The malady that has overtaken our airlines has been incubating a long time. It has its roots in the inability to maintain reliable schedules under adverse weather and in the unbelievable crazy quilts of congestion that have grown up at some of our major airports as well as in the psychological impact of the recent chain of disasters. The result is that airline finances are in abysmal shape. For the 12 months ended March 31, 16 domestic airlines had a net loss of $19,669,000 against a profit of $20,947,000 a year ago. The May and June crashes have further eaten into traffic when it should be at its peak. With one more winter like the last one, the airlines will be candidates for an economic poorhouse.

Congressional indifference has frustrated the one major remedy available for the distress. Adequate navigation and landing aids to lick both weather and traffic problems have definitely been proved practicable, despite the skepticism of some go-slow advocates who apparently are awaiting a panacea. The Civil Aeronautics Administration has made a start in this field. But the possibilities have been barely tapped. Radar, for instance, opens an almost unlimited vista of improvement. Radar beacons to guide aircraft on their courses, ground radar scopes to control bad weather landings and to simplify dispatching tangles, obstacle detectors to warn pilots against mountains and thunderheads—these already demonstrated applications would do wonders to make air travel safer and more certain.

Yet what was the congressional answer to CAA pleas for money to tackle the tremendous responsibilities it faces? Its research budget was cut to less than half what it asked, to a measly $1,600,000. Only two of the 23 ground control approach installations requested were approved. Approach light installations were reduced from 68 to 2. Instrument landing system additions were elminated entirely. The alleged justification for this pound-foolish type of economy was summed up by Senator Ball when he asserted that more safety aids would merely bring more accidents by encouraging flying in bad weather. What, one may ask, does Senator Ball advocate for those who are already aloft when bad weather overtakes them?

Whatever the defections of the airlines in the present mess—and they were particularly short-sighted in the failure to look ahead in the heyday of the wartime boom when they talked lavishly of expansion—the responsibility for a solution is now governmental. It belongs to the Government first because the airways are federally operated, and second because the airlines simply are in no position to rescue themselves. If a strong aviation industry in all its components is essential to this country's safety and well-being, then Congress will have to step in promptly with funds. Even with the airlines contributing what they can in the way of taking up new devices as soon as they are approved, the remedy will be expensive. But it will be far less expensive now than if we allow the commercial transport segment of the aviation industry to decay. Thus it seems to us that in surveying the entire rounded picture of America's future in aviation, one of the first jobs of the policy boards should be a graphic program of air education for members of Congress.

Shiftless Dalton

Hugh Dalton, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, favors changes in the regulations governing operations of the World Monetary Fund that would enable the British to draw on its resources much more liberally. Britain's needs, he says, are not temporary in the sense meant by the present regulations. Consequently he wants the regulations modified to permit of long-term borrowing from the Fund. At this suggestion there must have been many raised eyebrows among the nations supporting the Monetary Fund, not to say the operators of it. For to accede to the Dalton idea would be to sign the death warrant of an exchange stabilization organization which was never intended to serve the purpose of a long-time lending agency.

The Monetary Fund was established for the purpose of advancing short-term credits to countries needing temporary assistance to cover deficits in their international balances of payments. The object was to enable them to maintain the exchange stability of their currencies while carrying out internal reforms essential to permanent maintenance of a sound currency system. Extensive precautions have been taken to prevent use of the Fund's resources as a long-run means of financing imports—by limiting the amount that could be borrowed by a member country in any single year and by denying access to the Fund to members who have abused their privileges by using Fund resources for long-term purposes. Changes in regulations that would permit the Fund's resources to be tied up for long periods of time would simply make it impotent to discharge its function as a stabilizing agency. Moreover, the Fund would also be usurping the functions of the World Bank, which was set up for the purpose of making long-term loans for internal rehabilitation and development purposes and promoting the international flow of long-term capital.

In short, acceptance of the Dalton proposals would wreck the international financial structure based on the Bretton Woods agreements, merely for the sake of providing Great Britain with additional supplies of dollars that, like preceding loans, would be swallowed up unless steps were promptly taken to put the country on a self-sustaining basis. Dr. Dalton's contribution to the British discussion on the economic crisis is marked by shiftlessness.

Labor Peacemaker

President Truman has assigned the important and difficult task of building a new Federal mediation service to a labor relations expert who happens to be a Republican and an industrialist—Cyrus S. Ching. One may be sure that it was not a case of giving a Republican a Government job or even of preserving a balance between industry and labor in making appointments under the Taft-Hartley Act. All of Mr. Ching's life may reasonably be said to have been spent in preparation for this assignment, and we surmise that he will have the confidence of both labor and industry in marked degree.

For a great many years Mr. Ching has been chief of industrial relations for the United States Rubber Co. He knows the employer's point of view. At the same time he has always had a keen appreciation of the employe's point of view, since he was a streetcar motorman in Boston. More important, he is interested in men and women as human beings. In the period of preparation for war in 1941 he was brought to Washington by Sidney Hillman. Later he became a member of the National Defense Mediation Board and of its successor, the National War Labor Board. In addition to this wide experience, Mr. Ching has the happy faculty of exuding good will and confidence. His rugged physique—he is 6 feet 7 inches tall—gives him a further advantage as the head of an agency that must often make its presence felt.

Congress notably strengthened the mediation function when it created the new independent Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. For the first time the Federal agents who attemp to settle labor disputes will have behind them a statute creating positive obligations on the part of employers and unions. Each is charged with the responsibility of bargaining collectively, of making every effort to settle its disputes and of cooperating with the Mediation Service. The party wishing to end a collective bargaining contract must notify the Mediation Service and give it an opportunity to use its good offices toward an amicable settlement before any strike or lockout can be indulged in with impunity.

We have previously referred to this section of the Taft-Hartley Act as probably its most positive aspect. The selection of Mr. Ching tends to emphasize that fact. We think the new Mediation Service, under his able direction, can be a powerful force in the cultivation of good industrial relations. It will be aided in this great undertaking by a 12-man National Labor-Management Panel with equal representation of employers and organized labor. If this agency functions as effectively on a national scale as similar boards reflecting the conscience of local communities have done, the occasions for invoking the more drastic provisions of the new labor law will be notably diminished.

Good Offices

Some idea of the difficulties of the Dutch in dealing with the Indonesian republic will be gained from Jogjakarta's reply to the American proffer of good offices. We have got the same kind of yes and no response that the Dutch have invariably received in their attempts to work out the self-rule agreement. The Indonesian republic is grateful for our offer, and asks that we go to the Security Council and second its plea for an international arbitration commission. However, we are asked to send a representative to Jogjakarta at once, in order that "the republic may more fully acquaint the United States with its official viewpoint." The interpretation of the note is that our demarche has been rejected.

It is likely that our consul general in Batavia is already on his way to Jogjakarta to hear the republic's official viewpoint. Perhaps, when there, he will be able to pave the way for a solution that would make the United States of Indonesia a reality. It would not be the first time that such an effort had been made. The real stumbling block to agreement is said to be over a jointly officered gendarmerie. The Republicans thought this an infringement of their sovereignty, the Dutch that it was necessary, in view of the prevailing lawlessness, for the protection of property. The point might have been ironed out, it is said, if the former Premier, Dr. Sjahrir, had stayed in office. But he was extruded by intransigents because he had invoked American good offices on a previous occasion in dissuading the Dutch from taking military action. Now that the eyes of the world are upon Java, perhaps the Indonesians will show signs that they want an agreement, though their cryptic note to the United States is hardly a good omen.

"Elliott's Round"

Your gay and insouciant editorial of August 6 about Elliott Roosevelt's testimony before the senatorial committee moves me to protest such a shocking example of inappropriate and lenient editorializing.

I learned at my parents' knees that influences for weal or woe were potent forces in the lives of all of us; and since Mr. Elliott Roosevelt's unsavory exploits over a number of years are common knowledge, it is little short of astounding to see you take a tongue-in-cheek, "twinkling" attitude toward this discredited young man. The very caption of your editorial "Elliott's Round" implies a clement, if not actually commending attitude, and I am wondering what the recation will be on our impressionable youth, to see Elliott Roosevelt virtually applauded in your columns, and actually applauded in the committee room.

Whether or not Mr. Roosevelt was doing "exactly what hundreds of officers and civilians were doing," is beside the point, and in no wise justifies him; for if his own sense of ethics and good taste didn't restrain him, he must have known that as the President's son he was placed in a vulnerable position. Therefore his deportment, both personal and official, should have been above reproach.

I feel quite sure that your cavalier approach to Mr. Roosevelt's problems will not alienate one of the Roosevelt admirers, but equally as sure that my point of view will be shared by an unamused multitude.

. . . General Roosevelt, though a target for varied criticism, didn't receive any rewards for cowardice, gold-bricking or backtracking nor did his outfit seem to impair or retard operations for winning a war. That he and his commands did good jobs has never been questioned with any degree of success. I'm one veteran, and still a serviceman, who hasn't heard any of the gripes and bitterness about him—or his brothers for that matter—that one hears from GIs about other high ranking officers who have not been subjected to investigation, criticism or distrust. I have heard him lauded and respected by combat men. R. S. K.

Social Ills

For quite some time I have intended to write you concerning your forward views with regard to social legislation and social improvement. The tenor of your whole paper seems to be flavored with a humaneness which is greatly enhanced by the periodic presentation of the views of people like Mrs. Agnes Meyer and Miss Malvina Lindsay. They both seem to possess an uncanny insight with respect to the problems of the moment.

In view of the chaotic condition of local and world affairs, it has been my hope for the past few months that your paper would devote more space to discussion, analysis and diagnosis of the ills of society which are manifestly destroying us day by day.

The people ought to know, indeed, they have a right to know the reasons for the upsurge in mental ailments, the causes of our high rate of divorces, the outstanding causes of alcoholism, juvenile crime and other social ills. They ought to be told what social legislation is needed to cure these ills and curb their consequences.

The Washington Post stands in a position to make such a contribution to the citizens of Washington; the citizens of Washington need the contribution which The Washington Post can make.

British Mandate

Our allies, the British, have suffered many losses and are now in a very sad economic plight indeed. Even Churchill is prepared to support the request for a second loan from the United States. Suggestions have been made for a closer political integration of the United States and Great Britain.

I believe that such political integration would be more beneficial to the British than repeated loans. As to form, I suggest that Great Britain be placed under our care as a mandate until she is better able to care for herself. Since there is rioting in the streets and destruction of property at present, an occupying United States police force would be necessary to keep the public peace. It goes without saying that dissident elements would not be tolerated and would be immediately suppressed by vigorous measures. It is supposed that since this method is similar to that currently in use by the British with respect to their mandates, it would not be objectionable to England.

In this way, England can once more hope for an economic recovery without the prospect of a heavy debt to mar its balance sheets in the future. Furthermore, she would thus provide us with that necessary bulwark against communism we so much require.

Un-American Activities

May I comment on the July 31 letter by Charles D. Potter entitled "'Red' Scare Smokescreen"? He questions the necessity "in defending our democratic system against agents of a police state to transform our Government into a Fascist oligarchy, with the FBI and the Thomas Committee on Un-American Activities acting as our 'thought police'."

We shudder at the thought of a situation such as a "police state"; we hoped that the U. N. might curb the unhealthy state of mind of totalitarianism such as is exhibited in the Soviet Union's "intolerant political philosophy." But according to some reports, Russia is planning on continued chaos in Europe, and such reports leave no doubt in mind that the Soviets are adamant in their preference for isolationism.

Mr. Potter is evidently not in accord with the accomplishments of the Un-American Activities Committee, albeit they have been noted with complete satisfaction, and in one columnist's words, "If ever a congressional investigation has proved its worth to the taxpayers, that one has." Mr. Potter is also skeptical as to the reactions to communism drifting into a Fascist state.

Proper reactions to the exposed attempts to undermine our system of democratic government can hardly be termed "fascism." To exhibit no reactions at all would be mockery to the traditions of a pioneered America, whose practices and customs have been handed down by those who believed that their cooperation and strength, mingled with intellect and a pious loyalty, would reap privileges and benefits for all mankind.

Free World Market

While the food production of the world is by no means sufficient, it is not nearly as deficient as some politicians and nutrition experts try to make us believe.

As for wheat, the world crop in 1946 was larger than the average for the five years immediately preceding the war. There is every indication that in 1947 it will be still larger. It should be made clear that this statement applies not to single countries, but to the world as a whole.

While some scarcity of meat and fats undoubtedly prevails in the world, the reiterated assertion that there is a world scarcity of wheat is nothing but a rank falsehood, put forward to conceal the truth that the available quantities are inefficiently distributed. The problem of distribution—of wheat as well as of every other agricultural and industrial product—will not be resolved until the free world market and its corollary, the free-price system, are reestablished.

The free-price system exerts a profound and perpetual influence on the volume of production and consumption. It is not merely accidental that in the United States—where this system prevails and where the entire wheat price, minus handling and transport costs, goes to the farmer—the present wheat crop is twice as large as those of the years 1935-39.

The free-price system fulfills a momentous task: that of inducing both farmers and manufacturers to produce more in times of scarcity—consequent upon the increase in price—and that of inducing the public to consume more in times of plenty—consequent upon the decrease in price.

Three main obstacles hinder the reestablishment of the world market: (1) The war-torn condition of many European, including some British, industries; (2) the scarcity of foreign currency, particularly the dollar; and (3) the fear that intense competition may result in low wages.

How can these obstacles be overcome?

1. The opening of the world market should be effected by stages and concurrently with the replenishment of war-worn industrial plant and equipment. This could be achieved with the aid either of private loans or of funds supplied under the Marshall Plan.

2. It is a poor excuse for any country that lack of dollars prevents its people from buying American goods. All that the people of such countries have to do is to sell goods to the United States on reasonable terms. But these terms will never be reasonable unless work is done under the inescapable pressure of free domestic and foreign competition. And this competition cannot prevail unless, throughout a large part of the world, trade is substantially freed from customs tariffs and other impediments.

No other system affords better protection to the fundamental interests of both producers and consumers than private trade. For no one could be more vigilant and keen in competing for the smallest item of business than the private trader, driven by the powerful incentive of profit, and restrained by the effectual check of competition.

3. The hope of adequate and proportionate wages is far more conducive to the ultimate elimination of poverty than equalitarian distribution unrelated to achievement. Workers would be well advised to accept basic wages just sufficient to sustain life; but at the end of each year an appropriate share of the profits should be allotted to each worker according to his individual merit.

Such an economic policy would insure, at one and the same time, outstanding efficiency, low costs of production, large turnover, small margins of profit, high wages, and low prices: In other words, a remarkable degree of prosperity.

Third Battle Of Britain

By Malvina Lindsay

Women's Load

WHETHER BRITISH women can stand up to a third battle of Britain is a question much of the world is asking. For they will bear the brunt of the new austerity program, with its sharp cut in food imports. They may largely decide whether or not their nation's economy collapses, with worldwide repercussions of depressed markets and unemployment.

British women's mood in some areas is disturbing their government. Many housewives are resentful over the drab, hungry lives they and their families lead. Some are meeting to protest lowered living standards and are writing angry letters to newspapers.

The Housewives' League, organized with support of the Conservative party, is especially militant. Women Communists stir rebellion wherever they can. Even labor women's societies have protested the privations their families must endure. To make matters worse, a feud is on between the government and women workers over the two pay scales that prevail for men and women, in most fields, including government.

BRITISH women are tired in body and spirit from seven years of privation. They rose in magnificent heroism to withstand the Nazi blitz, and again at the end of the war they put aside their disappointment that a better life had not come and shouldered their load of sacrifice. Now has come a third challenge—they must add to the back-breaking burden they carry.

They must live in chillier, darker homes, produce meals with even less meat than their 20 cents worth a person per week and with half as much corned beef supplement. They will have less tea to warm their bodies, rally their low spirits. They must do with less dried eggs, condensed milk, canned and fresh fruits.

They must see part of their milk, fats, grain and sugar taken to make biscuits, beer, chocolate, jams to sell to America and earn dollars to buy bigger quantities of basic foods. They must keep on patching sheets and towels so cotton fabrics can be sent abroad. Meanwhile hanging over them is the uncertainty of what will be on their tables when the American loan gives out. Every day the predicted date for this comes nearer—first Christmas, now October. With American prices rising constantly, it may come even sooner.

They hear a dietician warn that their children are three inches shorter and 16 pounds lighter than before the war. They see their families getting thinner because of unappetizing meals or else getting the bloated starchy look.

BRITISH women's food and household crisis brings disturbing memories of how German women turned to Hitler under the daily grind of trying to feed their families when the inflation debacle hit. But there is no Hitler on the horizon—yet—in Britain, and British women are made of stern political stuff. However, many wonder if housewives' discontent could bring a political turn either to right or left.

Since loudest protest has come from the politically conservative Housewives' League, there is much wishful thinking in America that this might portend return of a Tory government. But there is also convincing argument that the trend of nations under economic pressure is usually toward greater state control, and that it might be easier for aggressive and persuasive Communists to sell distraught housewives some of their schemes than for Tories to put over merely a different brand of a "blood, sweat and tears" program.

Bigger question is whether the rank and file of British women can summon strength and courage to keep on performing kitchen miracles and upholding the never-say-die British spirit—which is largely in their keeping.

One help to rallying their support would be for their government to insist on equality of sacrifice. Ostentatious spending by those whose incomes permit it will not help morale of the average woman with several children whose husband gets $21 a week, and who if she goes outside her rations must pay $5 or more for a small chicken. Visiting Americans, by showing restraint in eating and dressing, and not flaunting their luxuries, also could help. American women at home could well at this time give assurance of their sympathy and understanding to those on the front line of an economic crisis destined to affect in some degree their own living standards.

British Tories

With all due respect to the eminence of Sir Ernest Benn, a letter published in The Washington Post of August 5 does not serve to promote good relations between our British cousins and ourselves.

We do not like Ernest Bevin, and his words about America are not only ungracious but lacking in diplomacy or good taste.

Equally, however, Sir Ernest reveals his own more sophisticated ungraciousness by referring to Bevin as "a man who spent his life teaching laborers to do less work for more money," and by referring to the "pampered miners" of England.

If America is going to pour out more money to keep the leaking British ship of state afloat, it is not to keep alive the class to which Sir Ernest belongs—the obsolete Tory conservatives—but the "pampered miners" and other working men who now suffer most from the mistakes of the long-lived pre-war Tory government.

Attlee's Program

By Barnet Nover

The Labor Government At Bay

OUTWARDLY, the Labor Government won a handsome victory when the House of Commons approved Prime Minister Clement Attlee's new belt-tightening program for Britain by the comfortable margin of 318 to 170.

NOVER

This must not be taken to mean, however, that Mr. Attlee and his colleagues will have no serious political problems on their hands while they grapple with the dollar crisis during the next weeks and months.

The fact is that Britain's financial and economic difficulties have generated a political storm of great and dangerous dimensions. Because of that, it cannot be taken for granted that the Labor Government will succeed in serving out its full five-year term.

ON THE ONE HAND, the Conservative opposition under Winston Churchill, plus the handful of Liberals left in the House, are now more solidly united against the Labor regime than at any time since it took office in August, 1945.

On the other hand, the Labor Party itself is now more acutely divided on basic questions of policy than it has ever been.

Up to now, the Labor representatives in Parliament, for all their highly publicized rifts and divisions, have closed ranks whenever a major issue had to be decided by Parliament.

Indeed, there is no more disciplined group to be found anywhere in any democratic country. As an adroit party manager, Herbert Morrison could give pointers to Tammany Hall. But whether this unity will continue to characterize the Labor Party during the critical days ahead is not at all clear.

IN HIS PROGRAMMATIC speech in the House of Commons in which he laid bare the grim facts of Britain's financial debility, Prime Minister Attlee indicated that there would be a slowing up in the Labor government's nationalization program.

Common sense demands that this be done. For instance, take the nationalization of steel. That has been very high on the priority list of the Labor government's legislative program. The Labor leaders have been determined to carry it through because they regard it as essential to their over-all program of creating a Socialist Britain.'

At this particular moment, however, a program of nationalizing the steel industry would involve such vast structural changes and inevitably create such confusion as in the words of Sir Clive Baillieu, to "slow down and prejudice" Britain's recovery at this critical juncture in Britain's affairs.

LABOR left-wingers are bitterly opposed to any such postponement. They insist that the program of nationalization be speeded up rather than slowed down. So formidable was their opposition to Attlee's suggestion of delay that Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Board of Trade, had to come forward and announce that the government did not contemplate any abandonment of its Socialist program.

This announcement is bound to have the effect of widening the breach between the Labor government and the opposition. It will increase divisions in Great Britain at a time when unity is the paramount need. Yet it is not at all clear that the Labor opposition will be mollified by the Cripps statement alone.

Even if the revised Attlee program now calls for the continuation of the socialization plan, they are not fully satisfied with it.

THEY HAVE long argued that one of the best ways in which Great Britain can save on dollar exchange is by cutting down its military establishment abroad.

Until now the Labor government has resisted that pressure out of fear that further reduction in overseas forces would imperil Britain's world position, already seriously undermined. Now Attlee has announced that there would be a reduction in those forces by 80,000 before March, 1948.

The left-wing Laborites insist that the armed forces abroad be reduced by a minimum of 250,000 men and as soon as possible. It is not likely that they will have their way. Yet to the extent that the Attlee government gives in to pressure on this issue, to that extent will Great Britain be forced to revise its foreign policy.

In some respects such a revision is absolutely imperative. That is particularly the case with respect to the Labor government's Palestine policy which from beginning to end has been a monumental mess. At the same time, it is well for Americans to keep in mind that any major shift in Britain's international policies may place new and heavy burdens on us.

For that reason's Britain's threatened political crisis, no less than its acute financial crisis, is being watched with grave concern in Washington.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Airlines' Missed Opportunity

Childs

The contrast with the Senators sitting on the other side of the table could hardly be sharper. For one thing, it's the contrast between youth and age. That is an important element of the drama which has hung the standing room only sign on the Senate's caucus room.

In the duel before the Senate Investigating Committee, Hughes stands for new ideas, for experiment, adventure. He has repeatedly risked his life in backing his own ideas.

The aviation industry is one place where new ideas should be welcome. In 25 years it has grown up from nothing. Yet there seems to be a strong desire to scale it down to the restricted, monopoly pattern.

Not long ago, another young man appeared before a Senate committee with a new and bold idea. That was Lieut. Comdr. Langdon P. Marvin, jr., who, out of his experience with the Naval Air Transport Service during the war and his researches since then, has become an authority on air cargo. Young Marvin talks about the "new sea" and its vast potentialities for freight.

APPEARING as a private citizen before an aviation subcommittee, he testified that his estimates showed three million pounds of air cargo could be carried on a profit-making basis across the Pacific each year. Marvin estimated that this would bring in $2,600,000 in revenue for the airline, or airlines, carrying the cargo. He based this on a careful commodity-by-commodity study.

His estimates are in contrast to those which Pan American Airways furnished the Civil Aeronautics Board. In arguing against granting a certificate of operation to another airline, Pan American estimated that only 152,000 pounds of air cargo a year could be transported on the same route.

"I believe," Marvin said, "that if the airlines which have been granted international certificates by the Government devoted as much study, time and effort to cargo as they have done during the past many years to passengers, they would discover for themselves that there is perhaps twice as much business to be had in the international field as they now anticipate."

AIRLINE thinking, it would seem, is in terms of the past rather than the future. It takes boldness and imagination to project fleets of cargo planes across the new sea. That happened, as Marvin pointed out, during the war. In fact, the war could not have been won without the fleets of Army and Navy cargo planes that brought rare materials from the four corners of the earth. This was particularly true of the vital radar and radio program. The Army Air Transport Command and the Naval Air Transport Service carried millions of pounds of mica, quartz crystals, tantalite, statite and other strategic raw materials from India and Brazil.

The customary answer is: Well, of course, that was done on a cost-plus basis at Government expense. But the figures that Marvin and others have compiled show that a similar air cargo operation is practicable in peacetime at a profit.

A realistic examination of air cargo rates, both within the country and on the international routes, would probably show that they are too high. They are fixed for scarcity instead of expansion.

We must understand that this counts for more than mere profit and loss. A healthy airplane manufacturing industry is essential to national security. As young Marvin pointed out in his testimony, a fleet of cargo planes for peacetime use could be converted almost overnight to carry wartime cargoes. The same cannot be said for passenger planes.

The young are often brash and foolish. They are given to taking risks that often trip them up, but by taking such risks this country has become great. Monopoly and restriction mean old age and senescence. That should not occur in an industry still in its swaddling clothes.

U. S. Predicts A 38% Bigger Crop of Cotton

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Good news came from the Nation's cotton fields yesterday, when the first Government estimate for 1947 predicted a 38 per cent increase in cotton production this year.

Although acreage planted is neary 10 per cent below the Government's goal, good growing weather has raised crop prospects to 11,844,000 bales, or 3,204,000 more than last year's abnormally low harvest.

Government officials asserted that the indicated crop would be sufficient to cover domestic needs and export requirements for the year.

The news was received by the industry with a drop in prices for cotton for future delivery of $4.45 to $4.65 a bale. At one time dealings in New York and New Orleans were off as much as $5 a bale.

Prospects are, the department reported, for 256 million pounds of shorn wool, or 24 million less than last year and 104 million less than the 1936-45 average.

The drop in wool production to the lowest point in 22 years was expected from last week's report that the Nation's sheep population had fallen to the lowest since 1925, and to the third lowest since records have been kept.

The increase in the Nation's supplies of fats and oils was demonstrated in two announcements yesterday.

Soap Price Cut

The first came from Cambridge, Mass., where Lever Brothers Co. cut prices of both Swan soap and Spry vegetable shortening, to match cuts made by Proctor & Gamble Thursday.

The action by Lever's brought cuts in the price of Swan soap in the last five months to a total of 22 per cent, and cuts in Spry to 25 per cent below last winter's highs.

The second was announcement by the Agriculture Department that a special allocation of 15 million pounds of lard for commercial export had been made. All but 2 million pounds for the Union of South Africa goes to Caribbean, Central and South American countries.

Canol Refinery Sold to Toronto Firm for Million

The Foreign Liquidation Commission last night announced the sale of the Canol Project's Whitehorse Refinery to the Imperial Oil Ltd., Toronto, Canada, for one million dollars.

The refinery, which originally cost six million dollars, is designed to process a minimum of 3000 barrels of crude oil daily. It processed 976,764 barrels of crude oil from April, 1944, to March, 1945.

Known as Canol 1, the property originally was offered for sale last February. All bids were rejected as too low. The highest received at that time was $151,133.

Army Draws Up Safety Rules for Nitrate Shipments

The Army yesterday announced safety regulations for transporting ammonium nitrate fertilizer which would "practically eliminate" the possibility of explosions like those at Texas City, Tex., and Brest, France.

The regulations, applying to shipments to occupied areas of Europe and Asia, require posting of a continuous fire watch during loading. They also prohibit shipment of explosives—or sulphur—on a vessel carrying the fertilizer.

The Army ships about 8000 tons of fertilizer a month.

In the future, it said, loadings will take place only at Earle, N. J., and Theodore, Ala., and then only under Army or Navy supervision.

Retired Servicemen May Act for Veterans

Retired officers and enlisted men of the armed forces may now represent veterans in claims against the Veterans Administration, the VA announced yesterday.

Formerly, retired members of the armed services were prohibited acting for veterans as accredited representatives of the 68 national and State organizations authorized to file such claims.

Eisler Defense Rests; Judge Protests Delay

The action was taken soon after Justice James W. Morris warned in a bench conference that if the rival attorneys kept on widening the scope of the case, it would be prolonged "to the point where it will have to be declared a mistrial."

The trial, now in its fifth week, will resume in District Court Monday with rebuttal.

Brother Testifies

Hanns denied the truth of testimony of a Government witness that his brother had boasted in 1939 that "he was going to the United States to show those stupid Americans how to run their (Communist) party."

Earlier testimony was given by Ruth Fischer, sister of the Eislers that Gerhart made the boast to her and Hanns in Paris at that time. Hanns said he hadn't seen his brother and sister together since 1927 when their father died.

Davis on Stand

Also testifying yesterday was Benjamin J. Davis, New York City councilman and member of the National Committee of the Communist Party. Davis testified that Eisler never dictated either to the party or to its organ, the Dily Worker, as contended by the Government.

Other defense witnesses included Walter B. Garland, leader of the United Negro and Allied Veterans of America, and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, another member of the party's national committee.

Joseph Starabin, foreign editor of the Daily Worker, denied he had "the deepest contempt" for the way the case has been tried, but said he was "amazed at the theory of this case and the kind of effort that has been made to harm a man in a way he didn't deserve from us Americans."

Bureau of Mines Uses Sponge Iron To Replace Scrap

The Bureau of Mines said yesterday it has successfully employed old-fashioned sponge iron as a substitute for scrap iron as an aid in the production of high-quality steel.

In the event of an emergency, the bureau said—in a report prepared by metallurgists at its Pittsburgh, Pa., experiment station—sponge iron could be put to production almost immediately, using available equipment such as brick plants or cement kilns.

Before the advent of blast furnaces, sponge iron—a porous product resulting from the reduction of an iron oxide at a low temperature—was the Nation's chief source of iron and steel for tool and cutlery instruments.

The bureau said the cost of sponge iron production—$10.56 a ton—was slightly more than the wartime price of scrap.

Ruhr Coal Talks Slated to Begin Here Tuesday

The State Department said yesterday it expects talks with the British on increasing coal production from the Ruhr mines in Germany to begin here Tuesday.

Michael J. McDermott, press officer, told newsmen that he had no information on arrangements being made for Anglo-American discussions for relaxation of the American loan requirements on Britain. British sources have said this conference also would start next week and probably would be held in Washington.

At a noon meeting with reporters, McDermott said that he thought the United States Government would like to start the proposed 10- or 11-nation meeting to draft a Japanese peace conference in September rather than wait until year's end.

However, McDermott said the decision will be made jointly by patricipating countries. Whether theer will be 10 or 11 countries depends on Russia.

Want Frog Legs?

Jap Products For Foreign Sale Listed

The Commerce Department last night listed 205 different kinds of Japanese-made products, including 1,300,000 beer bottles and 77,520 harmonicas, which may be bought by foreign countries.

Other commodities listed included 300,000 square feet of bamboo blinds; 12,000 sanitary fixtures; 80,000 pounds of frozen frog legs; 61,000 pounds of dried mushrooms; 32,500 squirrel fur skins; 100,000 canvas shoes; 3 million needles; 95,000 Christmas decorations and 26 million yards of silk fabrics.

The Department said September 1 has been set as the tentative date when American businessmen can enter into actual purchase and sales contracts for these products. Those who wish to go to Japan may make arrangements for living accommodations at the rate of $10 a day for lodging and meals, it said.

6 Roads Balk At ICC Scale Of Fare Rises

By The Associated Press

Six railroads notified the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday they object to a formula for revising commutation fares in the East proposed by an ICC examiner in mid-July.

All Eastern lines providing commutation service joined early this year in a petition for increases. Generally they asked for an average 20 per cent boost in commutations to match upward revision in basic passenger fares since computations were last revised.

The examiner who heard the case, Burton Fuller, recommended that the commission approve a sliding scale of increases ranging from 15 to 25 per cent. Further, he suggested the roads sell two types of monthly books, one unrestricted and good for any day in the week, and another, cheaper book restricted to use during the usual five-day work week, but invalid on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

The Erie Railroad told the commission in a separate brief "the examiner's proposal would fall far short of giving the Erie a 20 per cent increase" and challenged the formula for the proposed sliding scale.

Five other railroads—the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western; Lehigh Valley, New York Central, the Pennsylvania, and the Reading Co. said in a joint brief that if the restricted ticket should be ordered "at least 90 per cent" of their commutation sales would be in this form of ticket "with consequent loss of the full measure of additional revenue sought.

On the other hand, the New Jersey Public Utility Commission said in a brief it felt the railroads had failed to produce sufficient evidence to support their plea for increases. However, the State commission said that if increases were granted by ICC, the examiner's findings as to "uniformity fares" and the need for a work-week ticket should form the basis for revisions.

Denmark Estimates Needs at 729 Millions

Copenhagen, Aug. 8 (AP).—Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen estimated today that Denmark would need 3,500,000,000 kroner ($729,000,000) in economic aid under the Marshall proposal for European reconstruction. This aid would permit the country to reach and exceed her prewar agricultural production, he said.

Ga. Democrats May Split in 2 Primaries

Atlanta, Aug. 8 (AP).—The South was witnessing today a political phenomenon within its solid ranks—the threat of two parties holding separate primaries in Georgia and both claiming the Democratic label.

The breach within the Democratic Party's ranks, which developed after the death of the late Gov.-elect Eugene Talmadge, was widened again yesterday with the issue, oddly enough, being "white supremacy" now against "white supremacy" later.

The supporters of Herman Talmadge want action now, while proponents of Gov. M. E. Thompson say it should come in due course at the next legislative session.

Special Session Asked

The issue stemmed from a letter to Thompson from House Speaker Fred Hand advocating a special session of the Legislature immediately to pass an educational qualification measure designed to bar Negroes from the polls.

Immediately after receipt of the letter, Thompson replied that he had advocated such a measure in the 1947 session of the Legislature; that the Hand-led forces who supported Herman Talmadge, turned it down.

Hence, said the Governor, he could see no reason for spending the taxpayers' money to reconvene the Legislature to act on a bill they already had rejected.

Immediately after the rejection of the special session call, Hand said he would attempt to have the Legislature convene itself, an act which requires approval of two-thirds of the membership of both houses.

Along Personal Lines

The argument then spread along strictly pro-Talmadge, pro-Thompson lines. Chairman James S. Peters of the Democratic executive committee aligned with Talmadge, said his forces would continue planning a separate primary unless Hand's proposal was accepted.

A pro-Thompson spokesman, however, State Senator R. G. Daniell of Metter, said he could see nothing to be gained by a special session and as for the second primary threat:

"As an official of the Democratic Party in Georgia I can say emphatically there will be but one Democratic primary in Georgia in 1948. I can tell Mr. Hand for his information that this was settled in Washington when the Democratic National Committee recognized Governor Thompson as the titular head of the party, and at Macon, when Democrats of Georgia met last spring."

Truman Returns To Shangli-La For Weekend

Thurmont, Md., Aug. 8 (U.P.)—President Truman returned to his Shangri-La retreat high in the Catoctin Mountains today for another weekend of rest and relaxation.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Truman, motored the 65 miles from Washington. They left the capital shortly after 2 p. m. (EDT) but his departure was not made public until his arrival here at 4:05 p. m.

It was the second successive weekend that Mr. Truman drove to the mountain retreat. Before returning to Washington Monday morning, he plans to rest, swim and hike through the miles of trails that crisscross the reservation. The weather was pleasantly cool, with a 75-degree temperature, when he arrived.

Portugal Wheat Crop Poor

Lisbon, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Minister of Economy Luiz Supico Pinto said today that Portugal's 1947 wheat crop was the poorest in 25 years. The yield is estimated at 150,000 tons, against a neetd of 475,000 tons. Overheavy rains in some areas, drought in others and a hard winter caused the decline.

The Gallup Poll

Unions Gain Support in Drive To Revise Taft-Hartley Act

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 8.—There is a remarkable parallel between the voting public's attitude toward the omnibus Taft-Hartley Act to regulate labor unions and its attitude toward another omnibus law which for years regulated employers—the Wagner Labor Act.

The Wagner Act was never accepted by the public. Five Institute polls conducted between 1939 and 1947 never once found a majority of voters familiar with the act wanting to see it left unchanged. Always, the weight of opinion was in favor of either revision or repeal. Most voters with opinions felt that it was a one-sided law—unfair to employers.

Today an Institute survey finds the public taking the same kind of attitude toward the Taft-Hartley Act. Among those who have heard or read about the new law, the weight of opinion is in favor of repeal or revision, chiefly on the grounds that it is a one-sided act unfair to unions.

This is eloquent evidence of how effective was the campaign of labor union leaders to tag the act in the public mind as insidious and harmful although it is widely known thot the public favors many individual sections of the act such as the regulation of the closed shop, featherbedding, jurisdictional strikes and the requirement of financial accounting by unions.

The parallels in attitude toward the Wagner Act and the Taft-Hartley Act may be seen in the following Institute poll results.

All voters who have heard or read about the Taft-Hartley Act (6 in 10 have) were asked:

Revised	32%
Repealed	21	Tl. 53%
No opinion	25

In the years 1938-40 on five separate occasions those voters who had heard or read about the Wagner Labor Act (fewer than 6 in 10 had) were asked:

Do you think the Wagner Labor Act should be revised, repealed or left unchanged?

	Mar. 1939	Nov. 1939	Nov. 1940
Revised	29%	25%	24%
No opinion	40	33	43

The most recent test of sentiment on the Wagner Act was in January, 1947, and again the weight of opinion favored revision or repeal. In short, during all the Wagner Act's history on the statute books, there was never widespread support for it as it stood.

TOMORROW: Will the Taft-Hartley Act bring about more strikes—or fewer strikes?

Argentina to Accept Majority Decision on Voting Procedure

Buenos Aires, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Foreign Minister Juan A. Dramuglia announced today that Argentina will abide by the decision of the majority on the question of voting procedure in the inter-AmericanConference on Hemispheric Defense opening in Rio de Janeiro August 15.

The announcement, made a few hours before Bramuglia's departure for the Brazilian capital at the head of the 47-man Argentine delegation, means that Argentina will not insist on its attitude in favor of unanimity but will agree to a two thirds majority vote.

Questioned about press reports that President Juan D. Peron would visit Rio de Janeiro during the conference and would meet President Truman there, Bramuglia said there had been "no negotiations on it, but he did not deny the reports.

All of the 20 American nations attending the Rio conference had repliel to a Pan American Union question on voting procedure. Argentina was the only one favoring the unanimity. Uruguay favored a simple majority and the remaining 18 nations favored a two thirds majority.

GOP, Communists Held 3d Party Press Agents

Indianapolis, Aug. 8 (AP).—Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Democratic National Committee, told a news conference today that "the Republicans and the Communists are the press agents for a third party in 1948."

Here to keynote a Sate convention of Young Democrats tomorrow, Sullivan said the philosophy of the GOP-dominated Congress was one of "probe and probe, smear and smear, duck and duck."

Senate Group Names Hadlick Counsel on Oil

Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) yesterday announced the appointment of Paul E. Hadlick, Minneapolis, as special counsel for the Senate Small Business Subcommitte on Oil.

Wherry said the subcommittee will begin hearings August 21 and 22 in Chicago to investigate shortages of petroleum products in the Midwest.

Krug Calls Parley On Oil Shortages

Secretary of the Interior Krug yesterday summoned leaders of the oil industry to a conference on petroleum shortages here next Friday.

Krug's telegram to executives of all leading oil companies said:

"Because Armed Forces are still critically short of minimum requirements of petroleum products and are encountering serious difficulties in covering forward requirements, I am calling and urgently request you to attend a meeting of refiners with the Department of Interior and the Department of National Defense in conference room 3E669, Pentagon Building, Friday, August 15 at 2:30 p. m."

Cantor Katz to Sing Aug. 17 At VJ-Day Memorial Service

CANTOR KATZ

Cantor Solomon Katz of Beth Sholom Congregation, 8th and Shepherd sts. nw., will sing at the VJ-Day memorial service at South Ellipse rd. on August 17. He will sing the El Mule Rachamim, Hebrew memorial chant for the dead.

The last time Cantor Katz sang the service was during the winter of 1942, when he and 1,600 other Jews were marching toward their graves in a German concentration camp near Kishineff, Bessarabia. Though he saw his friends and family brutally murdered and buried in the graves they had been forced to dig for themselves, Katz escaped with his life.

He fled to Bucharest, where he was cantor of the Grand Temple from 1944 to 1946. He came to the United States early this year.

Cantor Katz has sung in synagogues all over Europe, and performed a memorial service last year in Basel, Switzerland, for the 6,000,000 Jews who perished at the hands of the Germans.

The V-J memorial program at which he will appear will begin with a parade at 4 p. m. from 4th and Constitution, nw., to South Ellipse rd. It will include an honor guard from the Disabled American Veterans and floats built by Washington children who are members of the Junior Peace Mobilizers.

The 702nd Army Air Force Band also will participate in the program.

Cantor Katz will be interviewed by Milton Q. Ford Tuesday at 9 a. m. over Station WWDC. He will sing part of the ceremony for a group from the Peace Mobilizers, and explain it to them.

Editor on Vacation

Robert Tate Allan, church editor of The Washington Post, is on his vacation. His regular column, "Church News and Views" will be resumed when he returns late this month.

Two Churches Plan Services For Veterans

Veterans' Sunday will be observed tomorrow at two Greater Washington churches. Chaplain Penn H. Howard of Russell-Mitchell Post 609 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will speak on "Winning Out Against a Handicap" at the Methodist Church in Annandale, Va., at 11 a. m.

"The veteran finds many handicaps to be overcome in both war and peace," he recently said, "and we in the church cannot stand back with folded arms, but must help him find the answers."

A veteran of the Sixth Marines in the Second Division during World War I, Howard preached for the Salvation Army and the YMCA in France and Germany. He has also been a home missionary in Texas, Wyoming and California.

Lieut. Col. Roy J. Honeywell, USA, will occupy the pulpit at Crossman Methodist Church, Falls Church, Va., at 11 a. m. He will address his sermon particularly to veterans, and there will be special music.

British Baptists To Hear Pruden In Bunyan Chapel

Dr. Edward H. Pruden, pastor of the First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., will speak tomorrow in John Bunyan's Chapel at Bedford, England. He is returning from the World Baptist Congress, recently held in Copenhagen, Denmark, where he addressed the 5000 delegates on "The World Responsibility of Baptists for the Maintenance and Extension of Freedom."

Guest minister at his church here in Washington tomorrow will be Dr. Allen W. Graves, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Charlottesville. At both morning services, 9:45 a. m. and 11 a. m., his sermon topic will be "The Great Age is Now." He will speak on "Life's Open Doors" at 8 p. m.

McKendree Youth Give Lawn Party Tonight

McKendree Methodist Church, South Dakota and 24th st. se., will have a lawn party tonight from 6:30 to 10 o'clock. The evening of recreational events will be sponsored by the Youth Fellowship group of the church.

U. S. Is Urged To Back U. N. Genocide Pact

The National Conference of Christians and Jews has sent a plea to Warren R. Austin, United States delegate to the United Nations, for full support of the Convention for the Prevention and Punishment of Genocide.

Genocide is the crime of destruction, actual or attempted, of a racial, religious, national, political, or linguistic group. According to Mrs. Verna D. Minzel, Washington director of the Conference, the plea was made in a letter sent to Austin.

The Social and Economic Council of the U. N. will consider such a convention in the near future. The letter urged support by the American delegation of favorable action on the Genocide Convention by the proper agency of the U. N. It said, in part, "Unless the United Nations pledge themselves to punish governments, civil servants or individuals found guilty of genocide, there is little meaning in the United Nations organization itself."

The document was signed and indorsed by: James N. Rosenburg, chairman of the Committee on Human Rights of the National Conference; Henry Noble McCracken, president emeritus of Vassar College, and general secretary of the executive committee of the Conference; George N. Shuster; Willard Johnson, Roger W. Strauss, Martin Quigley, Rabbi Louis Finkelstein ,and Norman Thomas.

Survey Published On Christianity

"Christianity Today," the first world-wide survey of the state of Protestant and Orthodox churches since the war, was published by Morehouse Gorham this week. Sponsored by the American Committee for the World Council of Churches, the survey was made by 44 authorities in all parts of the world, under the general editorship of Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, secretary of the committee.

Emphasis in the volume is placed on the political and social problems facing the growth of the church, rather than discussion of dogma. Particular attention is paid to the growth of the "younger churches" of Asia, Africa, and the Pacific.

Alcoholism as Foe Of Man to Be Text

Dr. J. Raymond Schmidt, general superintendent of the National Civic League and associate editor of the National Voice, will preach at the East Washington Heights Baptist Church, 3336 Alabama ave. se., tomorrow at 11 a. m. His sermon will be "Whether Sin or Sickness, Alcoholism Is Foe of Man."

Many Pulpits To Be Filled By Visitors

Throughout August, Washington churches will have a series of guest ministers while pastors vacation. Here are a few of the speakers scheduled for tomorrow.

At Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church 9th and Massachusetts ave. nw., Dr. Ormal L. Miller, minister of the First Methodist Church, Topeka, Kans., will speak at all three services. His topic at 9 a. m. and 11 a. m. will be "A Sense of the Invisible" and at 8 p. m. he will speak on "What Can One Man Do?"

Dr. Miller has had pastorates in Illinois and Wisconsin, and was director of the Wesley Foundation at the University of Wisconsin. He has been at the Topeka church since 1938.

Begins Series of Sermons

West Washington Baptist Church, 31st and N sts. nw., will hear the Rev. Paul B. Watlington, sr., pastor of First Baptist Church of Hagerstown, Md., at 11 a. m.

Dr. Robert Blyth, former moderator of the Ohio Conference, will preach at the 11 a. m. service at First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw. His sermon topic, "The Sustaining God" is the second in a series of four talks he will deliver on "How to Think About God."

Dr. Blyth has held pulpits in Missouri, Ohio and Iowa, and was executive secretary of the Federation of Churches in Minneapolis, and the Council of Churches in Toledo, Ohio.

Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw., will hear the Rev. Robert B. Campbell, rector of the Church of the Incarnation, Cleveland, Ohio. Campbell, who will be priest in charge of the parish until August 22, will speak at the 11 a. m. service.

New G. W. Man to Speak

The pulpit at Luther Place Memorial Church 1226 Vermont ave. nw., will be filled by Dr. Lawrence D. Folkemer, head of the department of Religion at George Washington University. For the past five years Dr. Folkemer has been pastor of the Lutheran Church of Our Savior, Lansdowne, Md.

A graduate of Gettysburg College and Seminary, he received his Doctor of Philosophy from Hartford Theological Seminary in 1946. He will begin his work at George Washington this fall.

Congregations to Hear Reformatory Chaplain

Mount Pleasant Congregational Church and the Universalist Memorial Church will hold a Union Service tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Universalist National Memorial Church, 16th and S sts. nw. The Rev. Dan Potter, chaplain at Lorton Reformatory, Lorton, Va., will be the preacher.

Religious-Minded Bus Driver Goes to Church on the Job

The Washington Post

Jennings Rodeffer, Capital Transit driver, prepares to take church members to the Washington City Church of the Brethren, 4th and North Carolina ave. se. Ward Shoemaker leans over his shoulder

A religious-minded bus driver who has to work too many Sundays to attend church regularly has solved his problem by getting a job going to church.

He is now driving a Capital Transit bus chartered by the Washington City Church of the Brethren, 4th st. and North Carolina ave. se., to pick up church members and carry them to and from Sunday services.

The driver is Jennings Rodeffer, member of the Brethren congregation, who joins with his passengers in singing hymns as they travel to and from the services. The singing is frequently accompanied by guitar and harmonica music.

Dr. Warren D. Bowman, pastor of the Washington City Church of the Brethren, is elated with the success of the bus pick-up service, which started about six weeks ago.

"We have been able to get folks to church who haven't been there for a long time," he says, "and we may charter a bus for another section of the city this fall."

The bus leaves Silver Spring at 9 a. m. Sundays, stopping at homes and apartment buildings to pick up men, women and children en route to Sunday School and church. Rodeffer attends church and Sunday School with his passengers and then drives them home.

Director of the pick-up service is Ward Shoemaker, a Capital Transit motorman and member of the Brethren Church. To expedite the service, Shoemaker carefully checks names of prospective passengers and urges them to be ready on time when the bus stops at their doors.

Rodeffer, who lives with his family at 5612 1st st. nw., reports to Shoemaker's home at 6617 Georgia ave. nw. early Sunday morning, and Shoemaker accompanies the passengers on the trip.

Rev. Peck to Be Guest At Eldbrooke Church

The Rev. Mahlon Peck, minister of Prospect and Marvin Churches, near Mount Airy, Md., will be guest minister at Eldbrooke Methodist Church, River rd. at Wisconsin ave. nw., tomorrow at 11 a. m. He is a former member of the Eldbrooke Church.

Cathedral to Pay California Honor

California will be honored at services at the National Cathedral Mount St. Alban at 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. tomorrow. The State flag will be carried in the processional and prayers offered for the people and government of the State. It is the Cathedral custom to honor a different State each Sunday.

The Rev. W. Crawford Brown, former chief chaplain of the Veterans Administration, will preach at 11 a. m. and Chaplain Johnstone Beech, AUS, will speak at 4 p. m. Both are members of the summer staff of the Cathedral.

Returns to Hamline

Dr. Arthur P. Wilson, pastor of the First Christian Church of Charlotte, N. C., will again be a guest minister at the Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison nw., tomorrow at 11 a. m. His sermon subject will be "The Sovereignty of Character."

Sunday School Career Ended By Dr. Clark

With his retirement last month as general superintendent of the Sunday school of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, Dr. Clifton P. Clark ended a long career as a leader of religious activity in Washington.

Clark

In accepting his request to be relieved of active duty, the church board of education unanimously named him honorary superintendent for life of the church school. They added their sincere thanks for his many years of able and devoted service to the church.

Though he has retired from active service, Dr. Clark will not be resting on his laurels. As soon as he has recovered from a current illness, he plans to continue his work with the Sunday schools in an advisory capacity, and to give his successors the benefit of his long experience.

Started at Age of 9

When he was but 9 years old, Clifton Power Clark became a member of the Methodist Church in his home town of Kosciusko, Miss. He has been active in church work ever since, in spite of a busy life in Government service.

Dr. Clark came to Washington in 1894 to attend the National College of Pharmacy and promptly became a member of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th and Massachusetts ave. nw. Today he is the oldest member of the church in terms of membership.

In 1901 he received his M.D. from Columbian Medical College (later George Washington University) and that same year began teaching a class of teen-age boys at the church. He taught the class for 22 years until he was named superintendent of the Sunday school in 1923.

He held the position of superintendent until 1932, when he resigned. Dr. John W. Rustin, present pastor of the church, reappointed him to the position in 1937, and he continued actively in that capacity until he broke his hip late this spring.

During his many years as general superintendent, he was instrumental in organizing the church school into departments, an accomplishment of which he is particularly proud.

In addition, one of his "pet projects" was the building of the four-story educational building behind the main church. He was on all of the committees for the building, and will tell you that it was "my child." Now he is enthusiastically watching the construction of an addition to the building.

Dr. Clark retired as secretary of the Auxiliary Division of the Coast Guard in May, 1945, after 50 years of continuous Government service. Before working with the Coast Guard, where he spent 30 years, he served with the Treasury and Commerce Departments and the Geological Survey.

A steward of the Mount Vernon Place Church since 1908 and a member of the board of trustees since 1933, Dr. Clark is president of the District of Columbia Sunday School Association. In addition, he has served as president and vice president general of the Sons of the American Revolution and is a member of Masonic Lodge Semper Paratus, No. 49.

Dr. Clark and his wife live at 3845 Chesterbrook rd., Arlington, Va. His daughter, Mrs. Wilson L. Hooff, and a granddaughter live next door to him in Arlington.

Church Ready To Start New Stone Building

Ground-breaking ceremonies will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 for the new Grace Episcopal Church, 3601 Russell rd., Alexandria. Construction of the new building will proceed immediately.

The church was designed by Milton L. Grigg of Charlottesville, Va., and will be built in stone in the design of an informal Gothic church. Estimated cost of the structure is $85,000.

Grace Church has been located at 207 S. Patriarch st., Alexandria, since its founding in 1856. During its 91-year history it has led in the introduction of Catholic liturgical practices and teaching in the Episcopal Church.

The present building has been sold to the Full Gospel Tabernacle, which will take possession at the end of September.

Services tomorrow will be under the direction of the rector, the Rev. Merrill J. Yoh. Members of the vestry will break ground, and the public is invited to attend the ceremony.

Chaplain Charles E. Brown, jr., president of the Chaplain Board of the Army, will be guest preacher at the Wesley Methodist Church, 3742 Jocelyn st., for the next four Sundays. Tomorrow at 11 a. m. he will speak on "My God."

The Rev. Brown is a member of the Colorado Conference of the Methodist Church, and served pastorates in Denver before entering the Army in 1940. He was Protestant chaplain of the Fifth Army during its entire existance, and is now stationed at Fort Meade.

He was educated at Southwestern College in Kansas and Iliff School of Theology, Denver. Since coming to Washington, Chaplain Brown has been an active member of Wesley Church. In September he will become teacher of the Builder's Class

South Dakota Pastor to Serve Parish by Plane

The first air parish in the western United States has been established in South Dakota by a young Lutheran pastor.

Pastor Norval G. Hegland, the flying pastor, will serve five established congregations in a territory covering 5500 square miles in the remote western areas of the State. Some of the congregations are over 100 miles apart.

A licensed pilot, Pastor Hegland will cover his territory in a Piper Super Cruiser, a gift of the Young People's Luther League of South Dakota.

With headquarters at Lemmon, S. Dak., Pastor Hegland will also have two trailers to aid in his work. They will be used as living quarters for his family and as a study and counseling room as he goes from place to place.

Minister to Preach On Book of Joshua

The Rev. Robert L. Ryerse, pastor of the Cherrydale Baptist Church, Arlington, will speak Sunday morning on "Journeying with Joshua." This will be the first in a series of sermons on the book of Joshua. At 7:45 the sermon topic will be "A Famous Wrestling Championship Match."

The series of Brush Arbor meetings will continue at the Arlington Gospel Center Grove, Lee blvd. and N. 2nd st. Evangelist Jack Miller, Mobile, Ala., will speak at 8 p. m. each night.

Adams to Fill Covenant-First Church Pulpit

Rev. Carlyle Adams, editor of the Presbyterian Tribune, will be guest minister at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, 1764 N st. nw., tomorrow at 11 a. m. His sermon topic will be "The Lily of the King."

Dr. Adams is a graduate of George Washington and Ohio State Universities, the Auburn School of Religious Education and Auburn Theological Seminary. He was an instructor in psychology at Auburn School of Religious Education for four years, and has held pastorates in Syracuse and Utica, N. Y.

Dr. Adams has had extensive newspaper experience, and was at one time director of public relations for the National Education Association. Since May, 1946, he has been full-time editor of the Presbyterian Tribune.

Jr. Police Corps To Benefit From Musicales

Two local church events next week will benefit the Junior Police and Citizens Corps. Herbert Bynam, a member of the corps, is presenting a musical program at Mt. Airy Baptist Church, North Capitol and L sts., nw, on Tuesday at 8:30 p.m.

The program will feature the Wilson Harmonizers Quartet, the Johnson Singers, the Sunset Harmonizers Quartet, the Evening Star Gospel Singers, and the Miles Jubilee Quartet. Mrs. Cherry Ward, Pearl Williams and Mrs. Lucille Banks Robinson will also appear.

Tickets for the event may be obtained at 39 I st. ne., or at Junior Police Headquarters, 720 Barry pl. nw.

Deacon Alvin Wimbush of the First Baptist Church at Sherman ave. and Lamont st., has made arrangements for a benefit musicale and literary program tomorrow at 8 p. m. John Wesley and Union Wesley churches will also participate in the program.

Los Angeles Pastor To Preach Here

Dr. Alfred T. DeGroot, dean of Chapman College, Los Angeles, will be guest speaker at the Ninth Street Christian Church, 9th and D sts. ne., tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. He is a graduate of Butler University, Indianapolis, and the University of Chicago, and attended the University of Grenoble, France.

Dr. DeGroot served as minister of several churches of the Disciples of Christ before becoming a teacher. He recently attended the International and World Conventions of the Disciples of Christ in Buffalo, N. Y.

Dairen Closed To U. S. Navy By Russians

By The Associated Press

The State Department said yesterday that because of Soviet Russian objections the United States has refrained since last March from sending American courier ships to the Chinese port of Dairen.

Russia informed this government in March Dairen was a closed port under military administration. Since then supplies and mail for Consul General H. Merrell Benninghoff have been sent on Russian ships.

The State Department declined to say whether the United States proposes to make an issue of the ban, or why it had not been disclosed previously.

By a 1945 Moscow treaty Dairen was to have been administered jointly by China and Russia, but Red Army troops have remained in control despite Chinese efforts, recently itensified, to enter the port.

The Russian notice that the port was closed followed by a few weeks a diplomatic flurry resulting from the forceable departure from Dairen of an American naval ship used as a courier craft.

Missions Institute Set for Aug. 17-24

An Institute of World Missions will be held in Chautauqua, N. Y. August 17-24 under the auspices of three Protestant interdenominational bodies.

Highlight of the institute will be daily forums on such topics as "The Challenge of World Unity to Christian Unity," "What of Russia?" "Missions in a World of Change," and "What Is the Present Status of the United Nations?"

Sponsoring groups are the Home Missions Council of North America, the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, and the United Council of Church Women.

Baltimore Pastor To Preach Twice

Dr. C. C. Meeden, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church in Baltimore, will be guest minister at both services at Petworth Baptist Church, 7th and Randolph st. nw., tomorrow. At 11 a. m. he will speak on "The Greatness of God," and at 8 p. m. his subject will be "Physician of the Mind."

Greece Charges Border Raid By Albanians Near Ioannina

Athens, Aug. 8 (AP).—The Greek army announced today an Albanian force had crossed the border in a raid near Ioannina, the capital of Epirus.

A communique from Eighth Division headquarters said a Greek soldier was wounded, and taken prisoner by Albanians who had crossed the border and clashed with a Greek engineers' corps near Kakavia, about 27 miles north of Ioannina.

A small rail bridge was blown up, cutting rail communications with western Thrace, by a sabotage team coming from the Rodope Mountains, where the Bulgarian border is only 15 miles from the Aegean Sea, the authorities said.

There was a feeling of uneasiness in Athens today as the price of gold went up sharply. The gold sovereign was selling at the rate of 170,000 drachmas, compared with the stabilized rate of 135,000. The rate was 139,000 when the American mission to aid Greece arrived several weeks ago.

Greeks said there has also been some concern over reported reluctance of the American mission to agree to a proposal that the Greek army be increased from 135,000 to 200,000 or 250,000.

Guest Minister At N. Y. Avenue

Tomorrow at 11 a. m. Dr. Herbert Booth Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Burlingame, Calif., will be guest minister at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. His sermon subject will be "Why the Church Cannot Fail." Dr. Smith was moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States in 1942.

The Rev. Arnold F. Keller, assistant pastor at the Church of the Reformation, 212 E. Capitol st., will speak on "The Church and Vanity Fair" at services at 8:30 a. m. and 11 a. m. tomorrow. Rev. Robert E. Lee, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Silver Spring, will speak on "Making the Weak Spots Count, at 8 p. m.

The combined Luther Leagues will begin a series on "Lessons for Living for Great Personalities" at 6:45 p. m. Their first speaker will be Edwin B. Patterson, who will talk on Abraham Lincoln.

Harvey to Lead 'Church of the Air'

Daily devotions of the "Arlington Church of the Air" will be conducted this week by the Rev. Harvey Glass, minister of the Trinity Presbyterian Church, Arlington. He will speak daily, August 11-15, at 8:45 a. m., over Station WARL.

The Sunday service tomorrow will be conducted from St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Arlington, at 11 a. m.

To Preach at Herndon

The Rev. G. Wilbur Shipley of Washington will conduct services at the Herndon, Va., Presbyterian Church tomorrow at 11 a. m. The Rev. Shipley is a former pastor of the Herndon church.

Dutch Report Oil Field Fires In East Java

Batavia, Java, Aug. 8 (AP).—Fires were reported today by the Netherlands army on the royal Dutch-Shell Co.'s Tjepoe oilfields in East Java, as accusations of violations of the cease-fire order were renewed by both Dutch and Indonesians.

The Dutch communique said the fires had been spotted by air reconnaissance. The oilfields are within Republican-held territory.

A charge that Indonesian forces had inflicted 39 casualties since the cease-fire became effective at midnight Monday also was made by the Netherlands army. The communique said the Indonesians again had attacked a Dutch outpost at Randegankoelon, west of Soerabaja, and that "action had to be taken against armed bands" in various unspecified places. The Dutch asserted that these bands were "chiefly occupied in robbery and demolitions" and that they were engaging in "inhuman cruelties" in mistreating and sometimes murdering people, mostly Chinese.

The Republican radio at Jogjakarta said two Dutch infantry sections occupied the small villages of Kranggan and Kelampok, near Ambarawa in North Central Java this afternoon.

Representatives of the Netherlands East Indies government and the Dutch-sponsored states of West Borneo and East Indonesia disclosed today they planned to fly to the United States to present the case of the Dutch and non-Republican areas of Indonesia to the American people and perhaps to the United Nations. Their departure was set tentatively for Sunday.

Dr. P. J. Koets, chief of Acting Governor General Hubertus J. Van Mook's personal cabinet and a native of Georgia, said he would make the trip "with several others, but I am not heading any official delegation."

Sultan Hamid II of Pontianak, President of West Borneo, said he would go, and informed sources said President Tjokorde Soekawati of East Indonesia, a Balinese nobleman, probably would be in the party.

Church Would Join Baptist Society

Members of the Memorial Baptist Church of Arlington voted this week to seek admission to the Potomac Baptist Association when it convenes August 28 and 29. The church was organized in April of this year and conducts services each Sunday morning in the Glebe Theater, 2130 Glebe rd., Arlington.

Andy Wallen, William D. Payne and C. C. Riddle were elected messengers to the association meeting. The Rev. James W. Farmer, pastor of the church, also designated a nominating committee to select candidates to be deacons of the church.

Rev. Young to Speak

The Rev. Claude G. Young, assistant minister at Lincoln Congregational Temple, 11th and R. nw., will be speaker at the 11 a. m. service tomorrow.

Boone to Preach At Calvary Church

Dr. Bolton Boone, District Superintendent of the Methodist Church, Wichita Falls, Texas, will be guest speaker at the Calvary Methodist Church, 1459 Columbia rd., tomorrow at 11 a. m. Dr. Orris Gravenor Robinson, minster of the church, will conduct the service.

At the 8:30 p. m. twilight service, Dr. Byron Fox, professor of sociology at American University, will be speaker, and the service will be led by William Frick.

Oregon Group to Give Gospel Song Program

"The Gospel in Song" will be presented at Wilson Boulevard Christian Church, 3850 Wilson blvd., Arlington at 8 p. m. tomorrow. Singers will be the Northwest Crusaders' Male Quartet of the Northwest Christian College, Eugene, Oreg.

Chaplain Harold G. Elsam, of the Office of the Chief of Army Chaplains, will be guest minister at the 11 a. m. service.

Services at Knox Church

The Rev. William H. Anderson, jr., will conduct services at the Knox Orthodox Presbyterian Church, Granville dr. and Sutherland rd., Silver Spring, at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Nicholson's Homer Beats Blackwell

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

"ACCIDENTS WILL happen," was the airy, if trite, philosophy expressed yesterday by Mr. Al Weill who was seemingly showing no dismay at collisions involving the chins of two of his fighters recently. But it didn't stick. One sentence later, Philosopher Weill gave up the pose and wailed, "But why do they always happen to me?"

POVICH

Actually nothing happened to Weill who has been in the boxing business for 30 years without having had a glove laid on him. He's that smart. Weill has the perfect defense. At the opening bell he circles rapidly out of the ring and with good footwork gets down the steps to the shelter of the water bucket. But plenty has been happening to his fighters, namely Danny Kapilow and Marty Servo.

Three weeks ago, Weill's boy Kapilow was jaywalking across the ring in Griffith Stadium, against a red light, or something, and was struck down by a left hook driven by Smuggy Hursey. The accident was duly reported by Announcer Jimmy Lake who put the time at 41 seconds of the first round. This week at Bridgeport, Conn., Weill's other boy, Marty Servo, strolled into a left hook driven by one Joe DiMartino and was numbed in 1:41 of the first round.

WEILL'S CURRENT interest in Washington is the Kapilow-Hursey re-match at Griffith Stadium on Monday night. This one, too, is scheduled for 10 rounds. As a partner in the promotion, he's visioning a gate in excess of the $46,000 they drew last time out. Advance sales indicate he may be correct. There's more money in the till three days in advance of this one than there was the night of their last brief encounter.

"He caught Danny cold," explains Weill. At any rate, Kapilow was cold 41 seconds after the opening bell, no matter what temperature he was running when he entered the ring. "It happens that way," says Weill. "A fighter gets shocked when he's hit before he gets warmed up. The same punch he got knocked out with wouldn't hurt Danny a couple of rounds later."

Weill is taking precautions against any repetition of their last affair. "Danny's gonna shadow-box three rounds in the dressing room before he steps into the ring. And then he's gonna stay away from Hursey for two or three rounds. He outboxed Hursey a couple of years ago and got a decision, and he's a better boxer now."

KAPILOW HIMSELF has walked out of a ring the winner by a one-round knockout, Weill points out. "Just to show you it don't mean nothing when a kid gets stopped in one, look at Gene Burton. Kapilow put him away in the first round at Pittsburgh last year. Since then Burton bounced back to beat good fighters like Ike Williams and Johnny Bratton. You don't take a bad beating when you get stopped in one."

Weill's un-silent partner, Goldie Ahearn, then took over the drumsticks to beat out the ballyhoo for Monday's re-match. "Don't think Kapilow can't win. I remember Johnny Dundee, the uncrowned lightweight champion, getting knocked out by Willie Jackson in 1917. Jackson's a $150 fighter then and he stops Dundee in one. Dundee licked him four times after that in re-matches."

He hauled out, too, the case of Bob Montgomery, who was stopped by Al Davis in one round. "So what?" said Ahearn. "Four weeks later Montgomery beats Beau Jack. Jimmy McLarnin was upset in one round by Ray Miller some years ago. They rematched 'em, and McLarnin made a mess of Miller. Back in 1919, Frankie Rice stopped me in one round. I wasn't knocked out again until 1926."

INDIRECTLY, AHEARN blames what happened to Kapilow in the last Hursey fight on Joe Louis, of all people. He builds a quaint case to point out that Hursey was an inspired fighter on July 14.

"Joe Louis is in town for a luncheon that day, and he says he is going to see the fight. I tell Hursey that Louis will be watching him, and the kid is all excited and wants to meet Louis right away. He gets to shake hands with Louis before the fight and Joe tells him 'go in there and make me proud of you,' or something like that.

"You know how all colored kids are. They think Joe Louis is wonderful—and he is—and this Hursey ain't paying any attention to the referee's instructions. He's just staring at Joe Louis all the time. Then he wants to show off in front of Louis without wasting any time, and he lets that left hook go at Kapilow's chin. Danny goes down all because Smuggy is a show-off."

Rudy York's Homer Beats Newhouser

Detroit, Aug. 8 (AP).—Tying the score with a two-run rally after two were out in the ninth, the Chicago White Sox stopped the Detroit Tigers, 4 to 2, in a twilight game today on Rudy York's two-run homer in the 10th.

York's first home run in Detroit since he wore a Tiger uniform in 1945 was his 14th of the season and pinned the loss on Hal Newhouser—his 11th—after the Detroit southpaw had been just one putout away from a 2-0 shutout in regulation distance.

Singles by Taft Wright, Luke Appling, Cass Michaels and Pinch-Hitter Red Ruffing brought the Sox from behind to knot the count at 2-all in the ninth and Bob Kennedy singled ahead of York's homer in the 10th.

Appling had a perfect day at bat, gathering four straight hits off Newhouser, who gave up 14 in all. Lefthander Frank Papish of the Sox needed help from Earl Caldwell in the 10th but received credit for the victory.

Jim Thackara Ousts Johnsen In Fast Sets

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

While spectators continued to wonder how he does it, lanky Jim Thackara won another match in the Middle Atlantic Tennis Tournament yesterday at Columbia Country Club, advancing to the finals to justify his No. 1 rating.

This time Thackara, slapping serve and all, hung a stinging 6—4, 6—2 beating on Davey Johnsen, the torney's third-seeded player, after a sizzling comeback.

After six games of the day's only men's singles match it looked like Johnsen by a mile.

The young doctor was leading, 4—2, by breaking Thackara's serve in the first game; saw his own broken in the fourth as Thackara tied it up, then swept to a 2-game lead.

Davey Blows Up

But then everything went wrong for Davey. To make it worse he lost his temper as his volleys hit the net and his serve went wild. Thackara won four straight games, cosing out the set on Johnsen's two double faults in the tenth game.

Thackara quickly ran up a 2-0 lead in the second set before a brief rally by the sweating Johnsen knotted the set at 2-2. From then on, however, Johnsen was a beaten contender.

Men's singles finals are scheduled tomorrow at 2 p. m., listing Thackara against one of three players. John Curtiss and Don Leavens finish their interrupted quarterfinal match at 2 p. m. today, and immediately afterward the winner faces second-seeded Barney Welsh for the right to tangle with Thackara.

Storm Halts Matches

When a thunder storm halted numerous matches yesterday officials set new times for the wind-ups today. Before the rains, however, Margaret Sweeney earned a semifinal match with top-seeded Anne Gray in women's singles, tripping Libby Prince by a 6-4, 6-4 score.

In the only completed mixed doubles quarterfinal, Anne Gray and Phil Neff romped over the Hall-McCarthy team, 6-1, 61.

Bert Bell Sets $750,000 Goal In Charity Games

Philadelphia, Aug. 8 (AP).—Upwards of $750,000 is expected to be raised for charity in 17 of the 22 nonchampionship games to be played by the National Football League in a dozen States this season.

Commissioner Bert Bell based is estimates today on the more than $500,000 raised last year by league members and the increased demand for regular season games in practically every city in the circuit.

The preseason contests will start on August 22 with the champion Chicago Bears meeting meeting the college all-stars in Chicago for the tribune charities.

The nonchampionship series will be concluded nearly a month later, September 21, with a clash between the Washington Redskins and Green Bay in Baltimore's Municipal Stadium with the charities of the variety clubs of Washington and Baltimore benefiting.

Rocky Fights Duke Next Month

San Francisco, Aug. 8 (AP).—Georgie Duke, Petaluma, Calif., middleweight fighter has accepted an offer to meet Rocky Graziano next month in Philadelphia, one of his managers, Billy Newman, said today.

The exact date and Duke's share of the gate have yet to be worked out, Newman said.

Mayflower Takes Hotel Title, 12-3

The Mayflower Hotel won the second-half championship of the Hotel Softball League by defeating the Willard, 12-3, yesterday on the Monument Grounds. Mayflower will meet Wardman Park, first-half winners, for the title next Wednesday.

On Again, Off Again in Albany

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP).—The long and the short of the shorts vs. long pants controversy involving Albany's male tennis players grew more confused today.

The city's Public Works Department, clarifying an order interpreted by bare-legged men as banning them from the Municipal Golf Course Courts, explained that shorts are all right if they're not too short.

But before the males could doff their long, white ducks and don shorts again, Superintendent of Parks Thomas P. Murray declared that the law bans shorts for both men and women.

The law, he added, requires that long pants be worn for tennis and also prohibits any person from appearing on the streets in shorts.

Keiser's 134 Paces Field At Spokane

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 8 (AP).—Herman Keiser of Akron, Ohio, added a one-under-par 69 to his 65 of yesterday to rank as the pace setter today in the $10,000 Esmeralda Open Golf Tourney at 134, with only a few of the 125 entrants still on the course.

Among them, however, was Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., who was tied with Keiser at the end of the first 18 yesterday, and Bud Ward, the Western amateur king.

Ward was five under par after a bogey five on the 14th and Hogan was one under to that point. The amateur star was out to make up the strokes he lost yesterday in posting a 72.

Ted Neist, Walla Walla, Wash., had the best round of the day to this point with 66 and was in a second place tie with Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich., with 138. Furgol had a 70 to go with his first-round 66.

A brisk wind was giving the 125 entrants trouble today.

Kochan Kayoed In 4th by Fox

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Belting Billy Fox, who makes a specialty of putting other fellows to sleep, chalked up his forty-eighth knockout victory in forty-nine professional starts tonight by stopping game Georgie Kochan in the fourth round of a 10-rounder in Madison Square Garden. Fox scaled 171, Kochan 174.

Actually, Georgie was still on his feet and still trying at the finish of this one, but early in the fourth heat, the one-time Akron, Ohio, barber was hurt and he had to hang on to save himself, so Referee Frank Fullam halted the proceedings at 1 minute 9 seconds of the fourth session.

California Sun Melts Pounds Off Redskins

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 8.—If a vote were taken at the Washington Redskin training camp on the local weather today, the All-Year Club of Southern California might have been deeply disturbed, but for several ponderous gentlemen training here it was just what the doctor ordered.

Coach Turk Edwards, a little on the hefty side himself, is an understanding man but he also is firm about playing weights, so the heat and humidity (also showers) came as a great boon to some of the bulky 'Skin linemen.

There are a half dozen players on the Washington team who make the scales groan at 250 pounds or better and the excellent chow at Occidental College hasn't simplified their problem.

Texan Harris Up to 280

Heaviest of the Redskin clan is Henry Harris, a newcomer who played down Texas way. He reported at something over 275 pounds, once went up as high as 284 and now is back down to 280 through the use of three sweat shirts during workouts.

Paul Grayson, another Texan, came in at 270 pounds but his weight chart showed today that he had worked himself down to a fine 257 which isn't too bad for a tackle.

Don Avery, the former Trojan, and a regular tackle last season, played at 255 pounds. His present mark is 266 but another few days like today should get him down to size.

Some of Little Boys

Other large linemen on the Washington roster include John Adams, regular tackle, who goes over 255 pounds but carries it well with his 6 feet, 7½ inches; Cliff White, a rookie tackle who also is over 250, and Ernie Williamson, at 255 pounds.

White, who hails from Murray State College, and Williamson, star at North Carolina, apparently are making the coaching staff happy but Coach Edwards knows this group of giants can do themselves and the 'Skins a lot more good with a little less excess weight.

The cutting process started today on the squad. Trimmed from the roster were the names of Bill Gold, Tennessee back, and Merl Osborne, another back, from Iowa State.

It's Hudson's Turn

Nats Rained Out, Tackle Macks Today

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—Philadelphia was all wet tonight, which was all right with the Nats. The night off may enable them to regain their hitting eye for an afternoon game with the A's tomorrow.

Tonight's contest, which was to have opened a four-game series, was called off an hour before game time. It rained all day, and by 7:30 p. m. Shibe Park was a fit place to go wading but not to play a ball game.

Sid Hudson will do the Nats' pitching tomorrow, opposed by one of the league's upper bracket pitchers, Phil Marchildon, also a righthander.

Hudson will be shooting for his sixth victory, while Marchildon goes after his fourteenth. Marchildon will be the American League's high man if he succeeds.

The Nats, who don't see the sun often, will be playing their second straight game in the daylight and will be exposed to the heat again Sunday afternoon when they sweat out a doubleheader with the A's.

Manager Ossie Bluege's clan won't find any soft touch in the A.'s The Macks aren't fighting to merely hang onto fourth place. They've got their sights set on second place. They are only three games removed from that lofty position.

YEAH, AND IF the Yankees slip we'll move into the lead," said Coach Al Simmons by way of indulging in a little wishful thinking.

The Nats aren't thinking in terms of overhauling the Yanks, which is a good thing, or even second place. They'll settle for fourth place. There's a ve-game difference between sixth place, where they now repose, and fourth, where the A.'s stand.

Early Wynn, Chic Pieretti, Gerry Priddy and Johnny Sullivan were late getting here. They followed the schedule which was posted on the bulletin board in their dressing room at Griffith Stadium, which called for a 4:15 departure instead of 4 o'clock. Other members of the club assembled at Union Station earlier and made it OK . . . This is the first time the Nats have been in Philadelphia since May 25 . . . It's also the third straight time that a series opener here has been postponed . . . Trainer "Doc" Lentz may return to George Washington University, where the Nats got him, for the football season . . . After Philadelphia, the Nats move to Boston for three games before returning to Griffith Stadium with the A's next Friday evening, Cecil Travis Night.

Game Called— On Account Of Skunks! !

Rehoboth, Dela., Aug. 8 (AP).—Umpire Bob Hanks of Fulton Canal, Ohio, ran afoul of a customer he admittedly didn't care to argue with in an Eastern Shore Baseball League game here.

When a skunk parked himself on the diamond during the fifth inning of a game between Rehoboth and Seaford, all the players including two base runners hit for the dugouts.

When Coach Doug Peden of Rehoboth demanded him to take action, Umpire Hanks retorted:

"I've argued with a lot of things, but darned if I'm going to get spat on."

Osborne, Brough Gain Net Finals

South Orange, N. J., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Margaret Osborne of San Francisco and Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., the Nation's top-ranking women tennis players, gained the final round of the women's singles in the Eastern grass court championships today with semi-final victories.

Miss Osborne, seeded first in the tourney, defeated Beverly Baker of Santa Monica, Calif., 6—2, 6—2, and Miss Brough had to rally to beat third-seeded Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, 6—2, 1—6, 6—2.

11th Inning Blow Gives Cubs 2-1 Win

Chicago, Aug. 8 (AP).—Bill Nicholson's home run with one out in the eleventh inning and a triple play in the seventh gave the Chicago Cubs a 2-1 decision over Ewell Blackwell and the Cincinnati Reds today before a ladies' day crowd of 25,258 (actual).

The defeat was the third in a row for Blackwell following his string of 16 straight victories. He allowed the Cubs 12 hits but would have had a shutout victory except for Bert Haas' two-base error which led to Chicago's first run in the second.

Johnny Schmitz allowed the Reds 10 hits. His victory stopped a four-game losing string for Chicago, and increased Cincinnati's losing streak to four.

Len Merullo started the triple play which cut off the Reds' biggest threat in the seventh. After Grady Hatton had reached second and Haas first on successive singles in the seventh, Babe Young sent a hit-and-run liner over second. Merullo leaped high to spear the ball with his gloved hand, doubled Hatton by touching second, and threw to Eddie Waitkus at first for the final out.

Nicholson counted the Cubs' first run in the second after Haas dropped his fly to left-center, permitting Nicholson to go all the way to second. Nick moved to third on Bobby Sturgeon's infield out and scored on Merullo's half-swing single along the third-base line.

Ewell's Folks Disappointed

Chicago, Aug. 8 (AP).—When Bill Nicholson homered off Pitcher Ewell Blackwell to give the Chicago Cubs a 2-1, 11-inning victory today over the Cincinnati Reds, there were at least two people in the predominantly Cub crowd of 25,258 who didn't join in the cheering.

They were the Cincinnati hurler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Blackwell of Bonita, Calif., who for the first time today saw their son pitch a professional baseball game.

British Bantam Beats Marino

Manchester, England, Aug. 3 (AP).—Peter Kane, British bantamweight, outpointed Dado Marino of Honolulu in a 10-round fight here tonight, hammering out a one-sided decision over the Hawaiian who has been named the logical contender for the recently vacated world flyweight title.

Kane, who weighed 117 pounds to Marino's 114¾, had his opponent in trouble frequently but could not score a knockout in hanging up the eleventh straight triumph of his comeback campaign as a bantamweight.

Kane, who has been matched against Theo Medina of France for the European bantamweight championship at Manchester August 29, took no chances as Marino opened up by swinging a vicious left to the body.

Marino, who tried to keep it a close-quarter affair, was uppercut in clinches and often hurt by Kane's chopping right hand. Between rounds, Marino's seconds worked on him frantically. The Hawaiian's left eye was completely closed, blood streamed from his nose and his mouth gaped wide open as Kane pounded him backward across the ring round after round.

"This defeat will not make any difference to my plans and I still hope to win the world flyweight title," Marino said.

Mrs. Godfrey Triumphs In Class A Golf Play

Mrs. J. W. Godfrey won first place in Class A of the Ladies' Day play at Congressional yesterday.

She carded a 88—10—78. Mrs. H. P. Foley took first place in Class B with a 97—25 for a 72. Class C was won by Mrs. V. C. Reid with a 111—35—76.

Quantico Wins Another, 10-8

Quantico, Va., Aug. 8.—The Quantico Marines beat out Camp Lee, 10 to 8, with a six-run splurge in the eighth inning of their Middle Eastern Service Conference game here today.

The Marines meet Bolling Field next week in the finals of the Shaughnessy playoffs for the championship.

Bob Johnson's second home run with the bases filled tied the score in the eighth, and Outfielder Les Veigel poked his third hit, a triple, to drive in the winning run.

Heurich Wins Post Title, 3-1

Heurich defeated Naiman's Disc Shop, 3-1, yesterday in the playoff for the second half title of The Post Industrial League. The Brewers also won the first half title.

Bonifant homered for Naiman's lone run in the fourth inning. Heurich sewed things up in that same fourth with a three-run outburst against Lefty McIntyre.

Rudy York's Homer Beats Newhouser

Detroit, Aug. 8 (AP).—Tying the score with a two-run rally after two were out in the ninth, the Chicago White Sox stopped the Detroit Tigers, 4 to 2, in a twilight game today on Rudy York's two-run homer in the 10th.

York's first home run in Detroit since he wore a Tiger uniform in 1945 was his 14th of the season and pinned the loss on Hal Newhouser—his 11th—after the Detroit southpaw had been just one putout away from a 2-0 shutout in regulation distance.

Singles by Taft Wright, Luke Appling, Cass Michaels and Pinch-Hitter Red Ruffing brought the Sox from behind to knot the count at 2-all in the ninth and Bob Kennedy singled ahead of York's homer in the 10th.

Appling had a perfect day at bat, gathering four straight hits off Newhouser, who gave up 14 in all. Lefthander Frank Papish of the Sox needed help from Earl Caldwell in the 10th but received credit for the victory.

D. C. Printers Gain Finals, 4-0

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 8 (AP).—Washington and St. Paul won victories in the semifinals of the International Typographical Union baseball tournament here today, and will meet for the title Saturday morning.

Washington defeated Detroit, 4 to 0, and St. Paul walloped New York, 13 to 7. St. Paul is the only undefeated team in the tournament with five in a row to its credit. Washington has won four and lost one—and that one to St. Paul. If St. Paul should lose Saturday morning's game, the teams would have to play it out again in the afternoon.

Fight Managers Urge Garden To Stop Television of Bouts

NEW YORK, Aug. 8 (AP).—Because of strenuous protests by the Boxing Managers' Guild of New York, television may disappear from Madison Square Garden after tonight's light-heavyweight bout between Billy Fox of Philadelphia and Georgia Kochan of New York City.

The fight managers, convinced that recently dwindling crowds at the Garden have been attributable to free television showings of the bouts in hundreds of city taverns, have threatened a virtual strike program unless the picture machines are cleared out.

RATHER THAN force the issue, Acting Manager Sol Strauss of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club said today he was seeking cancellation of the current contract with NBC and that he definitely would not renew the agreement upon its expiration in May, 1948.

"I want peace," Strauss said. "Television is not worth the trouble that the small revenue gives us. I am not of the opinion held by many managers that it materially affects attendance. I think the real trouble is that money isn't as plentiful as it was."

Armed Tops Field of 11 In Chicago

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug 8 (AP).—Stymie tries to add $19,050 to his record bankroll of $719,660 in the Whitney States at Saratoga tomorrow, and about the only one in the field of five who figures to give him any trouble doing it is the mighty Maryland mare, Gallorette.

Nine juvenile speedsters, headed by Ben Whitaker's My Request, with 122 pounds aboard, and Greentree Stable's highly rated Star Bout, toting 126, were entered today to take a crack at the 6-furlong dash and the $15,675 winner's end.

Only horse in history to go over the $700,000 mark in earnings, Stymie will be toting a comparatively lightweight package—for him—of 126 pounds as he heads into the Whitney mile-and-a-quarter.

The rags-to-riches romper from Texas is sporting a string of three straight wins now, featuring the $100,000 International Gold Cup at Belmont and the Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk.

A victory would make her the second filly ever to win more than $300,000 and would leave her only some $20,000 back of Busher as the all-time champion of her sex.

Armed and Bewitch Shoot for $72,025

Chicago, Aug. 8 (AP).—Calumet Farm's two brightest stars, Armed and Bewitch, will shoot for a $72,025 pay check at Washington Park tomorrow.

Armed topped a field of 11 named today for the $30,000 added Sheridan Handicap at a mile. Bewitch was one of 10 2-year-old fillies named for the rich Princess Pat Stakes at 6 furlongs. With 10 starters, the race will gross $60,125.

Bewitch, winner of all six starts of her career, will run her earnings to $146,125 if she takes the Princess Pat, the winner's share of which will be $48,875.

The Princess Pat and the Arlington Lassie Stakes, which Bewitch won last month, rank as the Nation's outstanding stakes for juvenile fillies. As in the Lassie Stakes, Bewitch will be accompanied to the post by her stablemates, Whirlsome and Airy.

Warren Wright's Calumet Farm, which already has broken its own all-time record for earnings by one stable in a single season, now has $736,191 to its credit. By winning both of tomorrow's stakes, Calumet can run its total to $808,216.

In seeking victory in this event for the third consecutive year, Armed will renew his duel with Brolite Farm's With Pleasure. Armed will carry 132 pounds and With Pleasure 124. With Pleasure whipped Armed twice at Arlington.

'We Want Baski—Walcott—Anybody'

Al Weill's At It Again—This Time It's a Heavyweight Hope

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—The deep and dulcet tones of Fight Manager Al Weill's vocal equipment were working overtime today—he's got a new heavyweight "White Hope" from South America.

The latest shipment of Argentine beef, not subject to governmental quarantine, is named Angel Sotillo, and he hails from Santa Cruz, Argentina.

The six foot-two, 200-pound, 27-year-old sudamericano stepped from a plane at Newark airport, and Weill immediately began knocking on the doors of Madison Square Garden officials to line up a fight for him.

"We want Baksi, Tandberg, Walcott — anybody," insisted Weill.

He said his gladiator has had 100 fights and has won 70 of them by knockouts. He's lost only four scraps and has never been on the deck, according to Weill.

Arturo Godoy, the Chilean submariner who lost in 15 rounds to heavyweight champion Joe Louis and then was kayoed in eight rounds in a return go, recommended Sotillo to Weill.

Weill, who has handled ex-lightweight champion Lou Ambers, ex-featherweight champion Joey Archibald and who now manages ex-welterweight titlist Marty Servo, was making noises like he believed he might have the successor to Louis' crown.

Mal Stevens Mum On Reports Yanks, He Have Parted

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Dr. Marvin A. (Mal) Stevens, noted orthopedic surgeon and former Yale football coach, would neither confirm nor deny a report today that he had severed his connections with the New York Yankees' organization.

"My contract with the Yankees runs to the end of this year," he said, "and part of my understanding with the Yankees is that I will issue no statements while the contract is in force."

Stevens agreed, however, that it was obvious he had not accompanied the Yankee baseball club on its present trip, and that he was not supervising the physical welfare of the football Yankees at their training camp.

Two weeks ago it was announced that Dr. Stevens had been replaced as the baseball club physician by Dr. Jules Gordon, and that he would shift his ministrations to the Yank footballers. Yankee officials said "no comment."

First Flight 9th at Saratoga

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug 8 (AP).—C. V. Whitney's queenly First Flight, beaten but once in her eight starts, finished a shocking ninth in the twenty-third Test Stakes at Saratoga today as Sidney S. Schupper's Miss Disco and J. M. Roebling's Frantie's Bid—the only "field" horses in the stake—showed the way home.

Miss Disco, which had beaten an ordinary sprint field in her previous outing at Jamaica, took the $7500 first money by a half length. Frantie's Bid, second to First Flight in the recent Monmouth Oaks, again was the runner-up, beating Carr aHtch's Ocean Brief by another half length.

125 Coaches Attend Clinic

Richmond, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—More than 125 athletic coaches from all sections of the Old Dominion turned out for Virginia's first annual high school coaching clinic which opened here today at the Hotel John Marshall.

Among the coaches were five of the State's "big six" college head mentors, including R. N. (Rube) McCray of William and Mary; Art Guepe of the University of Virginia; Arthur (Slick) Morton of Virginia Military Institute; Johnny Fenlon of the University of Richmond, and Art Lewis of Washington and Lee.

Only "big six" college coach missing from the clinic picture was Virginia Tech's Jimmy Kitts, who was unable to attend because of illness.

McCray was scheduled to discuss the single wingback formation which his Indians used so effectively last season to brush aside all State opposition and take second place in the Southern Conference.

Aussies Sweep Davis Cup Play

Montreal, Aug. 8 (AP).—Australia's tennis forces reached the interzone Davis Cup finals today when John Bromwich and Colin Long crushed the Canadian doubles combination of Gordie MacNeil and Edgar Lanthier, 6—2, 6—1, 6—0, to take the North American zone title with three straight victories.

The doubles triumph followed Australian victories in yesterday's opening singles matches, in which Dinny Pails defeated Henri Rochon and Geoff Brown stopped Brendan Macken.

Recreation Net Tourney Starts Today

The D. C. Recreation Department's annual tennis tournament gets under way today at 10 a. m. on the 16th and Kennedy st. courts.

Play will continue daily for a week with 115 men and 63 women seeing action.

Injury Benches Eddie Miller

Chicago, Aug. 8 (AP).—Eddie Miller, veteran Cincinnati Reds shortstop, was benched today by the injuries he received in yesterday's collision with Outfielder Frank Baumholtz at St. Louis.

Two stitches were necessary to close a cut on Miller's chin. Manager Johnny Neun indicated he would keep Miller benched for most of the week-end series with the Chicago Cubs.

Louray O'Neill Romps Home In Hagerstown's Special

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 8.—The bargain claim of Maryland's summer season—Mrs. W. I. Molyneux's Louray O'Neill—today thrilled a crowd of 5000 by leading every step for the Hotel Tlefflander Purse, 6½-furlong feature.

Jimmy Baird, the meeting's hottest jockey, rode a perfect race to enable the public's choice to register his second consecutive victory.

It was Louray O'Neill's second triumph since being claimed several weeks ago for $1250. Chasing the favorite home was J. Marzaan's Salmart, with E. A. Nicodemus' Mayfern third, after ptting a gallant race for a half mile.

Favorite players got a running strt today, when their choices won the first two events. The five-eighths opener event went to M. M. Greene's Tie Me, which won by a dozen lengths to pay $3.80. The place went to Mrs. E. K. Hillman's Purple Peggy, with L. A. Borowy's Bloodhound third.

M. Cranford's Kiddie Image ran off with the mile and one sixteenth in the second to enable form players to collect $4. Mrs. E. K. Hillman's Transline and J. N. Fishback's Sir Midas divided the rest of the money.

Due to favorites registering, the 5-3 daily double combination of Tie Me and Kiddie's Image, paid only $11.20.

Bobby Jones 3d, 240 Pounds, Hits Longer Than Dad

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 8 (AP).—Bobby Jones 3d will attempt to qualify for the U. S. Amateur golf tournament this year.

But don't get nostalgic for a rematch with Johnny Goodman, the man who gave his famous daddy his only setback in 13 amateur championships back in 1929.

Even if he should qualify, young Jones won't play for the crown at Del Monte, Calif., next September 8-13. That's the word from Robert Tyre Jones, jr., the grand-slam winner, who says his son will be busy hitting the books as a freshman at Emory University.

Hal Sargent, pro at the East Lake Country Club and young Bobby's instructor, says he drives farther than his famous daddy ever did, getting full power of his 240 pounds into the club. He averages 75 on the par-71 course and Sargent says he has shown "good improvement" in the last year.

Bob Jones, jr., now an Atlanta attorney who plays on his afternoons off and on weekends, considers his son's game "so-so."

7 Night Games For Martinsburg

Atlantic City Ra ce to Irisen

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 8 (AP).—Irisen, consistent 3-year-old daughter of Sweep Like and Black Plane, which races for O. Nyberg, won her sixth race of the year when she easily beat five opponents of her own age in the six-furlong Tuckerton purse, today's fifth event here.

Irisen was a strong favorite with the estimated crowd of 14,500. She paid even money. The racing strip, good for the early events, had thoroughly dried by post time for the feature. Irisen stepped six panels in the creditable time of 1:11 4/5.

Jockey Robert Howell, who has been nursing a bad case of sinus, had the mount on Irisen, giving the veteran a double for the afternoon.

Irisen was much the best. She broke fast, but was momentarily headed by the fast but faint-hearted Flying Raid. Coming to the half-mile pole Irisen was a head in front of War Glance.

When War Glance faltered Transair moved up to press Irisen. The two were heads apart passing the quarter pole. Irisen came a trifle wide in the stretch and she took Transair with her. At the end the winner was four lengths in front of Transair. The latter beat Sendoff 3½ lengths for the place award.

Lesnevich Rematched With Tami Mauriello

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—The Twentieth Century Sporting Club today announced a 10-round non-title rematch at Madison Square Garden, October 31, between Light Heavyweight Champion Gus Lesnevich and Tami Mauriello.

Sol Strauss, acting director of Twentieth Century, said he also expects to have a 10-round over-the-weight bout signed soon between Lightweight Champ Ike Williams and Tony Pellone.

3 Young Softballers Overcome by Heat

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 8 (AP).—Three young softball players from Vero Beach, Fla., were overcome by heat at the second annual National Youth softball tournament.

The victims, Edwin Wall, 13, Eugene Wellmaker, 13, and Robert Hunt, 12, were overcome during a game late yesterday when the temperature soared to 98 degrees. They were taken to a hospital where none was reported in serious condition.

Dozen Stakes Announced for Laurel Meet

Laurel, Md., Aug. 8 (AP).—A dozen stakes, five with increased added money, were announced today by Harry A. Parr 3d, president of Laurel Park, for the meeting opening October 1.

The 25-day meeting will run through October 29, and entries for all stakes will close September 1.

Racing Secretary Charles J. McLennan, in a departure from the usual procedure, said he would issue the entire book for the meeting at the same time. The book is usually announced for about 10 days at a time, but McLennan explained the new plan would give horsemen 25 days to plan for the whole program.

Three stakes with upped value are for 2-year-olds, the others are steeplechase fixtures. There will be no steeplechasing at Laurel until October 15, in deference to trainers and owners who wish to complete the New York season before moving to Maryland.

The Maryland Futurity at 6 furlongs for home-bred juveniles has been boosted from $5000 to $10,000, and the same goes for the Richard Johnson at 6 furlongs, and the Spalding Lowe Jenkins, at a mile and a sixteenth.

The Butler Handicap and the Governor Ogle Handicap, both about 2 miles over the jumps, have been boosted from $7500 to $10,000.

Two District Real Estate Men Lose Licenses

Commission Puts Sehlein and Moss Out of Business For Dubious Deals

The District Real Estate Commission yesterday announced it had cracked down sharply on two real estate brokers guilty of dubious dealings with clients.

The Commission refused to renew the broker's license of Maurice I. Schlein, 915 New York ave. nw., trading as Federal Finance and Realty Co.

It revoked the broker's license of Everett J. Moss, 225 H st. ne., trading as E. J. Moss Realty Co.

Schlein was accused by Mrs. Nannie Smith, 1617 11th st. nw., and her two daughters, Marie Smith and Mrs. Ollie R. J. S. Hales, of practising usuary and fraud in dealings involving property in Montgomery County, Md.

Loans of $500

The Smiths said Schlein had lent them $500 in 1938 to pay for taxes and make repairs on the house. To get the loan they had to sign a note for $750 and agree to repay it in monthly installments at 6 per cent interest.

When they fell behind in their payments, Schlein "sold" the house for $300 to his assistant, Warren T. Cothron, at an "auction" where only Schlein, his wife, his attorney and Cothron were present.

The Smiths took the case to District Court, which ordered Schlein to return the property or pay them a fair price for it. The court also awarded the Smith a $705 judgment against Schlein and ordered him to pay their $600 attorney fees. The decision was upheld last February in the United States Court of Appeals.

After a public hearing on July 7, the Real Estate Commission concluded Schlein had "demonstrated such unworthiness to act as a real estate broker as to endanger the interest of the public."

The commission ruled that Moss had "failed within reasonable time to account for or remit" a $2000 down payment and deposit paid by Earl and Lucinda Case for the purchase of a house at 3418 Warder st. nw.

After making the down payment, the Cases said they found that the property was involved in a suit and they could not gain clear title to it. They demanded return of the money. They told the commission Moss had stalled them off for several months, then gave them a check for $1550 which bounced due to insufficient funds.

Moss finally repaid a total of $1531 in cash, they said. After considering testimony of a hearing on July 9, the commission revoked Moss' license.

Police Halt Teen-Age Crime Wave

Police yesterday reported a run on the juvenile crime market.

A 13-year-old boy from the 2400 blocn I st. nw., was captured by Seventh Precinct police and charged with housebreaking and larceny. He allegedly entered a ground-floor apartment at 3106 P st. nw., according to Mrs. Margaret Stein who was at breakfast at the time, and made off with $34 in bills.

Chased by neighbors, friends, and a police scout car, he was captured in the 1100 block 24th st. nw., where he handed over all the money.

Two other boys, aged 16 and 17, were arrested early yesterday when they were cought by police rifling parked cars in the rear of 3028 Wisconsin ave. nw. The boys, police said, came from Morgantown, W. Va.

A Twelfth Precinct police captain was routed out of bed early yesterday to apprehend another teen-ager who had been spotted breaking into the King-Pin Bowling Alleys at 1311 Rhode Island ave. ne.

Capt. Walter T. Storm, who lived nearby, was called. The youth claimed that he only wanted a place to spend the night. Charged with housebreaking, he was turned over to juvenile authorities.

A 13-year-old youth from Spalding Heights, Md., who had run away from home Wednesday, according to police, because he was jealous of a newly-arrived baby sister, was arrested yesterday and charged with housebreaking. He was released in the custody of his family.

Police said that he broke into a store at 3107 Bladensburg rd. ne., yesterday. With 12 cartoons of cigarettes and $2 in chang missing, the proprietor suspected the youth who had been in the store the preceding evening.

Sawfly Expected to Cut Into Dakota Wheat Crop

Fargo, N. Dak., Aug. 8 (AP).—The sawfly, an insect complete with a "built-in" saw, is expected to cut an $11,250,000 chunk out of the North Dakota wheat crop this fall.

Dr. J. A. Munro, chairman of the entomology department at North Dakota Agricultural College here, reported today that sawfly trouble is "unusually serious" in North Dakota this year. A recent survey disclosed considerable damage in the northwest part of the State, particularly in Bottineau, Renville and Ward Counties.

Asst. Engineer Commissioner Is D. C.'s 'Mayor for a Day'

Lieut. Col. V. A. Shurm, second assistant to Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, assumed "command" of the city when an unusual combination of vacations and illness kept the city heads away from their offices.

John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, was spending the day at his summer estate near Mayo, Md. Commissioner Guy Mason was still recovering from a recent illness. Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young was on vacation.

Col. Kenneth E. Madsen, First Assistant Engineer Commissioner, who usually takes over when the Commissioners are absent, was on leave.

Colonel Shurm—who was awarded the Bronze Star Medal and Legion of Merit for military construction work in the India-Burma theater during World War II—grasped the city's administrative reins with a practiced hand.

In addition to handling Commissioners' correspondence and reports, he made a personal inspection of Dupont Circle underpass construction work.

He also was present for the swearing in of Hugh Francis Rivers as paid member of the District Parole Board and conferred with Police Department officials regarding the case of Julius Willie Clegg, who accused police of holding him illegally and beating him.

Landlord Files Appeal—6% Hike Too Low

Recently granted 6 per cent rent boosts at an 86-unit apartment house at 1314 Massachusetts ave. nw., are too low to meet mounting costs, the owner told the Rent Control Administration yesterday.

Stephen G. Ingham, attorney for S. D. Moses, owner of the apartment house, filed a petition asking Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell to reconsider the case.

Moses had sought an average 16 per cent rent increase to cover higher maintenance and operation costs and taxes.

"The 6 per cent raise granted was quite low," Ingham said. "We needed 12 per cent to cover higher wages and the increased real estate tax alone," he declared, "without even counting the higher maintenance cost."

Rent Administrator Cogswell said, "As a rule, it's more likely that the tenants protest than the landlord."

Ingham's action will have the effect of postponing the scheduled rent rise until Cogswell hands down a ruling in the case. Present rents at the apartment house range from $42.50 to $105 per month. The boost was granted August 1.

Ingham, who is also attorney for John J. McInerney, owner of the Governor Shepherd Apartments at 2121 Virginia ave. nw., said he planned a similar appeal for reconsideration of a 5 per cent rent hike granted the Governor Shepherd August 4.

McInerney had asked for a 12 per cent increase. Current Governor Shepherd rents range from $50 to $85 per month.

Boy Scouts Salute Austrians, Once Under Hitler Ban

Jamboree City, Moisson, France, Aug. 8 (AP).—Youth put the war behind it today as 265 Austrian Boy Scouts—banned for years by Hitler—marched in to take their places in the sixth international Boy Scout jamboree and received the salutes of scouts from Allied countries.

With the arrival today of scouts from Norway, The Netherlands, Liehtenstein, the contingent brought to 11,137 the number of foreign scouts already mingling with a slightly greater number from France who will join in the two weeks of good-will festivities starting tomorrow night.

The Americans — all except a troop awaited from the occupation zone in Germany—finally finished pitching their tents in the 1500-acre forest called Jamboree City, the brightly colored canvas decorated with maps of their home States.

Lady Astor Sails, Angrily Disclaims Interest in Jews

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—American-born Lady Astor sailed today for England aboard the Queen Mary declaring, "I do not care how many Jews are killed in Palestine, and my only interest is in the number of innocent British who are slaughtered.

"The dancers have to pay the fiddlers."

She made the statement angrily in reply to questions about the Palestine situation. The former member of the British Parliament added without elaboration:

"When the presidency of the United States depends on the Jewish vote in New York, I think that the condition stinks."

She said the American people are the "soundest and sanest and kindest people in the world," but declared that if they would "stop wasting food and send it to Europe it would save thousands and thousands of lives of women and children."

Without License

Treasury Cafes to Stay Under GSI

Government Services, Inc., will continue to operate Treasury Department cafeterias, although it has not yet been granted a license to do so.

A Treasury spokesman said yesterday that frequent conferences have been held with GSI, clearing up "numerous misunderstandings."

"The Treasury contemplates no change of operators at this time," the spokesman added.

Capt. Frank W. Hoover, general manager of GSI, reported "minor changes" were still being worked on at the Treasury lunchrooms. The restaurants have to be approved by Health Department officials before the District will grant licenses.

Earlier, it was learned, a closed conference was held on the Hill between Health Department officials and staff investigators for the Senate Civil Service Committee, which probed GSI operations for months.

Investigators were informed, it was understood, that health officials have not relaxed regulations to make it easier for the cafeterias to comply.

Commissioner John Russell Young announced last week that more than 40 GSI cafeterias and food bars which failed to qualify for District licenses May 9 have now complied with health regulations.

'German Riviera' Raids Show Many Living in Luxury

Hamburg, Germany, Aug. 8 (AP).—German authorities disclosed today that wide-scale police raids on the "German Riviera" had trapped scores of Germans living in black market luxury in sharp contrast to their hungry countrymen.

The raids were made in the spa town of Timmendorf on the Baltic Sea and Westerland on the North Sea.

Police said that behind darkened windows in one hotel they found a night club decorated in the finest of silks and leather.

Waiters were found to possess as much as 17,000 marks each ($1700) and none had any bills smaller than 50 marks ($5) the police reported. Prices were so high they had no need of any smaller change, said one investigator.

Average prices, the police said, were 500 marks ($50) for a bottle of champagne and 50 ($5) for five foreign cigarettes.

Virginia Escapee Caught in W. Va.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—City Detective Lieut. L. B. Warren said today he had arrested an escapee from a Virginia penitentiary road camp, who admitted entering three Charleston residences.

Warren identified the man as Charles Claude Boyd, 26, of Staunton, Va. State Police Sergt. Arnold Wolfe said he had escaped from a road camp in Prince Edward County, Va., in 1942.

Boyd told the Charleston police he had been living in Logan, W. Va.

The detective said Boyd admitted stealing a watch from one residence, three pistols and a watch from another and two children's banks and a diamond ring from a third.

Farm Journal Editor Wins Brigham Award

Minneapolis, Aug. 8 (AP). — The Reuben Brigham memorial award for outstanding achievement in agriculture in the last year was presented tonight to Carroll P. Streeter of Philadelphia, managing editor of the magazine, Farm Journal.

The award, a plaque, was established in honor of Reuben Brigham, assistant director of the United States Department of Agriculture's extension service, who died last December.

Sheet Metal Strike Ends After 39 Days

Hourly Wage Boost Of 15 Cents to Rise Another 10 Nov. 1; Some Return Today

The 39-day strike of 550 AFL sheet metal workers was settled yesterday with an immediate wage boost of 15 cents an hour and a promised further increase of 10 cents November 1.

John T. O'Brien, business agent for Sheet Metal Workers Local 102, said a portion of the workers will return to work today and all will be back on the job by Monday.

He expressed satisfaction with the settlement. The union originally sought a 50 cents hourly wage hike from the old $2 scale to $2.50. Later it modified its demand to $2.25 an hour but snubbed management offers to boost wages by 12½ cents up to January 1, with a further boost to $2.25 after the first of the year.

The new contract will run until June 30, 1948.

Basis for the settlement, first announced by the Labor Department, was reached at a conference of union and management officials Thursday. It was the first intervention by the Labor Department in the lengthy dispute.

According to a management spokesman, some 50 million dollars worth of projects were handicapped by the strike. An estimated 40 companies were affected, about half of them members of the Sheet Metal Contractors Association.

Recount Plea To Be Filed in Primary Tie

McCandlish Plans Petition in Fairfax Deadlock With Lynch

A petition for a recount in Fairfax County's all-tied-up House of Delegates race will be filed in the County Circuit Court today by Candidate Robert J. McCandlish, jr.

Election canvassers officially proclaimed the tie yesterday morning. Unofficial returns in the Democratic primary showed Edwin Lynch to be the winner by two votes. But an official check gave one of Lynch's votes to McCandlish and tied the score at 2853 apiece.

McCandlish said that since the State Board of Elections will now apparently decide the nomination by lot, the loser would undoubtedly ask for a recount eventually. He said he will do it now to save time.

In accordance with the State election law, McCandlish said he will ask that a board of judges be convened to hear the petition. The court, consisting of the Fairfax Circuit Court judge, Paul E. Brown, and two others appointed by the chief justice of the Court of Appeals, could order a recount of the individual ballots, he said. The election canvassers merely checked the returns as tabulated by the 26 precincts.

McCandlish said he will claim erroneous counting of the ballots as his reason for asking a recount. He attributed the error to the "mental and physical fatigue" of the polling judges after working all day at the polls. He emphasized that he is not charging any judge with fraud.

Lynch, the incumbent, said he would not ask for a recount. He had no objection to McCandlish's petition.

Meanwhile, George B. Robey, county Democratic chairman, said he would certify the winning candidates to the State Board of Elections today, listing the House of Delegates race as a tie.

State law provides that a tie in a general election be determined by lot by the State Board of Elections. In case of a tie in a primary, the issues to be settled "in accordance with the election law of the State." Robey said he inferred from this that the decision rests with the State board, rather than with the county board as some local authorities first thought.

State Attorney General A. P. Staples confirmed Robey's decision. He said the nomination be determined by lot in a manner to be determined by the State Board of Elections.

Martin Airplane Firm Terminates Pact With UAW

Baltimore, Aug. 8 (AP).—The Glenn L. Martin Co. today notified the United Auto Workers (CIO) it was terminating its contract which had been extended since February 8.

A bulletin posted at the airplane manufacturing plant said "This action was taken because two labor organizations are contending that each represents the employes with every likelihood that neither organization has the right."

The National Labor Relations Board will hold a collective bargaining election at the plant August 21. The employes, numbering approximately 10,000, will be able to vote for the UAW, the International Association Machinists or no union.

The election was requested by the machinists.

Injured Pedestrian Awaits Ambulance . . .

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

THE MINUTES WERE LIKE HOURS—Edgar D. Smith, 55, of 3905 13th st. nw., struck by an auto as he crossed 13th st. at Randolph st. about 12:55 a. m. yesterday, awaits the arrival of an ambulance. He is comforted by Police Pvt. Ernest McClanahan (center), of Scout Car 102, and passers-by, Marvin Cohen (left), of 1345 Randolph st. nw., and Ross Firestone of 2480 16th st. sw. Police said the auto was driven by Alfons E. Grubhofer, 44, of 3001 Beech st. nw. Smith was admitted to Emergency Hospital with a possible fractured leg

Gulf Raises Price of Gas One-Half Cent

Kerosene, No. 2 Fuel Oil Also Boosted In Eastern States

An increase of one half cent a gallon in the price of gasoline went into effect in this area yesterday at Gulf filling stations.

At the same time, the Gulf Oil Corp. and its subsidiaries announced that kerosene, No. 2 fuel oil and Diesel oil were also raised from four tenths to six tenths of a cent per gallon.

The area affected by the boosts includes the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia as well as 11 other Eastern States.

As far as could be learned, no other oil companies followed suit in the Washington area. The Gulf announcement said marketing costs have been increasing substantially, both in operating expenses and in prices of products the company must purchase.

Ice Plant Begins Work to Replace One Razed in Fire

Winchester, Va., Aug. 8 (Spl).—City Manager S. Lee Grant said today city water department statistics show that 1,250,000 gallons of water were used during the fire here Tuesday that razed three buildings and caused an estimated $150,000 damage.

For several hours firemen were throwing more than 4000 gallons of water a minute on the flames, Grant said.

H. Delmar Robinson, jr., said the Robinson Ice and Cold Storage Corp. will clear the site of last Tuesday's fire as rapidly as possible so that work can start on the new modern six-story storage plant already planned.

Several carloads of steel have arrived and contractors were here yesterday to check blueprints of foundation work. The brick walls of the remaining main buildings of the Robinson plant appear to be undamaged, he said.

'Mostly Phonies'

Rape Charges Fail to Stand Investigation

A large percentage of rapes reported to police are "phonies" made by married women anxious to cover up an extra-marital fling, Capt. Rhode J. Milliken, head of the women's bureau, said yesterday.

Captain Milliken wouldn't attempt to estimate how many of the 300 rape complaints made at the women's bureau during the fiscal year of 1947 were false, but she told this story:

"Many of our cases involve women who pick up an acquaintanceship with a strange man in a cocktail lounge or a grill. One of these women has a few drinks too many. She goes to the man's apartment or room for more drinks.

"So she gets home at 5 o'clock in the morning. She has to tell her husband something. She tells him she has been attacked."

Captain Milliken said few such complaints ever reach the grand jury.

"Usually," she said, "we can tell after talking to the woman for 10 minutes if her story has been made up."

On the basis of 300 complaints of rape during the fiscal year ended June 30, the monthly average would be 25. However, last August, a month in which Captain Milliken made a breakdown of complaints, the figure was below average. There were only 12 complaints, 7 from white women.

In the seven white cases, three of the women withdrew the charges, the U. S. attorney's office ruled out two more because of insufficient evidence, and only two went to the grand jury. Only two of the five Negro rape complaints reached the grand jury.

P. O. to Be Started

Waynesboro, Va., Aug. 8.—Building of the new Park Station postoffice will be started in the next two weeks, officials said today. The building will be about 100 feet north of the present postoffice on Commerce ave. Plans call for completion about December 1.

Auto Mishaps Injure 12 in District Area

Ice-Loaded Truck, Leaving Terminal, Runs Over Helper

Auto accidents injured 12 persons in Greater Washington yesterday.

Louis Brown, 33, of 1319 Vermont ave nw., was seriously injured when a truck loaded with 3000 pounds of ice ran over him and he had slipped while trying to jump on its running board.

According to police, Mitchell Owens, 52, of 500 M st. nw., driver of the truck, had just loaded it at the Washington Terminal Ice Co., 301 K st. nw., and started to pull away. Brown, his assistant, leaped for the runningboard, missed, and the truck's right rear wheel ran over him.

Brown's was taken to Freedmen's Hospital and treated for a fractured pelvis, internal injuries and shock.

Five persons were injured about 9:15 o'clock last night when two cars crashed head-on on Highway No. 1, one mile south of Alexandria. Rhebie Dodd, of the Penn-Daw Rescue Squad, said the injured were:

Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Ives of Jacksonville, Fla.

Doris S. Gates of Air Valley, Va., face cuts and bruises.

Mrs. A. S. Gates of Arnezrally, Va., possible crushed chest.

In Alexandria Hospital

Mrs. Ives suffered severe face lacerations. All the injured were taken to Alexandria Hospital.

Dodd said one of the cars apparently skidded on wet paving and slid into the path of the other automobile.

Edgar D. Smith, 55, of 3905 13th st. nw., suffered a possible fractured right leg and hand lacerations when struck by an automobile early yesterday morning at the intersection of Randolph and 13th sts. nw. Driver of the auto was Alfons E. Grubhofer, 44, of 3101 Beech st. nw. Smith was taken to Emergency Hospital.

July Shows Big Increase In Traffic Fatalities

Month's Death Toll Of 16 Compares to 13 in Same Area Just One Year Ago

Seven more persons died in traffic accidents in the Greater Washington Area last month than during June.

The month's fatality toll of 16 compares to 13 traffic deaths in the same area during July, 1946.

It brings to 88 the total number of persons who died in traffic mishaps in the area during the first seven months of this year. The death toll for the first seven months of last year in the same territory was 71.

Increases Shown

Traffic figures compiled monthly by The Washington Post from police sources show the increases, as well as a rising toll in the total number of accidents reported and the numbers of injured.

The area comprises the District; Prince Georges and Montgomery counties, Md.; Arlington and Fairfax counties, Va., and the city of Alexandria, Va.

In the District, alone, ten persons met death in traffic accidents last month in contrast to four such fatalities in June. The death toll during July, 1946, was six.

Montgomery County recorded one traffic death last month to one in June and none in July of last year.

Five died from traffic causes in Prince Georges County last month; two during the preceding month, and one in July 1946. The county's death toll to August 1 reached 20, or more than three times the six recorded traffic fatalities there for the first seven months of 1946.

Arlington County, Alexandria and Fairfax County all came through July with no deaths directly attributed to traffic. The two counties each had one death from traffic mishaps in June, while Alexandria had no fatalities that month.

557 Hurt in Month

Number of injured in the Greater Washington Area traffic statistics for last month totaled 557, and it's a cold statistic. It doesn't show how many lost limbs or the use of them; it doesn't show the total months of pain to follow many; it shows only that 557 persons were hurt to sufficient degree to require treatment.

The number of accidents recorded in the entire area in July reached 1264, just 25 more than during June, about 164 more than were reported during July, 1946. This year's seven-month accident toll was 8119, in comparison to 7741 recorded for the corresponding period last year.

The systematic tables follow. Readers need only to multiply the experiences of themselves, their kin or their friends with the totals to get some idea of the sufferings and waste of time and money caused by traffic accidents within the Greater Washington Area.

30 Pct. Drop Shown in D. C. Liquor Drinking

Washingtonians have cut their liquor drinking about 30 per cent figures released yesterday indicate.

As a result, "at least" 30 cafes and restaurants have gone out of business, retail dealers are engaged in a price war and those who bought liquor licenses at last year's inflated figures have seen them drop in value by more than half.

Survey Figures Given

A survey of the situation revealed these facts:

1. A total of 1,989,242 gallons of hard liquor was consumed here from January to May, 1946. During the same period this year the figure stood at 1,376,447, according to the Distilled Spirits Institute.

2. The Alcohol Beverage Control Board reported that net income to the District from license fees and taxes on alcoholic beverages dropped off $289,527.79, or 8 per cent, in the fiscal year ending June, 1947. In the previous fiscal year $3,401,873.81 was collected, as compared with $3,112,346.02 this year.

3. Taxes collected on all beverages other than beer decreased by 11 per cent, with $2,143,677.50 collected in the 1947 fiscal year, as compared with a collection of $2,397,644.79 a year later.

4. Sales of all alcoholic beverages, including beer, as reflected by taxes, decreased from 6,121,829 gallons to 5,381,365 gallons, a drop of 740,464 gallons.

5. Although revenues were on the down grade, cost of ABC administration rose by $11,319 due to salary increases authorized by Congress.

6. Robert J. Wilson, executive secretary of the Washington Restaurant Association, said that "at least 25 or 30" restaurants holding on sale licenses have closed their doors so far this year.

Same Trend Over Nation

The decrease in hard liquor consumption here is part of a general trend throughout the Nation, the Distilled Spirits Institute reported with a decline of 31 per cent noted throughout the country in the first five months of this year as contrasted with the same period of '46.

Jerome McKee, executive director of the D. C. Retail Liquor Dealers explained "we are helpless to act in the price-cutting war since there is no fair trades law here. Some national brands are being sold for only 5 cents above cost."

Caught in the middle were those who bought up liquor sale licenses at the top of the boom last year.

Joseph Donohue, an attorney handling contracts for sales of businesses and real estate, reported that a liquor license which sold last year for $65,000 was sold this month for $24,000, while another one which sold last fall for $85,000 was sold two months ago for $36,000.

Among well-known cafes and restaurants which have turned back their liquor licenses to the ABC board prior to closure or sale are the Brown Derby, Delmonico's, Treasure Island and the Moulin Rouge, according to Alan Payne, chairman of the ABC board.

Bourbon Dawes, executive secretary of the Hotel Association of Washington, said his organization is making a survey of the situation and would report in about a week.

"Sales of foods and beverages have been noticeably on the downgrade for the past year," he said.

A large distributor who preferred to remain anonymous declared that "the bottom has been reached."

"We have been giving liberal discounts to halt the downward trend," he said. Brands which were selling for $3.49 a fifth under OPA are now on counters at $2.99 to $3.25."

He thought the stamp sale figures for the boom year of 1946 were misleading, he said, in that a stamp shortage was apparent then and many liquor men bought up stamps for hoarding.

Board of Trade officials laid the decline in part to abatement of the tide of servicemen into Washington on pass and furlough; the end of rationing in Virginia, and the increased prices for food and other necessities.

Teacher Hiring Hurt By Housing Shortage

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 8 (AP).—Dr. Howard A. Kinhart, principal of Annapolis High School, said today the housing shortage was handicapping the school in obtaining teachers.

He said higher teachers' salaries were bringing in more applications than in several years but difficulties in finding places to live locally were narrowing the number taking positions.

Lane Appoints Logue

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 8 (AP).—Governor Lane appointed today H. Cleveland Logue of Baltimore as budget supervisor for Anne Arundel County.

State Sales Tax Suit Planned in Maryland

Baltimore, Aug. 8 (AP).—The Maryland Economic Council today announced plans to file a mandamus petition in an effort to compel a state-wide referendum on the sales tax.

Robert I. Black, president of the group, said he expected the petition to be refused by the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court, after which the council intends to take the case to the Court of Appeals.

Attorney General Hall Hammond earlier had stated that revenue measures are not subject to referendum.

Black said the petition will ask the court to order Secretary of State Bertram L. Boone to submit the retail tax law to a vote of the people along with the next election for the House of Delegates, to be held in November, 1948.

He said his legal advisers had informed him the tax law would become inoperative until the Court of Appeals hands down a final ruling, if the appellate court should accept the case.

Black added the petition contains 25,000 names—15,000 more than are required by law. It will be filed next week at Annapolis, he said.

Insurance Sets Record

Luray, Va., Aug. 8.—More than three million dollars worth of insurance, a record amount, was reported this week by the East Rockingham and Page Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance at its 72nd annual meeting here.

Charles N. Spitler was reelected president. Other officers elected were J. Luther Maiden, Elkton, vice president; S. M. Huffman, secretary-treasurer; O. O. Baker, Springfield; N. K. Koontz, Elkton; Jos. A. Brubaker, Massanutten; W. H. Currier, Elkton; W. N. Comer, Stony Man; Avis Burke, Shenandoah; L. P. Good, Marksville; O. W. Seite, and D. K. Hite, Luray, directors. The next meeting will be held in Elkton.

Hangar to Be Rebuilt

Luray, Va., Aug. 8.—Charles Wagner, coowner with Albert Black of the Luray Airport, which was wrecked last week in a storm, stated yesterday that work will begin on a new and improved hangar as soon as the wreckage is cleared.

Two planes, a trainer, and a three-seater supercruiser were secured the day following the storm, and the airport's program was not interrupted, Wagner said. When the hangar collapsed in the storm, four planes were seriously damaged. Insurance was carried on the planes, but not on the building.

All-Day Services Set

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 8.—The ninth all-day meeting of the Methodist Churches of the Hillsboro Charge will be held Sunday in Gross' Woods near Lovettsville. The Rev. Lee O. Mortzfeldt, a former pastor of the Hillsboro Charge and now serving at Epworth Methodist Church at Covington, Va., will preach at the afternoon service.

The morning service, in charge of the pastor, the Rev. Stanley E. Emrich, will be followed by luncheon and a fellowship period. In the event of rain, the meeting will be held at Rehobeth Methodist Church, near Lovettsville.

Turkey Crop Is Off

Richmond, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—Virginia's fall turkey crop this year will be 20 to 25 per cent under that of 1946, according to a forecast made by the State Poultry Federation.

Figures available at the end of the poult placement season indicated, the Federation said in its magazine, the Virginia Poultryman, that the early crop would be about 50 per cent below last year and the late crop slightly larger than a year ago.

The federation said possible curtailment of out-of-State poult shipments was indicated by figures on turkeys hatched and placed in the Shenandoah Valley.

The number hatched in 1946 exceeded by more than 200,000 the number placed on Virginia farms, but this year the number hatched and the number placed were virtually the same, the federation reported.

190 Arrests Made

Winchester, Va., Aug. 8.—Arrests in Winchester reached 190 in July, the second highest month so far this year, according to Desk Sergt. Warren Rudolph, who compiled the statistics.

Arrests for drunkenness topped the list of 36 different offenses. Fifty-five persons were charged with being drunk and 9 for driving while drunk. Arrests for the first seven months of 1947 now total 1079, Sergeant Rudolph said.

Freed of Murder Charge

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—The Norfolk County Circuit Court yesterday acquitted Mrs. Eva Mae Edge, of Craddock Gardens in Norfolk County, who had been indicted jointly with a 25-year-old Broadmoor musician, Thomas P. Day, on a murder charge in the death of her brother, Earl Franklin Pace of Richmond, last February 5.

Judge Edward L. Oast, presiding jurist, directed the verdict after sustaining a defense motion to strike from the records all of the prosecution's evidence.

Hospital Deal Probed

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 8 (AP).—State Engineer John B. Funk investigated today the legality of a member of the board of governors at Eastern Shore Hospital being associated with a contracting firm that was low bidder for a new barn at the Cambridge institution.

The Board of Public Works approved tentatively yesterday award of the contract to the Cambridge Brick Co. on a low bid of $43,600. Funk then declared that Mace Brohawn, who is a member of the hospital board, also is reported to be one of three brothers operating the company.

Governor Lane suggested that Funk's report be investigated further and the legality of the contract be determined.

The board withdrew its approval of the contract and authorized Funk to make a complete investigation.

Aid Peanut Yield

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—Increasing peanut yields by supplying otherwise unavailable manganese to the plants is the object of test demonstrations in application methods now being conducted in several counties by Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station researchers and extension service specialists.

Researchers explained that peanut yields in Virginia often have been reduced by manganese deficiency in the soil which has become increasingly serious in recent years.

Cattle Shows Slated

Frederick, Md., Aug. 8 (AP).—Entries still were coming in today for three livestock shows scheduled in the county next week.

The Western Maryland Registered Show is scheduled for Monday at the fair grounds, the Western Maryland Field Day Tuesday, at Sigler's Grove, and the Western Maryland Ayrshire Field Day at the same place Thursday. Judges will be H. C. Barker, Guy McReynolds and Scott Swarts.

Grocers Have 'Eat Fest'

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 8.—Eating was the main and only event on the program for the annual picnic meeting of the Tri-County Grocers Association yesterday. The grocers from Berkeley, Morgan and Jefferson Counties, meeting at the Izaak Walton clubhouse on Opeguon Creek near here, consumed 175 pounds of fried chicken, in addition to ham, beef and the trimmings.

Prince Georges Area Streets Are Renamed

Twenty one streets in the Queens Chapel Manor section of Prince Georges County will have new names Friday.

The streets, all located in developments built up since the older streets were renamed about five years ago, are rechristened by the Maryland-National Park and Planning Commission to eliminate confusion.

Residents of the streets in question have been notified by postal authorities of the impending change which will in some cases also involve assigning a new street number as well.

The new street names follow:

Queens Chapel Manor, Clearwood and Castle Manor, Kennedy st. and 33d afe (now Jessel rd.), Longfellow st. (Lancer rd.), Madiso nst. (Lancer pl.), Legation rd. (31st pl.), Legation rd. (Kennedy pl.) Legation st. (Longfellow st.), Kirkwood rd. (Nicholson st.), Kennedy st. (Jefferson st.), Longfellow st. (Kennedy st.) and Mallory lane (Madison st.)

Carole Highlands and Hillwood Manor, Glenside dr. (now 13th ave.), Maxfield rd. (Hannon st.), Benning dr. (Elson st.), Idlewood dr. (16th ave.), Hillwood dr. (Erskine st.), Tracy dr. (13th pl.). Hainsworth dr. (14th ave.), Gorin dr. (15th ave.) and Oakton dr. Elson pl.), North Woodridge, Munson ave. (24th ave.)

Greenwich, Conn., Calls Upon Outside Aid to Kill Snake

Greenwich, Conn., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—The U. S. Army, the Air Forces and firemen came to the aid of terrorized residents of the suburb of old Greenwich today and sprayed a stone wall from beginning to end with an M-2 flamethrower to fry an elusive and venomous snake.

Not even a mouse, let alone a snake, showed its head as the fire licked into the crevices. But Capt. William F. Parker, who directed the assault, said it wassafe to assume that the snake was cooked.

None ever saw the snake, although he undoubtedly was in the wall—he killed two dogs—and experts were certain that he was a copperhead. The dogs, a daschhund and an airedale, were dead within an hour after they were found writhing and howling near the wall.

Greenwich Time, local newspaper, asked Army authorities at Fort Slocum, N. Y., whether they could help.

Fort Slocum had a flamethrower, but no fuel. A B-25 from Mitchel Field, New York, flew in a supply of fuel from Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland last night.

Rivers Sworn As Paid Member Of PoPlice Board

Hugh Francis Aivers yesterday took oath of office as paid member of the District Parole Board, a new position set up in the 1948 District Appropriation Act.

Geoffrey Thornett, secretary to the Board of Commissioners, gave the oath at 2 p. m. in the District Building office of Engineer Commisisoner Gordon R. Young.

Rivers was accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Heleen Rivers, and their 9-year-old daughter, Carol.

Others present included: Assistant Engineer Commissioner V. A. Shurm, the two unpaid board members, Leo A. Rover and Col. Campbell C. Johnson; Dr. Emmett J. Scott, one of the original members of the parole board; Director of Corrections Donald Clemmer; Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West; and other District officials.

Preparing to Parade . . .

The Washington Post

BRENTWOOD MAKES READY—Most everybody out Brentwood Terrace way is pitching in so the children in the neighborhood will have a float in the VJ-Day Parade August 17. In the basement of his home, 2344 15th st. ne., Louis Rose and Mrs. Rose help Jimmy Chaney, 10, of 1407 Downing st. ne., in selecting the trimmings. Their daughter, Betty Lou Rose (left), 12, will be in the parade as an Indian Princess, wearing the costume her mother made. Nancy Jean Cifala, 10 months old, of 5604 16th st. nw., and Butchie Rose, 3, are trying to be helpful, but doubtlessly are not

At Silver Spring

Underground Wires Asked In 'Fire Zone'

Now is the time to place power lines underground, Silver Spring Fire Chief Charles E. Deffinbaugh declared yesterday in asking the Montgomery County commissioners to designate the town's business district as a "fire zone."

Chief Deffinbaugh said that if the area, which contained the community's most valuuable structures were so zoned immediately, the Potomac Electric Power Co. would be forced to place the overhead wires underground.

At present the wires are in temporary position pending the completion of the Georgia ave. viaduct, Chief Deffinbaugh said and the change would therefore "not cost much if done now."

The fire chief said the area, which contains several high voltage transformers, is a high risk zone and should be given special attention. He pointed out that the wires are underground on the District side of Georgia ave. already.

Last year the Silver Spring Board of Trade and the Allied Civic Groups of Silver Spring began pressing for the change, but the campaign received a definite setback several weeks ago when the power company said it would not make the change voluntarily.

The chief said he hoped for action at Tuesday's meeting of the County Commissioners.

Dentists Report Solution Brings Decay Immunity

Boston, Aug. 8 (AP).—Four Texas dentists reported today a chemical solution which they said would make children almost totally immune to tooth decay and which they claimed to be half again as effective as sodium fluoride.

Dr. Bernhard Gottlieb of Baylor University, Dallas, conducted the exposition of the new preparation at a clinic of the American Dental Association and declared that 90 per cent immunity had been achieved through use of it on children in limited experimentation for the past five years.

Dr. Gottlieb, a Viennese who came here as a Nazi refugee, described the solution as including zinc chloride and potassium ferrocyanide and recommended three treatments a year for children as soon as they begin to get their permanent teeth.

Dr. Gottlieb was joined in his demonstration by three Texas colleagues, Drs. G. Agnew, R. Boelsche and H. Crawford.

D. C. Gossip Columnist In Reno to 'Write Book'

Reno, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Mrs. Austine Cassini dodged her colleagues of the press today after telling them she planned to spend just six weeks here "writing a book."

By coincidence, six weeks is the legal period required to establish residence in Nevada, and many divorce seekers change their minds about living here permanently during their seventh week.

Mrs. Cassini, whose Washington gossip column is devoted largely to the marital difficulties of the Capital's people, is married to Igor Cassini. Cassini, under the name of Cholly Knickerbocker, also writes a gossip column for a New York newspaper.

Russian Farms Must Now Provide Own Seed

Moscow, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—A new decree by the Council of Ministers abruptly abolishing a state fund from which collective farms could obtain loans for seed was announced today.

The decree is effective immediately and beginning this fall farms must provide their own seed in sufficient quantities to meet spring and autumn sowing quotas set by the state.

Truman Steward Freed of Charge

Philadelphia, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—A Filipino described as chief steward aboard the presidential yacht Williamsburg was acquitted of a gun-carrying charge today.

Judge Frank Smith found Gavino Rey, 50, Philadelphia, a chief petty officer in the Navy for 28 years, not guilty of intent to use illegally a revolver in his possession.

Rey, father of three children, was arrested last week after police were summoned to his home during an argument with his wife.

The court was told by Attorney Samuel A. Levin that Rey was the Williamburg's chief steward and personally supervised cooking when President Truman was on a cruise.

Russians Convict 170 Nazis of Rape And Mass Murder

Berlin, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Russia announced today that 170 Germans who served in Hitler's Ninth Police Reserve Battalion have been convicted and sentenced as war criminals for mass murder, rape and atrocities against 96,000 Russians and Poles.

The trials were announced by Col. Kolai Kotlar, chief war crimes investigator for the Russians in Berlin.

All except one pleaded guilty, and that one was acquitted, Kotlar said. He said the Germans had confessed and at their own request did not have defense attorneys, since their confessions made legal advisers unnecessary.

Sentences ranged from 10 to 25 years, Kotlar said. He added that the men would have been hanged if they had been convicted three months ago, before a new regulation went into effect.

Woman, 75, Weds Her 6-Ft. Stepson By 3d Marriage

Murphysboro, Ill., Aug. 8 (AP).—A slight 75-year-old woman and her 6-foot stepson by her third marriage were honeymooning today in a two-room frame cottage.

Mrs. Mabel Genevieve Pitts and strapping Victor Robert Pitts, 39, were married yesterday.

"All my other husbands died, so I thought I'd get me a young man this time," she said.

The bride said her husband had been unable to find work so far and that she expected to obtain employment at the Duquoin State Fair to augment her $30 a month old age pension.

Mrs. Pitts' first husband was killed in a railroad accident. Her second mate was a cousin of the first. Victor's father died two years ago.

Made-in-Moscow Governments Dot Europe—Ethridge

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 8 (AP).—Mark Ethridge, former member of the United Nations' Balkan inquiry commission, said here tonight that "all over Europe there are governments that were prefabricated in Moscow."

In a CBS radio address Ethridge said that fighting in Greece "is part of a majjor plan whose purpose is to carve Macdonia and thrace out of Greece."

Ethridge, publisher of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, said Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria had been giving assistance to guerilla groups 'seeking to overcome the Greek government by force."

To Preach at Waugh

The Rev. William R. Darby, executive secretary of the Washington Bible Society, will preach on "The World's Open Doors" at Waugh Methodist Church, 3d and A sts. ne., tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Woman Teller Taps the Till For 20 Years

Bristol, Conn., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—This town's female Horatio Alger character was under the charge today of having embezzled $100,000 to $150,000 from the British Bank and Trust Co. of which she was chief teller.

Townsmen scarcely could believe it of Mrs. Helen R. Fournier, 45, buxom and brunette.

No less surprised was Mrs. Fournier's husband, who is a purchasing agent for the New Departure Co.

State authorities announced that Mrs. Fournier had admitted her defalcations and, free on $25,000 bond, was assisting the bank's accountants in tallying up their precise amount. She had been taking from $5000 to $8000 a year for 20 years.

She told State's Attorney Mead Alcorn that she had been trying to make a killing in the stock market all that time—presumably to further her romance of rags-to-riches success in business. But instead of a killing she was said to have lost approximately twice her salary annually.

She and her husband live in a comfortable but unoctentatious one-family house in a good neighborhood. Authorities found no trace of high living. The couple is childless.

State and bank authorities said Mrs. Fournier concealed her thefts by manipulating her bank accounts in a fashion so infricate that "only an accountant can understand it." Her shortage was discovered by sheer accident. She was on vacation and the teller substituting for her found what appeared to be a discrepancy. An investigation led to a full exposure.

South Africa Hits Trusteeship for Southwest Africa

Lake Success, Aug. 8 (AP).—The United Nations today made public a letter from the Union of South Africa rejecting the recommendation of the General Assembly that the mandated territory of Southwest Africa be placed under U. N. trusteeship.

The letter, signed by H. T. Andrews, Minister to Washington, said the Assembly's resolution was contrary to the wishes of the inhabitants of the territory.

The territory in question was placed under South African administration as a part of the League of Nations mandates system. At Versailles, South Africa had demanded outright annexation of the former German colony but had been vigorously opposed by Woodrow Wilson.

Niece of Braves Owner Found Dead in Surf

Falmouth, Mass., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Four-year-old Nancy Perini, niece of millionaire Lou Perini, part owner of the Boston Braves, was found drowned in the surf of Megansett Beach today.

The body was only 25 feet from the summer estate of her wealthy father, Charles Perini. Cape Cod authorities, kidnap conscious since the abduction of little Margaret (Peggy) McMath in 1933, were investigating that possibility when the body was found.

U. S. Urges Germany To Use Competitive Plan

Berlin, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Lloyd V. Steers, acting director of the U. S. Office of Political Affairs, broadcast to Germans tonight a statement that Germany's future lies in an economic democracy based on small competitive businesses free of government interference.

The statement was broadcast over a radio network covering the entire American occupation zone and also was audible in other occupation zones.

Death Claims Second Wife Of Last Kaiser

Berlin, Aug. 8 (AP).—Princess Hermine von Schoenaich-Carolath, 60, widow of former Kaiser Wilhelm, II, died yesterday at Frankfurt-Am-Oder, the Soviet-controlled German News Agency announced today.

Princess Hermine

The Princess was the late Kaiser's second wife. They were married in 1922, after Wilhelm had gone into exile at Doorn, Holland. She lived there until his death in June, 1941. Hermine left Doorn in August, 1941, to live on an estate in Silesia and after the war was taken to Frankfurt, in the Russian zone.

In April, when she was interviewed by American correspondents, Hermine said she was not permitted by the Russians to leave Frankfurt. There she lived in a six-room apartment, sharing it with her 3-year-old grandson, Franz Friedrich, Prince of Prussia; a secretary, a chauffeur and his family, and a Russian woman who served as interpreter and guardian.

The Princess was considered a shrewd business woman and helped the former Kaiser administer the fortune which he took into exile.

As a young woman, the Princess managed a Silesian estate of about 20,000 acres at Saabor, controlling it with a firm hand. A German book, "Wilhelm 2d and Hermine," published in 1930, said she made only one bad bargain: she was induced by an Austrian to invest in a "perpetual motion" machine in 1929. The former Kaiser was reported to have been furious on learning of this and tightened the purse strings.

Hermine was a young widow with five young children when she married Wilhelm.

Hitler telegraphed Hermine his condolences upon the death of Wilhelm. However, she told the American newspaper correspondents that her husband "despised and distrusted" the Fuehrer, even during the height of the Nazi successes on the western front in 1940.

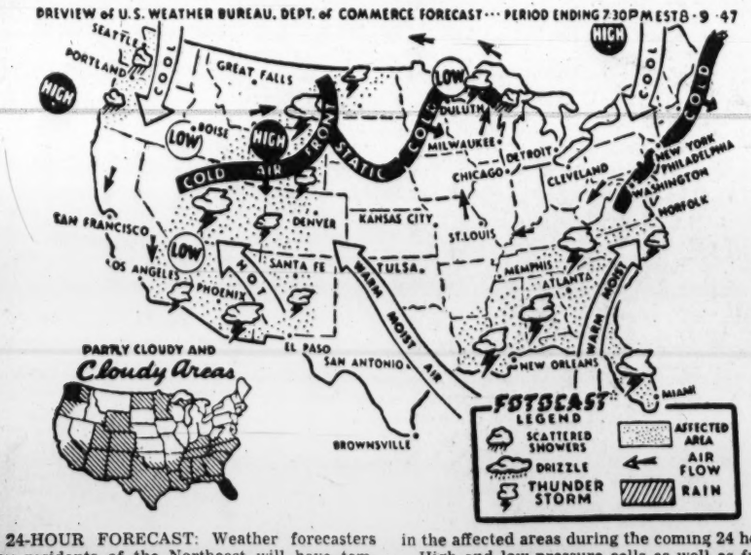
National Weather Summary

Copyr., 1947, Edw. L. A. Wagner



24-HOUR FORECAST: Weather forecasters say residents of the Northeast will have temporary relief from the uncomfortable, sticky weather of the past several days. Highest temperatures will be in the cool 70s in northern New England today. Afternoon maximum readings will be in the 80s from New York through the Ohio Valley to the Lakes Region as cool northerly air flows down from the Canadian high pressure cell.

Warm southerly winds will send the mercury soaring above 100 degrees in the central Plains and the Southwest Desert. (See air flow and air mass arrows.

4-H Girl, Disdaining Long Skirts, Wins Show

PROUDLY modeling costumes they had made themselves—crisp chambray and dimity summer frocks, tailored fall suits and billowing evening gowns—almost 70 pretty Maryland teen-agers participated yesterday afternoon in the 4-H Club fashion show staged in the Maryland University armory at College Park.

The 17-year-old winner, slender, blonde Martha Jane Layman, of Frederick, will represent the State at the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next December. Entrants in the style show, most exciting annual event for feminine 4-H members, were winners of fashion revues held recently by the county dressmaking schools conducted for 4-H members. Three girls represented each county.

Martha Jane's winning costume was a fall suit of cocoa brown Bolany wool with slim skirt just covering the knee and a medium-length jacket. None of the exaggerated lines for Martha. "I don't like those new styles," she explains simply.

Choosing the pattern and material herself, Martha started the suit in late spring, finished it for Achievement Day, July 31. Like most of the other entries, she lives on a farm and sandwiches her sewing between milking, caring for crops and other chores. Incidentally, she was able to attend only two of the four "tailoring" sessions offered by the dressmaking school, got help in fitting from home demonstration agents. She also made her pert little brown felt hat and smart matching pocketbook.

Runners-up were Barbara Ann Young, 18, Middletown, wearing a soft grey and wine print shantung afternoon dress with brown felt hat and bag; Martha Ann Zeigler, 16, of Denton, in a red and white striped chambray morning frock, and Betty Lipton, 16, Jarrettsville, in a becoming light blue chambray with white hat and accessories.

Winning costumes were chosen for workmanship, general appearance, selection of style and material. Judges were Miss Florence Hall, field agent, home demonstration work, United States Department of Agriculture; Miss Clarice Scott, clothing specialist, Bureau of Home Economics, and Miss Margaret Smith, clothing specialist, Agricultural Research Administraton. Miss Dorothy Emerson, Girls' 4-H Club agent, presented the ribbons and Miss Charlotte Ann Lister was narrator.

Parties Fete Capital Visitor, Bride-To-Be

Mrs. Peyton C. March, wife of General March, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Army and Navy Club for Mrs. William A. Jones, wife of Colonel Jones, who is visiting Col. and Mrs. James M. Phalen.

Mrs. Jones formerly lived in Washington and now makes her home at Miami, Fla. She has been at Spring Lake, N. J., for the summer and will leave tomorrow for Miami.

MRS. W. W. Sloane entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Shoreham for Mrs. George Gray, who was Miss Anne Kondrup before her recent marriage.

In the company were Mrs. H. E. Kondrup, mother of the honor guest; Miss Frances Mitchell of West Virginia, who is visiting Mrs. Gray; Mrs. Ernest H. Daniel and her sister, Mrs. David Bolton, visiting here from Fort Worth, Tex.; Miss Margaret Burbridge, Mrs. Bates Warren, Mrs. William Richardson, Mrs. Philip Terrell and Mrs. Frank Peckham.

MR. and Mrs. Albert E. Landvoight entertained at dinner last evening at the Congressional Country Club in honor of Miss Eleanor Jane Nyman and Clarence Raymond Jenkins, whose wedding will take place today in St. Alban's Church. The dinner followed the wedding rehearsal. Mr. Landvoight is an uncle of the bride.

Your Questions On Homemaking

Sponge the spot with cleaning fluid. Then make a solution of 1 cup of denatured alcohol and 2 cups of water. Test the solution on a hidden part of the garment to be sure it will not affect the color. Sponge the stains with the solution, then with cold water.

I have a wrought iron lamp which seems to be rusting in spots. What can I do to remove the rust and keep it from rusting again. L. K. L.

Use one of the special rust-removing preparations sold in the household sections of department stores to remove the spots. A protective coat of liquid wax will help prevent future rusting and improve the appearance of the lamp.

I would like to ask a few questions about birth announcements. Does such an announcement obligate the person receiving it to send a gift to the baby? There are a number of people I would like to notify of the birth of my child, but I don't want to make them feel a gift should be sent. H. A.

No, a birth announcement doesn't obligate the recipient to send a gift to the newborn child. It's a nice way to notify your friends of the baby's arrival.

We have a baby's bathinette of canvas that has begun to leak. How can it be waterproofed? D. G.

Coating the outside of the bathinette with auto top dressing should make it waterproof again.

Can you tell me what will remove ink spots from a white plastic handbag? A. H. B.

Rub colorless petroleum jelly on the stain and leave it to soften for a short time. Then sponge with dry cleaning fluid. If traces of color remain, sponge with denatured alcohol.

How often should an electric refrigerator be defrosted? H. G.

The time to defrost your refrigerator is when the frost is one-quarter inch thick, or about as thick as a lead pencil.

What is the procedure for pasteurizing milk at home? W. E. K.

To pasteurize milk, you need a large-sized double boiler and a thermometer reading up to 220 degrees Fahrenheit—one that is large enough to handle conveniently and easy to keep clean. Heat the milk in the double boiler until the thermometer reads 150 degrees Fahrenheit, while stirring constantly. Keep at this temperature for 25 to 30 minutes. Then remove the part of the double boiler containing the milk and place it in a pan of cold water. Cool as quickly as possible by stirring. When the milk is cool, put it in scalded bottles, cover, and chill for keeping as usual.

Sally R. Scott, Lieut. Bucknell Are Married

Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Middleburg, Va., was the setting yesterday for the marriage of Miss Sally Ruth Scott to Lieut. Howard Bucknell 3d, U. S. N. The Rev. Spense Dunbar officiated.

The bride is daughter of Mrs. William L. Scott of Coronado, Calif., and the late Captain Scott, Erie, Pa. Lieutenant Bucknell is son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bucknell, jr., of Myrtle Hall Farm, Bluemont, Va. Mr. Bucknell is a former Foreign Service officer whose last post was Minister Counselor at the United States Embassy in London in 1944. At present he is vice president of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

Comdr. D. A. McElduff, USN., gave the bride in marriage. She was attired in a gown of white mousseline de soie, made with long sleeves, off-the-shoulder neckline and lace bodice. A lace cap held her fingertip-length veil and she carried white roses on a prayer book.

Miss Rosalie G. Hakes, Coronado, Calif., the maid of honor, was costumed in aqua marquisette, pink picture hat and carried pink roses. John Bucknell was best man for his brother and ushering were James and Michael McHugh, Washington.

A small reception took place at the home of the bridegroom's parents. After a motor trip West, the couple will reside in Coronado.

The bride attended schools in Coronado and Lieutenant Bucknell studied at Episcopal High School in Alexandria and is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, class of 1945.

CAB Bans All Passengers From 'Mail-Snatch' Planes

By the United Press

The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday commended All-American Aviation, Inc., for its experiments with the "swoop and snatch" technique of picking up mail and cargo in flight, but it ruled that passengers can't be carried aboard its pickup planes.

The CAB said it "would expose passengers to hazards which do not attend the operation of conventional aircraft."

The airline had asked for an amendment of its license so that it could carry passengers on its present rail-and-cargo route between Pittsburgh, Huntington, W. Va., and Elkins, W. Va.

The All-American has been using the route to experiment with pick-up cargo services in which a plane swoops low over apparatus containing mail or other cargo and snatches them up without landing.

Barkley Discounts GOP Claims for Congress

Woonsocket, R. I., Aug. 8 (AP).—Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democratic floor leader, challenging the Republican claims of accomplishment in the Eightieth Congress, said today the GOP had passed only one major law—the Taft-Hartley labor bill and, he said, "that law goes too far."

During an interview he praised both Republicans and Democrats, however, for their attitude on foreign affairs and he appealed to the country to stop talking and thinking about war.

"Talk war down and talk peace up," he urged.

Living Costs Affected by U. S. Actions

Two announcements affecting the cost of living came out of the Department of Agriculture yesterday.

First, the department said, the cost of Federal inspection of meats, formerly paid from public funds, hereafter will be charged against the packing companies.

The change is due to a provision in the recently passed agricultural appropriation bill, discontinuing an annual appropriation of 11 million dollars for meat inspection.

In Chicago, the American Meat Institute declared, the additional costs would have to be absorbed by the meat consumer.

The department also announced that price controls on edible syrups and molasses will be lifted today. Import and export controls on such commodities also are lifted.

The department emphasized that cane and beet sugar would continue under price, export and import controls, and that inedible molasses would continue under export and import restrictions.

The department also announced that a Nation-wide survey just completed showed that taxes on farm real estate increased last year more than in any year since 1920. Taxes on farms are up 12 per cent above 1945, and are the highest since 1931.

Marshall 'Cordially Welcomes' Argentine Proposal for Peace

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Secretary of State Marshall yesterday "cordially welcomed" and indorsed a month-old Argentine proposal for a peace plan sponsored by the Americas.

The Argentine proposal was presented last month by Foreign Minister Bramuilia. Marshall's answer was delivered in Buenos Aires on the eve of the Pan-American conference at Rio de Janeiro.

Though couched in general terms, as was Marshall's reply, the Argentine proposal contained these specific suggestions:

1. Adherance by the American republics to the peace principles enunciated in the charter of the United Nations.

2. A joint American effort, in collaboration with the Vatican, to seek adherence to those principles by other governments.

3. Adherence in theory and practice by all American governments to U. N. peace doctrines in all their assemblies, conventions, congresses and international meetings.

Meets U. S. Aims

"This expression of the Argentine Republic's high purpose to promote international peace," Marshall advised Bramutlia, "is cordially welcomed.

"This country throughout its history has been dedicated to the cause of peace and more specifically to promoting and maintaining permanent peace on the basis of international law, representative government, equal opportunity for all, and the protection of basic human rights."

He pointed out that the United States, at considerable cost, had made many recent efforts in this direction, noting that the United States is taking an active part in the "International Emergency Food Council, which allots world grain and other supplies." He added that "Argentina, one of the few grain-exporting nations, is not a member."

Truman to Visit Rio

Marshall assured Bramutlia that the United States "will at all times" welcome the opportunity to cooperate in a practical sense with Argentina, as well as with other states, for the realization of peaceful ideals and purposes.

Dispatches said the reply was accepted in Buenos Aires as United States adherence to the Peron peace plan. Officials here said there was no objection to that interpretation.

Marshall is scheduled to meet foreign ministers of all American republics at Rio August 15 to formulate a mutual defense policy for the Western Hemisphere. President Truman has announced his intention to fly to Rio on a state visit late this month or early in September. He is expected to address one of the closing sessions of the conference.

Paper Mills Will Bid for Alaska Wood

The United States Forest Service last night offered for sale 1,500,000,000 cubic feet of Alaska National Forest timber for use in manufacturing newsprint and paper.

The offer, authorized by legislation signed yesterday by President Truman, contemplates the eventual establishment of a permanent paper manufacturing industry in Alaska sufficient to meet 25 per cent of this country's annual consumption.

Prospective bidders were asked to submit information regarding their financial responsibility and experience in making pulp and paper products by September 8 and their bids by October 1.

The timber is in the Tongass National Forest near the town of Petersburg and Thomas Bay in central southeast Alaska.

Must Build Town

The successful bidder will be required to establish a pulp mill costing between 20 million and 30 million dollars and a community for workers.

The service said the timber offer is expected to mark a "major advance in the development of pioneer Alaska, with important implications for the economic security of the United States."

The proposed sale is the first of a number planned from southeast Alaska's estimated 80 billion cubic board feet of virgin timber. Each block will require its own mill and community of workers.

The initial block has sufficient timber, the Forest Service said, to run a mill with a capacity of 525 tons a day for 50 years.

Must Replace Trees

Buyers of the timber will be required to operate it on a sustaining-yield basis—that is, to replace cut timber with young trees for future use. They also will be required to safeguard salmon spawning streams, prevent stream pollution and preserve scenic areas.

The service said the lowest price that will be considered for the timber, scaled on a cubic basis and intended for pulp manufacture before July 1, 1960, is 85 cents per 100 cubic feet.

Funds received from sale of the timber will be held in a special Treasury account until the rights to the timber are finally determined by Congress. Native Indians and others now claim rights to some of the land involved.

Schwellenbach Says Members, Officials May See Statements

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

What unions tell the Government under the Taft-Hartley Act, will be confidential—but will be open to so many people that it is almost sure to become public.

Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach, who fought the act in Congress and at the White House, said yesterday he had no idea of resigning, but would stay on the job and carry out the new law. He will have as Undersecretary, David A. Morse, former assistant, who was appointed by President Truman soon after his choice was announced by Schwellenbach.

The Secretary said he was drawing up rules for handling the statements that all unions must file with his department if they want to take cases to the National Labor Relations Board.

What Unions Must Tell:

The names and salaries of their three chief officers, and of all other officers or agents who get $5000 or more a year, in all, for pay and expenses.

A report for the last fiscal year, showing all money taken in, and where it came from; all money spent, and what for; and assets and debts at the end of the year.

Schwellenbach said he felt that it was plain that Congress did not mean for this data to be open to the public, so that an employer could bear down on a union that he found was short of money. So he said his rules would limit those who may look at the union statements. He added that he would be glad to have his judgment on this point tested by a suit to force him to open the statements up to anybody who wanted to see them. That way, he said, the purpose of the law could be settled beyond any doubt.

The secretary's security policy, however, still leaves the statements open to the NLRB and other Government officials and agencies, to Senators and Congressmen on request of congressional committees and to members of the local and national unions which fill out the forms. There is nothing to keep any of these from telling what he finds in the statements.

Several big unions have said they would take no chances with their financial secrets and would refuse to file the statements. They do not have to, unless they want to take cases to the NLRB. However, if statements are filed, they must be true. Secretary Schwellenbach said that although not sworn the statements would come under the law making it a crime to file falsehoods with a Government agency.

Won't Publish Names

Schwellenbach said he would not give out the names of the unions which file statements, and would not say how many had filed, until he felt that those wishing to file had time to do so.

The new Undersecretary, Morse, has been Assistant Secretary of Labor since July 1 last year. He takes the place of former Gov. Keen Johnson of Kentucky, who resigned last month for a job in private industry.

Morse is 40 years old, a native of New York City and a graduate of Rutgers College and Harvard Law School. He was impartial chairman of the New Jersey cleaning and dyeing industry in 1941 and '42, and held the same job in the Metropolitan New York milk industry from 1940 to 1942.

After a year in the Army, as chief of the labor division of the military government in North Africa, Sicily and Italy, Morse went with the NLRB as general counsel.

Clayton Asks Action to Aid Britain, France

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, Aug. 8 (NYHT).—William Clayton, American Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs, has urged in a report to Washington either a special session of Congress this fall or some other emergency measures to provide immediate funds to meet imminent crises in France and England, it was stated here today.

The gravity of the economic crises in the two countries is such, according to the views of both Secretary Clayton and top American diplomats in Europe, that the two countries cannot afford to wait for assistance from the United States until the formulation and passage of the Marshall Plan for Europe—particularly since the American Congress may not get around to approving the plan until next April.

Instead some kind of stop-gap aid is necessary in the next few months. Otherwise political unrest and economic disruption in those two countries may well undermine American foreign policy in western Europe, the State Department experts in Europe feel.

Worse Than Revealed

It is emphasized that the seriousness of the economic and political situation in the two key western European countries arising from, among other things, the scarcity of dollars, is far more shocking particularly in France than the American public has yet been told.

One economist who was among the experts assisting in the Paris conference this week between Clayton and top American and European diplomats, said: "Unless help for France and Britain is forthcoming before winter is over there may well be an economic collapse. Unless some kind of help is given at once, their conditions will become so bad that the ultimate cure will be twice as hard and costly, if not impossible."

In brief, America's key statesmen in Europe fear firstly that if some kind of temporary aid is not forthcoming Britain may be forced into appeasment of Russia in order to get goods from that country which it does not have dollars to buy from the United States, and secondly that difficult times in France, may bring victory for the Communists.

The plight of England and France and other European countries were discussed in detail this week in Paris by Undersecretary Clayton and the following top American diplomats in Europe: Lewis Douglas, Ambassador to London; Robert Murphy, political advisor to the American Military Government in Germany with the rank of Ambassador; and Jefferson Caffrey, Ambassador to France. During this conference viewpoints were exchanged with British, French and other European officials.

U. S. Grand Jury Indicts Others In Kansas City

Kansas City, Aug. 8 (AP).—Another indictment was returned today by a special Federal grand jury which already has charged 11 persons with voting irregularities in the Kansas City primary election of August 6, 1946.

The report was made to Federal Judge Albert Ridge after the jury had questioned witnesses from the Twenty-first precinct of the Second Ward. The jury then recessed until August 19.

Since accepting the charge of Judge Ridge to make a "most thorough" investigation of alleged irregularities in the primary, the jury has returned three true bills.

The 11 persons named included election officials, precincts captains and a deputy sheriff. Politically they were divided eight Democrats and three Republicans.

Meat Intended For Jews Held At Liverpool

Liverpool, England, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Liverpool slaughtermen joined those at Birkenhead today in refusing to handle meat intended for Jews as another reprisal to Jewish terrorists' hanging of two British soldiers in Palestine.

In a resolution announcing their stoppage, 85 slaughtermen at Stanley Abattoir held that, "Morally, all Jews are as much responsible for the hangings as were the actual murderers."

Agency Assails British

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—The Jewish Agency for Palestine charged today that the British government had substituted "sovereignty" for law in the Holy Land and instead of furthering understanding had hampered a Jewish-Arab rapprochement.

In a 13,000-word document submitted to the United Nations Special Commission on Palestine, the Agency said British administration had been one of "continuous subversion of the paramountcy of law to the arbitrary exercise of sovereign authority."

Point by point, the document replied to the Palestine government's arguments. It said the British had acted "in defiance of an international trust" in administering the mandate and called the government memorandum "biased, pseudo-objective" and a revelation of "ignorant mentality."

The document claimed that the British had made no concrete effort in the political field to bring about understanding between Jews and Arabs.

Admitting there had been some technical achievements which benefitted the country as a whole, the document said the government had taken no steps toward tapping the country's water resources, initiating reclamation works, and providing credit facilities.

The government has done nothing to combat the Arab boycott, the agency continued, declaring that "a great opportunity has been missed and a unique charge has been deserted."

Mission to Greece Is Delayed by Loyalty Checks

The State Department reported yesterday that a loyalty investigation of several key persons assigned to work on the American assistance mission in Greece is delaying their departure.

The statement was made in connection with an announcement that recruitment for the mission is now virtually complete.

The statement said that "because of the legal requirements for clearance by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, several key mission personnel are still awaiting clearance in the United States and their names cannot be announced at this time."

Hungarian Whose 'Confession' Led to Coup Reported Dead

Budapest, Aug. 8 (AP).—A reliable informant said today Soviet authorities had reported the death of Bela Kovacs, whose alleged confession implicating former Premier Ferenc Nagy in a plot to overthrow the Hungarian government led to the Communist coup in which Nagy was killed.

The informant said he had seen a letter from Russian authorities reporting to the Hungarian government the death of Kovacs, former secretary general of Nagy's Smallholders Party.

This source, who could not be quoted by name, said Soviet Minister C. M. Pushkin had reported the death without specifying the place or time to the office of acting Foreign Minister Erno Mihalyfi. A spokesman for Mihalyfi told a news conference "nothing is known" about the state of Kovacs' health.

The American Government protested strongly against Kovocs' arrest. The Russians refused U. S. demands for copies of the alleged deposition from Kovacs which contained the alleged confession.

The United States charged that the coup of May 29 in which Nagy was ousted resulted in the Communists assuming control of Hungary, although they were not a majority party. The Russians said the American charge was "unfounded fiction."

Meanwhile in another Hungarian development, U. S. military mission officials said Russian authorities had cut by more than 50 per cent the number of American flights into and over Hungary, on the grounds there were so many planes over the country Soviet troops could not keep track of them.

Under the new regulations only five round-trip flights can be made weekly by U. S. planes into or over Hungary.

Some Americans viewed the Soviet action as retaliation for American refusal to grant clearance to the Russian-Hungarian transport company, Masoviet, over American-occupied zones unless the Russians and Hungarians grant equal rights to American commercial aircraft.

Dr. Overholser Seeks to Annul Son's Marriage

The son, Wilfred Overholser, jr., 17, was married July 10, the suit asserts, in Prince Frederick, Md., Methodist Church to Miss Mayer Louise Whedon, 19, of 1230 New Hampshire ave. nw.

Dr. Overholser filed the suit on behalf of the son. In it, the doctor claims the girl procured the marriage license in Prince Frederick by listing the son's age as 21 and that their marriage was due to "her influence and coercion." It claims they separated immediately afterward and did not live together as man and wife.

The petition asserts it is illegal for a male under 18 to marry in the District or in adjoining Maryland.

U. N. Asked to Approve Budget Third Higher Than Last Year

Lake Success, Aug. 8 (AP).—Secretary-General Trygve Lie asked the 55-nation General Assembly today for $39,403,782 to run the United Nations next year.

Submitting the annual budget for appproval, Lie attributed the rise to increased wages and salaries, financing of such new bodies as the economic commissions for Europe and for Asia and the Far East, and general expansion.

Contribution scales for the 55 governments have not been decided for 1948 as yet. Under the 1947 qquota system assessments ranged from 39.89 per cent for the United States down to .04 per cent for seven of the smallest nations.

Britain paid 11.48 per cent, Russia 6.34 and France and China 6.

Contribution figures were determined principally by ability to pay.

The United States served notice last year that it would pay no more than one third in 1948 and allocation of the costs was expected to set off a series of debates in the September Assembly meeting.

Byron Price, Assistant Secretary-General in charge of financial affairs, cautioned newsmen in a separate statement that the budget figures had been drawn up several months ago and might be changed by economy moves now under consideration or by emergency demands arising from handling such cases as that of Indonesia.

Price estimated, however, that the budget in its final form would be lower. Some U. N. officials said they believed the total might be slashed as much as four million dollars.

In an attempt to put a check on spending, Lie suggested that any expenditures not specifically provided for in the approved budget be held up unless they were on an emergency nature.

In his report Lie brought to the attention of the governments that delegates themselves were responible for the rising costs.

U. S. Asylum Offer Claimed In Sofia Trial

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—A witness in the trial of Nikola Petkov, opposition Agrarian Party leader charged with a conspiracy to overthrow the government, testified late yesterday that Petkov was offered asylum at the American Military Mission if he ever was threatened.

The witness, Nevena Roseva, was one of 65 prosecution witnesses sworn in en masse in a courtroom bristling with submachine guns. She said Petkov once quoted Maj. Gen. John A. Crane as saying to him that "the territory of the American mission was at his disposal" if he was in danger.

Miss Rozeva said also that she had carried notes between Petkov and Gen. Ivan Popov, who is charged by the prosecution with having been scheduled to become chief of staff following the coup d'etat allegedly planned by Petkov.

Petkov, white and shaking, followed the woman's testimony closely. He said later that he never had any contact with Popov. He charged that Miss Rozeva was closely connected with Fascists during the war.

Hindu Fanatics Attack Train, Murder 11 Moslems, Wound 4

Calcuta, India, Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Hundreds of enraged Hindus dragged 27 Moslems from an incoming surburban train on the outskirts of Calcutta today and hacked 11 of them to death with knives, bringing the death toll in 24 hours of violent religious fighting to 38 persons.

Four other Moslem passengers of the train were injured seriously from knife thrusts and the remaining 12 were given first aid.

News of the battle at the train swept Calcutta and set off a second day of knifing, bomb-throwing, acid-throwing and sniping throughout the city in which 4 more were killed and at least 50 injured.

Police fired into one rioting mob at midnight, killing 9 and wounding 25.

French Bar Dual Allegiance

Paris, Aug. 8 (AP).—The French government today turned its back on any idea that inhabitants of its five colonies in India might be allowed dual allegiance to French India and Hindustan. The government voted instead to institute a new form of government for French India.

A six-man government council for French India was decreed by the cabinet. Three of the six will be appointed by the colonial Governor and three by colonial legislators.

At present the colonies, of which Pondicherry is the largest, have an elective general council.

Arrested in Pondicherry

Madras, India, Aug. 8 (AP).—A press report from Pondicherry, French India, said today that 120 persons had been arrested since Thursday for conducting propaganda in connection with India's forthcoming independence day celebrations on August 15.

Boy Bitten by Tick Under Observation For 3 Diseases

Officials at Gallinger Hospital yesterday said a 12-year-old boy was under observation for possible sleeping sickness, polio or tick fever.

Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, Gallinger superintendent, said the boy appeared to be suffering from sleeping sickness, but that doctors were also checking polio and tick fever symptoms.

The boy, who was reported "moderately ill," lives in the 1800 block of 2d st. se. He was bitten by a tick about two weeks ago, Dr. Sweeney said.

Frostburg Scene

Legislators Hear Teacher College Plea

By A. Whitney Shoemaker
Associated Press Staff Writer

Frostburg, Md., Aug. 8.—Western Maryland leaders went to bat with the legislative council today for Frostburg State Teachers College.

Their theme was that the institution should be expanded, not abandoned. It was put up to the touring legislators by Miss Lillian Compton, president of the college, and A. C. Stewart, Allegany County registrar of wills and prominent Republican leader.

The future of Frostburg Teachers was one of the main problems laid before the council on its four-day tour of Maryland's two western counties for a first-hand look at conditions.

Miss Compton greeted them at the college with an assertion it needs at least 13 new buildings—a new auditorium-gymnasium, a new science laboratory, an office for faculty members, and 10 dormitories.

A State commission on higher education suggested last fall that Frostburg be abandoned as a State normal school. It contended the school costs too much for the number of teachers it turns out.

(Board of Public Works yesterday approved an expenditure of $7080 to build the foundation for a new science laboratory. The building itself has been obtained from the Federal Government at Camp Peary, Va.

(Another $52,000 worth of improvements for the college also was authorized yesterday by the Board of Public Works. But $450,000 earmarked for the school in the old postwar fund was wiped out under Governor Lane's new financial program for the next two years.)

Registrar Stewart presented his arguments for expanding Frostburg as spokesman for local citizens who entertained the legislative fact-finders for dinner at the big Savage Mountain Hotel.

Roosevelt Hurt Federal Judiciary, Says Roanoke Man

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—Selection of judges for their economic and social views was criticized by Frank W. Rogers, Roanoke attorney, in a talk on judicial opinions before the Virginia State Bar Association at Hotel Roanoke today.

"Nothing in recent times has brought our courts into public disrepute as the tendency to give a more or less plausible reason for a decision when every layman knows that actually the court was motivated by entirely different considerations not mentioned in the opinion," Rogers declared.

"This unfortunate tendency, Rogers said, "has become much more pronounced since the late President Roosevelt inaugurated the practice of selecting judges on the basis of their economic and social views."

Hopkins Presides

"Undoubtedly," Rogers observed, "his many accomplishments will entitle him to rank as a great President. But whatever may be the final verdict on his administration as a whole, every lawyer knows that the harm he did to the Federal judiciary was not offset by the few outstanding appointments with which we in Virginia are familiar and that that harm cannot be repaired in this generation or the next."

His remarks were injected into a discussion of the essentials of clarity, readability, and integrity in judicial opinions. He spoke before the judicial section of the association.

The judicial section meeting was presided over by Judge A. H. Hopkins of Rocky Mount.

Dean F. D. G. Ribble, of the University of Virginia Law School, said a strong United Nations is America's number one security requirement, a responsibility that falls within the lot of every lawyer.

Cites Atmic Wealth

Dean Ribble held that while military security will involve heavy demands on property it will not require the surrender of rights deemed fundamental to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Dean Ribble said the public is worried about atomic weapons and little is herd about atomic wealth.

"Perhaps if we could but accentuate the positive gain to man rather than the negative fear, we might strengthen the will for peace," he observed.

Jobs and Jobless Climb to Record Mark During July

Civilian employment mounted to a new all-time record of 60,079,000 in July, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

Joblessness climbed also, reaching 2,584,000 as students sought summer work and graduates hunted their first jobs. This was 29,000 above June.

The month was the second in which the working force topped 60 million the "full employment" goal as defined by former Vice President Henry A. Wallace. July employment topped June, the previous high, by 24,000 workers.

Counting those in the armed forces, the Nation's July total of job holders was 62,664,000.

The Census Bureau noted that in June and July employment "is at a summer peak and includes many seasonal and part time workers."

Margaret Truman To Sing Aug. 23 at Hollywood Bowl

Kansas City, Aug. 8 (AP).—Mrs. T. J. Strickler, Miss Margaret Truman's voice teacher, said today the date for Miss Truman's appearance with the Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra had been set for August 23.

Mrs. Strickler also disclosed that the President's daughter would make her concert debut in Pittsburgh, October 17. The concert series, which was scheduled to open at Pittsburgh in May, was postponed when Mrs. Martha E. Truman, the President's mother, became critcally ill.

For her appearance in Hollywood, Mrs. Strickler said Miss Truman would sing two arias in the first half of the concert and a group of three or four songs in the second part.

Mr. and Mrs. Strickler will accompany Miss Truman for the West Coast appearance.

Overseas Pilots Will Limit Work To 12-Hour Shift

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Communications officers employed by American Overseas Airlines will refuse to work after midnight tonight on flights requiring a single operator to be in the air more than 12 consecutive hours, the Flight Communications Officers Association said tonight.

The association, an affiliate of the Commercial Telegraphers Union (AFL), with 150 members employed by American Overseas, said it had informed the airline of its action today and the first flight affected was scheduled for 9 a. m. tomorrow.

The AFL union said its action was taken after American Overseas Airlines Thursday ordered that in the future only one instead of two operators would be used on Transatlantic flights. The union said the new policy involved deducting rest time in the air from a radio operator's working time.

COP to Pick Nominee

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 7 (AP).—Republicans of the Twenty-first Senatorial District will gather at Salem tomorrow to choose their nominee for the State Senate, with the renomination of Senator Ted Dalton, of Radford, virtually a foregone conclusion. The convention will open at the courthouse at 2 p. m.

Building Boom Bars Purchase Of Park Sites

Prince Frederick, Md., Aug. 8 (AP).—A Calvert County building boom is so great that land owners are refusing to sell their properties to the state for a bayside park, State Senator Louis L. Goldstein reported today.

"There is no doubt this is a several million dollar boom," Goldstein said. "We are using all available local construction concerns here and we need outside help."

The Senator reported State efforts to obtain land options for a park somewhere between the Patuxent Rive rand Chesapeake Bay are being turned down. Goldstein said not one State offer has been accepted.

The Senator said the building room is being pushed by five large development concerns, most of them from Washington, D. C.

At the southern tip of the county, the Drum Point Corp. of Washington represented by Goldstein, has bought 2200 acres with six miles of waterfront along the Bay. Patuxent River and Mule Creek. It has sold 112 sites.

In the north, Rose Haven, is under development with 377 acres being subdivided. The Willard development of 350 acres on the Chesapeake near Plum Point, Cape Leonard on St. Leonard's Creek with 275 acres, and Bankroft, Inc., with 755 acres east of the creek are the other developments.

Goldstein attributed the Calvert County building boom principally t oa migration of Washington and Virginia metropolitan residents. Most of the homes being built are of summer bungalow type.

Dry Weather, Beetles Hurt Crops in Md.

Maryland crops are being damaged by Japanese beetles, blight, and dry weather, the Weather Bureau reported yesterday in its weekly summary.

Vegetables from the mountain counties to the Eastern Shore have been almost wholly destroyed by beetles, the bureau reported. Blight is affecting potatoes and tomatoes, while lack of moisture has reached drought proportions in tobacco counties of Southern Maryland.

The bureau's summary by sections:

Western Maryland: Tomato blight has done local damage. Early potatoes are being dug in Washington County and wet weather has caused some rot. Pastures and hay crops are excellent in Washington and Allegany Counties, but only fair in Garrett where wet weather delayed the harvest.

Southern Maryland: Harvesting of sweet corn and tomatoes has started. Considerable local damage has been caused to tomatoes by blight and to corn by beetles. Yields of potatoes are good except in Howard County where they have suffered from blight. The tobacco and corn crops have been damaged by lack of rain.

Eastern Shore: The tomato blight condition has improved. Japanese beetles are damaging corn in some localities. Some crops have suffered from the dry weather. Sweet corn and tomatoes are good and being sent to the canneries.

Coast Guard Bans Nitrate Loading Except by Army

By The Associated Press

The Coast Guard yesterday banned the loading or unloading of ammonium nitrate in populated areas by anyone except the Army.

The Army at the same time issued strict new regulations for its handling of the explosive fertilizer which caused the Texas City, Tex., explosion last spring.

The Coast Guard order applies to all ammonium nitrate in amounts of more than 500 pounds. Before shipping the substance, a Coast Guard permit is needed.

The new regulations of the Army, which ships the fertilizer to occupied areas, require a continuous fire watch on ships during loading. No ship carrying this material may carry explosives or sulphur at the same time. No other cargo may be carried in a hold in which the fertilizer material is stored.

These regulations apply only to Army transports or ships under contract to the Army.

Tuck Visits Tangier for Homecoming

Tangier, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—Governor Tuck came here today to join in the homecoming celebration of this Chesapeake Bay island whose people he said "carry the torch of freedom, equality and justice in a manner unexcelled in these United States."

Addressing a crowd of several hundred visitors and resident oystermen, crabbers, clammers and fishermen, the governor said he long has thought the lives of the islanders "typify perhaps more vividly than anywhere else the real spirit of America."

"Your independence, a characteristic that sometimes is misunderstood but which I thoroughly appreciate, has been maintained through the centuries," he declared.

Lauds Community Spirit

"At the same time you have developed a community spirit that has brought you mutual respect for the rights of one another and a high plane of citizenship."

The governor expressed a belief that "all Americans would be well to re-learn the lesson of neighborly living that is so indelibly imprinted in the history of your island and your people. The day-by-day practice of true democracy is the real test of good citizenship and you have demonstrated here the qualities of which Americans are wont to boast."

Governor Tuck's visit was a highlight of the second day's program of the three-day celebration. Flying to Kellam Field, on the Eastern Shore, he motored to Onancock and there boarded the Virginia Commission of Fisheries yacht for Tangier. A picnic lunch was served after the party's arrival.

Returns to Richmond Today

Coming here with him were Commissioner of Fisheries Charles M. Lankford, jr., Eastern Shore members of the Virginia General Assembly, his administrative assistant, Ben Lacy, and executive secretary, Carter O. Lowance.

The Governor plans to return to Richmond tomorrow morning.

Also on the program for this afternoon and tonight were a baby show, baseball game, songfest and religious service.

The island will wind up its celebration tomorrow with a program of events similar to those of yesterday and today.

Two Md. Men Get Awards For 4-H Work

Two Maryland men received plaques for distinguished service to youth at ceremonies held yesterday at the University of Maryland before 1000 4-H Club delegates and guests including eight Polish youths studying American farm methods.

Recipients of the awards were E. G. Jenkins (Daddy Jenks), Hyattsville, the first 4-H Club Agent in Maryland, and Matthias F. Reese, Baltimore, secretary of the Maryland Bankers' Association.

The Polish youths are in this country under sponsorship of the Brethren Organization and will spend a year studying home and farm life in rural sections of Maryland under direction of the University of Maryland Extension Service.

In the review of dresses made and modeled by 4-H Girls, Miss Martha Jane Layman, 17, of Frederick, won first place and will represent Maryland at the National 4-H Club Convention in Chicago this winter. Runners-up to Miss Layman were Miss Barbara Ann Young, 18, Middletown; Miss Martha Ann Ziegler, 16, Denton, and Miss Betty Lipton, 16, Jarrettsville.

All dresses in the contest were judged on a scale giving blue ribbons to the best entries and red and white ribbons to those of slightly less perfection. Other prizes were awarded as follows:

Appeal Granted

Richmond, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals granted an appeal today to Virginia State Lines, Inc., from a jury verdict of the Corporation Court of Lynchburg awarding $6000 damages to Mrs. Georgiana S. Newcomb, 65-year-old former cafe hostess, for injuries suffered in a fall in the Lynchburg bus terminal in February, 1945.

4-H Teams to Compete

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—The annual State 4-H dairy cattle judging contest will be held at Virginia Tech, September 13, with judging teams of three members from each county competing.

The winning team will be eligible to compete in the Southern sectional contest at the Atlantic Bural Exposition in October.

Two 4-H members from each county who are regularly enrolled in dairy work will form judging teams to compete in the State dairy demonstration contest, to be held in conjunction with the cattle judging competition.

Survey Action Taken

Winchester, Va., Aug. 8.—Winchester Council members have approved on second reading an ordinance providing $2000 for a traffic survey to be made of the city by the State Highway Department. It will come up for final consideration Tuesday.

Finance Study Set

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 8 (AP).—Comptroller James J. Lacy, chairman of the Board of Revenue Estimates, said today the board probably would not meet before September 1 to consider Baltimore City finances, which are to be the subject of a special Legislature session.

Lacy said W. Irvin Young, chief of the Bureau of Revenues, and secretary to the board, had been instructed to make a study of proposals set forth by Baltimore's Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro, jr., and its budget director, Herbert Fallin.

Driver Fined $300

Winchester, Va., Aug. 8.—One of the highest fines meted out in Police Court here in several months has been paid by Garland Madagan, Route 1-A, Winchester, who entered a plea of guilty to charges of drunken driving and operating a car while his operator's license was suspended. The fine was $300 plus costs. A 90-day jail sentence on each charge was suspended.

Va. Thins Out Flies

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—The fly is on its way out in Virginia, according to Entomologist J. O. Rowell of the Agricultural Extension Service, who reported today that the State's insect pest population is at an all-time low.

Dairy farmers whom Rowell termed "progressive" have virtually eliminated summer milk production slumps due to flies by spraying regularly with DDT, he said.

Town Officer Named

Berryville, Va., Aug. 8.—O. J. Dorsey, 50, of Winchester, has been appointed town sergeant here. He succeeds John Edward Massie, who resigned to accept a position as town policeman in Romney, W. Va.

Dorsey, a native of Frederick County, has served as a special officer for the Winchester police department on numerous occasions. For the past eight years he has been a driver for the Novick Transfer Co.

Couple 50 Years Wed Calls Children Key to Happiness

If you're disillusioned with marriage, take a ride out to Oxon Hill, Md.—5751 Livingston rd.

There, like a storybook setting, you'll find a simple frame house . . . a gay garden . . . and a happy couple.

The pair, young in spirit and outlook, celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Cohen, who've lived together through 18,262 days, won't have to tell you the answer. You'll see it—in the cheerfulness of their smiles, the sparkle of their conversation. She is 72—looks 50. He is 73.

But should you ask for some key to wedded happiness in these days of mounting divorce totals, this is what they'll say:

"Children are the important thing . . . they hold you together. They don't give you a chance to become bored with each other.

"And people should keep closer to God. A good, strong Christian faith will see you through many troubles."

Today, as a token of their affection and respect, Mr. and Mrs. Cohen's big brood—five children and five grandchildren—will gather 'round for a family celebration. Tomorrow, from 4 to 7, dozens of old friends will stop by to wish them well.

Guests expected include Mrs. C. B. Vincent of 640 K st. ne., who was maid-of-honor at their wedding, and Mrs. Z. W. Hershey of York Springs, Pa., who was flower girl.

Legislature Hit by Legion Parley in Md.

Baltimore, Aug. 8 (AP).—As observers noted the absence of tomfoolery which marked its prewar predecessors, the annual convention of the Maryland Department of the American Legion swung into its third day today with a critical report from the organization's legislative committee.

William H. McGrath, chairman of the committee and himself a House of Delegates Representative from Prince Georges County, delivered the report, which charged that the present State Legislature is unsympathetic to the welfare of veterans.

"It is the consensus of the members of the legion's legislative committee," McGrath said, "that the present Legislature is not veteran minded. . . ."

Reviews Legislation

He reviewed legislation passed by the 1947 Legislature, declaring that in one instance a measure which would have benefited veterans of Montgomery County was opposed by Delegates from that same county.

One lawmaker, Leroy Pumphrey of Prince Georges County, floor leader in the House of Delegates, was charged in the report with being unfriendly "to all veteran legislation."

The committee also criticized William P. Bolton—though not by name—for voicing "real opposition" to a bill involving the eligibility of subversive organization members to hold state offices.

"This bill is aimed at subversive activities by Communists, Fascists and individuals who advocate the overthrow of the state government by force," McGrath read.

Opposition Encountered

"Opposition was encountered in the judiciary committee of the House of Delegates. The real opposition to this bill was voiced by the chairman of the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee."

Bolton, State Senator from Baltimore County, was chairman of the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee during the 1947 legislative session.)

McGrath then reported that the bill was passed and signed by the Governor and will be voted on in the 1948 general election as a proposed constitutional amendment.

The legislative committee's report was the highlight of today's business session, the adjournment of which enabled the 1100 delegates to turn their attention to tonight's parade.

Although the parade was one of the biggest to be sponsored at a department convention and some fun-making after the affair was forecast, the 1947 edition of the state gathering so far has been anything but spectacular.

Lacy Discloses Lane Windfall Of 1.8 Million

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 8 (AP).—Comptroller James J. Lacy disclosed today the Lane administration had received a $1,878,843.62 windfall in surplus revenues at the close of the 1947 fiscal year.

Lacy said, in a preliminary fiscal report, the total surplus for the biennium was $13,785,171.19 against an estimated surplus of $11,906,327.52 made when Governor Lane prepared his budget for 1948-49.

The comptroller said the windfall was due to two main factors—a $1,182,432.81 increase in revenues and $596,430.96 in reversions. A smaller influence was a bookkeeping change in the comptroller's accounts.

He said the rise in income tax take was the biggest item in the revenue increase, which served to offset a decline in alcoholic beverage income.

Governor Lane has expressed concern frequently over the State financial situation, especially with regard to the income from the new sales tax. He has said he is not certain at all that it will bring in the $18,400,000 expected during the next two years.

As a result, he has tried to impress on all State department officials the necessity of keeping within the allotments set in the budget.

Prices of Leaf Off $1 to $6 on Border Belt

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 8 (AP).—Prices for flue-cured tobacco on the border belt markets of South Carolina and North Carolina today showed declines which ranged from $1 to $6 per hundred over opening-day prices, the Federal-State marketing service reported.

The largest declines were shown in the lower grades of offerings, with drops of $1 to $4 in lugs and from $3.50 to $6 in primings. Best thin nondescript showed a drop of $2.75.

There was a considerable amount of tobacco being sold below the commodity credit support prices. However, some growers took advantage of support prices—thereby availing themselves of grade price loan rates averaging 40 cents a pound or 90 per cent of June 15 parity price.

Fairfax Herds Lead State In Production

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—The Fairfax County No. 1 Dairy Herd Improvement Association led the State's 47 associations in milk production during June with an average of 874 pounds per cow, it was reported here today.

In its monthly summary, the Virginia State Dairymen's Association listed as first in butterfat production the Loudoun County No. 1 group with an average per cow for the month of 36 pounds.

The Fairfax group, supervised by Larry H. Blair, had on test 22 herds, numbering 905 cows. Supervisor L. C. Umphlette of the Loudoun association listed 23 herds with 978 cows.

Ranking first in milk production for individual herds was the registered and grade Holstein herd of Albert Flora of the Franklin County No. 1 Association. Flora's 12-cow herd averaged 1317 pounds of milk per cow.

Marvin Perkins of the Fairfax No. 1 group had the State's top herd in butterfat production. His 31 registered and grade Holsteins averaged 49.8 pounds each for the month. Perkins' herd was second in milk production with an average per cow of 1285 pounds.

The State Association average in June was listed as 680 pounds of milk and 28.6 pounds of butterfat per cow.

Maryland VA Payroll Faces Additional Cuts

Baltimore, Aug. 8 (AP).—Discontinuance of an undetermined number of Veterans Administration offices in Maryland and additional discharges of employes was announced today by William L. Limburg, Maryland regional director.

Limburg said Deputy Administrator James B. Cress had ordered a reduction of 364 employes in the Richmond branch area, which comprises Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and the District of Columbia.

Body of Md. Girl, Drowned in Flash Flood, Recovered

Gatlingburg, Tenn., Aug. 8 (AP).—The body of Miss Rose Mary Mathias, 23, of Frostburg, Md., was found today a mile and one half downstream from the spot where a flash flood swept her into a mountain stream yesterday in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

The body, wedged between two rocks, was found by Park Ranger Fred Wingileir.

Miss Mathias and three girl companions, who arrived yesterday to spend their vacation in the park, were sunning themselves on rocks in the Little Pigeon River near here when a wall of water from a cloudburst upstream suddenly descended upon them.

Screaming, the girls scrambled for the bank. Three escaped but Miss Mathias was swept downstream.

2 Hospital Aides Are Charged With Assaulting Patient

Williamsburg, Va., Aug. 8 (AP).—Two attendants at Eastern State Hospital have been arrested on charges of assault upon a patient, William Hunnicutt, at the hospital on August 6, and will be given hearings on Trial Justice Court here Monday.

The attendants, J. C. Morgan and Erwin Williams, were arrested, Chief of Police W. H. Kelly said today, on warrants on which Dr. Granville L. Jones, superintendent of the hospital, was the complainant. The pair also is charged with being drunk and disorderly.

Morgan remtined in the local jail today and Williams was free under bond. Hunnicutt was placed in the hospital infirmory, but officials said his injuries weer not serious.

Md. Tobacco Auction To Close August 28

Baltimore, Aug. 8 (AP).—The closing date of the Southern Maryland tobacco auction market has been set at Thursday, August 28, it was announced today after a meeting of buyers, marketers and warehousemen.

50 Newsmen Sail Chesapeake In Guided Tour of Fisheries

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 8 (AP).—A group of 50 newspapermen left today aboard the State yacht Potomac on a guided tour of State tidewater fisheries.

The group made its first stop at the pound net operated by Capt. Bernard Hallock off Thomas Point at the mouth of the South River.

A discussion of fishery management problems was conducted by David H. Wallace, executive secretary of the department; shellfish culturist Ralph Hammer, and James B. Engle and Elmer Higgins, biologists of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service.

The Potomac proceeded to Tilghman's Island, where it visited the Tilghman Island Packing Co. plant, owned by George T. Harrison, a member of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

Several oyster bars were visited at which oysters were dredged up for examination. Crab pots and trout lines operating off the mouth of the Patuxent River were seen as the boat headed to Solomons.

In the evening, the newsmen inspected the Chesapeake laboratory, of the Department of Research and Education.

Later the group will visit Patuxent River oyster bars and en route to Annapolis, there will be a panel discussion of fisheries problems.

Arrangements for the trip have been made by John E. Clark, chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission, and Dr. R. V. Truitt, head of the biological laboratory.

27,000 Workers In Glass Industry Win Wage Boosts

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 8 (U.P.).—Wage boosts for 27,000 miscellaneous workers in the Flint glass industry wer eannounced today at a labor-management conference.

The announcement was made by Harry H. Cook, Toledo, Ohio, incan Flint Glass Workers Union of ternational president of the Ameri-North America (AFL). The group is meeting with the National Association of Manufacturers of Pressed and Blown Glassware.

Under the agreement, workers in automatic machine production plants will get 10 cent hourly wage boosts; combination machine and hand production plant employes, eight cents, and hand production workers, six cents.

The AFL union is negotiating for 35,000 workers in the industry.

D. C. Boatman Recovers From Capsizing Ordeal

T. A. Towney, 44, of 3105 Ely pl. se., one of three men rescued Thursday night when their rowboat capsized in the Chesapeake Bay, was resting at his home today.

His brother, Joseph T. Towney, 39, of 2719 Minnesota ave. se., and Elwood Anderson of North Beach remained at their beach homes. The Towney brothers clung to their overturned boat for a half hour before being rescued by a power boat. Anderson swam close to shore, where he was picked up by a passing boat.

CAPE LEONARD

Why is Cape Leonard the fastest selling vacation land of its kind in Maryland? Why have so many prominent, desirable families bought home sites at Cape Leonard? The following will explain why. Cape Leonard is only 46 miles from the District line. It is a large salt water peninsula surrounded by placid lake-like clear, blue waters with a good, sandy bottom. Cape Leonard has exceptionally wide, winding roads and big towering shade trees. This peninsula is always swept by delightful breezes and is located between the world-famous Solomons and Broome Islands. This park-like restricted community offers an opportunity for the entire family to live and play in one of nature's beauty spots. Cape Leonard has ideal swimming, fishing, crabbing, boating and two all-year protected harbors. There are also protections on the property at all times; they will design, build and finance your home now. See the homes already completed on Indian Circle. Unusually large lots at $750 up. Waterfront lots proportionately priced. Fast paved highways right to our entrance. Mr. Smith is on the property at all times. Select your lot now. Directions: Drive out Penna. ave. S.E., left on Alabama ave. (Route 4) to Marlboro, then Solomons Island rd. through Prince Frederick to Broome Island rd., turn right; follow signs to Cape Leonard. Uncivil War Between States Flares Anew

That unpleasantness between the North and the South during Mr. Lincoln's term should never be called "The War Between the States." The correct name is "The Civil War."

So says a leaflet issued by the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War—and the Sons are pretty determined about it, too.

Their leaflet reminds us that the Constitution forbids States to make war upon each other, and that the Supreme Court has several times ruled the fracas a "civil war."

And did Mr. Lincoln say in his speech at Gettysburg: "Now we are engaged in a great War Between the States?" Of course not! So the Sons consider their case air-tight.

Those wishing to dispute these contentions will please get their old uniforms out of moth balls and prepare for a renewal of hostilities.

OLD, OLD STORY

"I've walked the streets for hours, looking for an apartment for my wife and me; I've talked to the right people and the wrong people; I've talked to in-laws, outlaws and everybody else who would listen; all to no avail.

"Can you do anything to help me? I'll shine the shoes of the person who can tell me where to find a place to live."

That particular letter is from a Marine who is permanently stationed in Washington. But it could just as well have come from a hundred other people.

Obviously, we can't print all those letters—and it wouldn't be fair to print some and ignore others.

If that doesn't work, you might contact the guy who was recently quoted as saying "there isn't any housing shortage." What a sense of humor that bird has.

MEMO TO OUR MERCHANTS

It appears that children aren't the only ones who have trouble getting the attention of clerks. Read this note from R. L. W., who lives in the 2100 block of California st. nw.:

"It might console Walter to know that I'm 50, and get the same treatment from the clerks —and I'm not so small that they can't see me.

"My only recourse has been to walk (as haughtily as possible) from each of these establishments, and resolve never again to bother them with my presence.

"The only trouble with that plan is that I am running out of stores."

PATIENCE, BOB

Bob Gray, of 5100 7th st. nw., postcards, "Do you know of one, just one, honest new-car dealer? I need a new car, but can't seem to connect."

I know lots of honest dealers, Bob—and they'll all tell you quite honestly that when demand outruns supply, lots of people have to wait.

MEMO TO VACATIONERS:

You folks may be out of the District for a few weeks, but we District Liners still want to share your amusing experiences. How about dropping us a line or two?

COINCIDENCE DEPT.

Yellow Cab bookkeeper, Sam Loving, was filing drivers' pay cards when he came upon these four, in this order:

Montgomery, Ward, Howard, Hughes.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Tell the young lady on Channing st. ne. that her kitten is old enough to take now. I've lost her phone number." (Michigan 5763.)

QUESTION AND ANSWER

"Johnson, Miller and Playscquatte" get into the argument about California with this challenge:

"We agree that California is the best State of them all. Name one unfavorable thing about our State."

Kaufman Gets Some Reading Done

Hollywood—Jerry Wald, the producer, wanted to bring George S. Kaufman to Hollywood to direct a movie. He asked Kaufman, "How much do you want?" Kaufman replied, "More than I'm worth." Wald cabled his employer, Jack Warner, who was in Europe, "Kaufman says he wants more than he's worth." Warner never answered . . . At Otto Preminger's house last night Wald reminded Kaufman of this story. "Well," said Kaufman, who is directing "The Senator Was Indiscreet," "Now I got it" . . . Kaufman has devoted all his time the past "weeks" to his new directing job. He hasn't even had time for any of the books he brought from New York. Yesterday when two planes did some skywriting urging people to drink a soft drink, Kaufman dictated a message to the skywriters, "That's the only thing I've read in weeks."

Joan Crawford, who has a son and three daughters, will adopt two more sons. Her goal is eight children . . . The painting of lemons in a basket by 'Edna Tobias went for $700 at the UJA art auction last week. The top bidder for it was Eddie Cantor. Tobias is the nom d'art of his daughter.

David O. Selznick told a group of producers and directors that he found a way of making time to do his various movie jobs. "I don't sleep at all on Monday nights," said Selznick. "I found that by working from Monday morning through to Tuesday night and giving up sleep on Mondays I can accomplish everything I have to do" . . . Skeptic asked Mrs. Selznick, "Is it true that David never sleeps on Monday nights?" Mrs. Selznick nodded, "It's true. David never sleeps on Monday nights, but he sleeps all day Wednesday and Thursday."

"State of the Union" will be released under unusual auspices. It is being made by the Capra-Wyler-Stevens unit, Liberty Films, which Paramount bought in return for Metro's permitting Spencer Tracy to star in it. This Liberty film, owned by Paramount, is being made at the Metro lot and will be released by Metro . . . When Joan Harrison, the director, was observed laughing uproariously at something George Sanders had said, a Hollywood veteran said, "Either Sanders told a fuuuy joke or else Joan wants him for a picture" . . . Gene Fowler says that for his next book he has a million ideas—before taxes, that is.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke is exhibiting a clipping from a newspaper published in Leeds, a city in Yorkshire whose traditional rival is the nearby city of Bradford. The newspapers of each city always denounced the people and activities in the rival city. Recently the Leeds and Bradford editors held a meeting and decided to end this foolish rivalry and to enter upon a new state of friendship and good will. A few days later a Bradford resident decapitated his wife, shot his two sons, hurled his mother-in-law from a window and set fire to himself. The Leeds paper headlined the story "Strange Behavior of Bradford Man."

The prized descriptive in a screen play is a script submitted to Nunnally Johnson. He read it and then told the writer, "Can you imagine me calling the casting department and asking for a girl who 'enters the room with April loveliness'?"

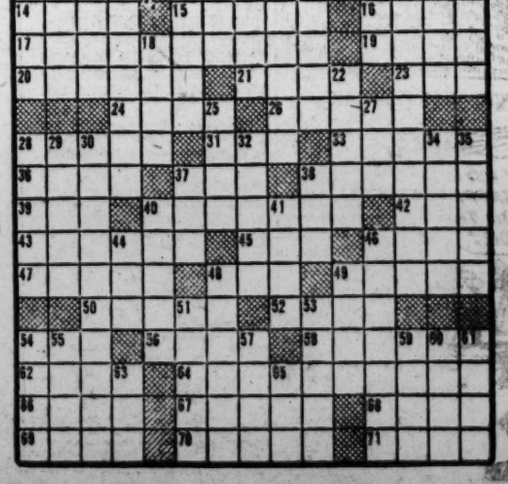
Solution to Yesterday's Puzzle



TERRY AND THE PIRATES

THEY'RE FIRING! THEY MEAN TO KILL ME ... MUST GET AWAY FROM HERE ...
I'D SUGGEST THIS BACK DOOR ... AND I HOPE YOU'VE HAD SOME PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE AT CROSS-COUNTRY RUNNING.
BEHOLD, OH MOUNTAIN MEN! THE FOX BREAKS COVER.

WAHOO AND STEVE ROPER

Y'SAY THAT CAKE I ORDERED IS READY, FRENCHY?
OUI, MADAME! BUT I AM DESOLATE! A WEDDING CAKE SHOULD HAVE A RING, A BELL AND A BRIDE AND GROOM ON IT--- WIZ ALSO ZE TENDAIR SENTIMENTS!
BAKERY
WHAT'RE YA BEEFIN' ABOUT?--- IF YA MADE IT LIKE I TOLD YA, IT'S GOT ALL THEM THINGS!
HERE IT IS!--- VOILA!--BUT I SHALL BE KICKED OUT OF ZE MASTAIR PASTRY BAKERS' GUILD!
WHY, FRENCHY!--- I THINK IT'S DOWNRIGHT BEE-U-TIFUL!
THE WINNER!!!
Congratulations
Mr. and Mrs. Crump

DIXIE DUGAN

THE NEXT TIME I GO TO A DANCE WITH CARTER I'M GONNA DRESS FOR THE OCCASION--INCLUDING SPURS
HE'S CUTE
BY THE WAY--HAS KEN SAID ANYTHING TO YOU ABOUT ME?
HE STARTED TO WHILE WE WERE DANCING
WELL--I'LL LET YOU IN ON A LITTLE SECRET

Friendly Wind

The passing wind has always been . . . A kindly friend to me . . . Because in lonely moments it . . . Has kept me company . . . Along the street where people stroll . . . Without a sign or word . . . It has imparted messages . . . That only I have heard . . . The message of memory . . . That fill a friendly breeze . . . When it is whispering among . . . The gently swaying trees . . . The wind has made me ready for . . . The winter's icy hold . . . By howling down the chimney-place . . . To warn me of the cold . . . Each spring it has invited me . . . To leave my work and play . . . And always it has tried so hard . . . To blow the rain away.

One On the Aisle—

Pathe Rooster Shifts

'Duel' 10 Million First 10 Weeks

By Richard L. Coe

IN PERSON, MAILBAG AND PHONE: Look for Warner Pathe News at the Earle, Metropolitan and Ambassador August 14 . . . Warner Brothers have taken over the reels with the crowing cockerel and Pathe personnel . . . Pathe shorts aren't affected by the deal. . . . What's a chameocereus silvestrii? . . . Paramount says it's sending us one under "separate cover" and we haven't a clue . . . Sam Cummins of the Pix is rubbing his hands over the third week of "Duel in the Sun." . . . The David O. Selznick whopper, which owes a lot to a publicity drive that began 18 months before the picture's release, grossed 10 million the first 10 weeks out.

STEVE COCHRAN, long manager of the National and founder of the Olney Theater, is reported near death in Hollywood . . . Steve was injured by a streetcar July 27 and his friends fear he will not recover, reports Dr. William Argy.

ELLA LOGAN in town . . . Holidaying over in Virginia, the former "Finian's Rainbow" star is taking things easy . . . But faced the Washington traffic with a couple of Army officers, who lured her into Connecticut ave.'s Disc Shop . . . Ella autographed some "Finian" albums and one customer got a surprise when he found her own real, genuine name scrawled on his copy.

Alice Tyrrell, whose dad lives at 634 D st. se., is the singing manicurist of that musical short at the Earle, "Smooth Sailing." . . . Alice used to do a lot of local broadcasting and visited Hollywood for a couple of weeks' vacation some years ago. . . . She's called southern California home ever since.

HAVE YOU NOTICED the new screens at the Palace and Columbia? . . . Nor had we, but they're something new. . . . "The Raven Flameproof Transtone Coated Sound Screens" is the official name and they're said to give brighter light and more distinct projection. . . . In the mail every day this week has come a blurb from the Hippodrome with raves on Noel Coward's "This Happy Breed," which will be along after "Henry VIII," which opens today.

BROKEN HEARTS in the "Oklahoma" company. . . . Some of the kids don't read the papers as closely as you do and they were all but at the Palace yesterday at dawn for that "Great Waltz" reissue, which, of course, didn't waltz. . . . "I Wonder Who's Kissing, etc," holding over, puts off the Strauss music until after "Gone With the Wind." . . . But by then the kids will be gone and "Waltz" has been eluding them everywhere. . . . These sad facts uncovered at Club 400's pleasurable champagne party for company friends of Okla's Willis Townsend, an Army pal of Pianist Ken Sims, of whose pianologues 400 Manager Norman Bomze is justly proud.

TOUGH MONDAY ahead for the profesh. screen gazers . . . The Army's pictorial section is screening a Japanese feature film, "China Nights" at 10 a. m. at the Pentagon, and at night there's an advance look at "The Roosevelt Story," which is to open in New York on the twenty-first . . . It's been clipped from over two million feel of film covering 40 years in the late President's private and public life . . . More on both next week.

ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT takes a minute to report briefly on his wife's latest theater venture . . . Faye Emerson opens Monday night at Richard Aldrich's Cape Playhouse at Dennis, Mass., in "Profile," by Charles and Michael Robinson . . . It was Charles who wrote "Sailor Beware." . . . Though Elliott refers to his wife as "Mrs. Roosevelt," the theater's own announcement calls her only by her screen-stage moniker . . . The Quiz-Master hopes to be on the Cape for his wife's first night.

THE METROPOLITAN'S dropping its Saturday midnight shows for a few weeks . . . Wonder what's happened to that new "Drive In" over by the airport . . . Sabu's manager in town from Miami, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Albert Coe (no relation), 1867 Park rd. nw. . . . The new Esquire (September yet!) has an article by Andrew A. Rooney, who hates critics . . . "I wish," says he, "they'd all join the same club and stay away from the Palace one night a week so that I and a silly, uncultured little handful who believe that Hollywood movies are great entertainment could get in without standing in line." . . . Aw, gwan, Andy, there ain't that many crix.

BORIS KARLOFF as an Indian topic of conversation with Norman Siegel, former Cleveland Press columnist, now beating the drums for Cecil B. DeMille's "Unconquered." . . .DeMille himself will be here for the opening in October . . . First he goes to London for the world premiere, a fine place to unveil a flick about American Indians.

THE OPEN-AIR on the Richmond hgy. pulls a special showing tomorrow night only . . . You won't recognize "The Bandit and the Lady" as a title, but what you'll see is "Michael Strogoff," the Jules Verne story that was filmed about 10 years ago with Anton Walbrook and Fay Bainter . . . A swell picture it was, but why monkey with the title? . . . Anti-Russian?

DOUBLE DEBUTANTE: Geraldine Brooks, though a newcomer to the screen, is faring well at Warner Brothers, particularly in roles demanding mental anguish, as in the Metropolitan's "Possessed," and downright insanity, as in the Earle's "Cry Wolf," in which she appears with Barbara Stanwyck

Lovely Star Is Grease Monkey

Hollywood. — Cathy O'Donnell worked several days as a gas station attendant at a super-de-luxe Hollywood filling station getting ready for her role in "Your Red Wagon."

In the picture, Cathy, as the sweetheart of a young gangster, runs a filling station. Producer John Houseman held she couldn't give a convincing performance without firsthand knowledge, ordered the course in practical experience.

No one recognized Cathy as, clad in blue slacks, sweater and cap, she filled tanks, checked tires and wiped windshields. She was also taught how to drive a truck though she hasn't yet learned how to drive her recently purchased car.

Ocean Dweller

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Montgomery Accused Of Slighting Schools

By Drew Pearson

The other day I wrote something about poorly paid school teachers of Pennsylvania, a State in which I used to live. Today I want to write something about the schools of Maryland, a State in which I live now.

Some people may think that I am hipped on the question of schools. But to me they are one of the greatest bulwarks of the Nation. They are as much responsible for the intelligence and idealism of the American people as any other institution. We cannot stand by and see them neglected.

I live in a county which is one of the wealthiest in the world. Thousands of people commute daily from the District of Columbia into Maryland, people who help to run the Government of the United States, who should believe in good education.

Yet the school in my part of the county would put to shame some of the schools in war-famished Europe. Classrooms are overcrowded. Some of the kids have to study in the halls. Teachers are so overworked and harassed that discipline is almost impossible.

The other day a group of citizens met in the western part of Montgomery County—as citizens do everywhere—to complain about various things which the county government hadn't done but which the citizens thought should be done. Among other things they complained quite properly about the Potomac School.

Roads vs. Schools

The answer, given by one of the county officials, was that building costs were too high. Therefore, an addition to the school would have to wait until building costs went down. Almost in the same breath, however, county officials announced to the assembled citizens that the road which passes in front of the school would finally be made over new. This brought loud cheers from everyone.

However, the cost of the new road is going to be $130,000; and for one half that amount a new addition to the schoolhouse could be built. And although costs are higher for building a school, they are equally high for laying a road.

Now some readers of this column in Seattle or San Diego may wonder why I am boring them with a local problem in the distant State of Maryland. However, the problem isn't local. From what I gather it exists everywhere. Schools throughout the Nation are overcrowded, undermanned, the teachers underpaid. Thousands of communities are going to have to decide whether to build new roads or new schools.

And while roads are important, what seems to me more important is the fact that children's minds cannot wait. Roads can. We can buy new tires or retread them. But you can't retard children's minds. Their characters and mentality are moulded young. For them the clock can never be turned back. The mental cobwebs they gather from 6 to 14 can never be brushed out.

Furthermore, this fall will see schools more crowded than ever. Seventeen million war babies were born from 1941 through 1946, an increase in our birth rate of 50 per cent, and the biggest crop of children this country has ever seen. They will start flooding the schools this fall.

Lately, I am glad to report that county officials are getting busy about the Potomac school and will land a contract soon.

My wife and I made a bet as to which will be finished first, the road or the school. I am betting on the school, she is betting on the road—though she agrees with me that the school should be built first. She also claims that I am mean enough to hold up the roads' right of way through the farm on which we live just in order to win the bet.

I hope I am not quite that mean, but I am still plugging to have the school finished first.

Caught With Lobbyists

How cozy Senator Brewster of Maine, chairman of the Senate War Probe Committee, is with Pan American Airways, was illustrated in some interesting backstage byplay the other day.

In a closed-door session of the committee, Senator Pepper, Florida Democrat, demanded to know where the news leaks were coming from out of the committee. He said he was astonished that some papers carried full details about Hollywood girls and expense accounts even before Senators on the committee knew about them.

So a special committee session was called at 3 p. m. to consider Pepper's protest. At that hour Pepper knocked on the door of Senator Brewster's private office. It was locked. Finally, however, he was admitted. Inside sat red-faced Senator Brewster together with Sam Pryor, vice president of Pan American Airways and its chief lobbyist in Washington, together with Julius Klein, paid publicity agent of Pan American.

Hastily, Brewster explained that the meeting to investigate news leaks had been called off. From all appearances, it looked as if Brewster were engaged in a private probe of news leaks with the two Pan American lobbyists.

Merry-Go-Round

Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall is a sure bet to run for Governor of North Carolina. . . . Members of the Senate Brewster Committee say that former Gen. "Benny" Myers, former chief of Air Corps Procurement, pulled all sorts of wires to stop the Committee probe of his heavy profits. Myers made $120,000 on one stock market deal during the war . . . President Truman is hoping that forthright young Congressman Estes Kefauver will run for the Senate against Tom Stewart of Tennessee. Kefauver is considered one of the most brilliant men in Congress. Stewart is not . . . Senator Brewster, charged by Howard Hughes with trying to "blackmail" him into an amalgamation between Pan American Airways and Trans World Airline, made some significant remarks at a closed meeting of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee last January. It looked as if he were gunning for TWA even then. Brewster reported that TWA was in shaky financial status and having trouble with the insurance company from which it borrowed 40 million dollars. Brewster told Senators how Howard Hughes had invested another 10 million in TWA, thus offering temporary financial relief, despite which TWA probably would still require another RFC loan of 50 million.
